

Happy Holidays

The Pendulum

Thursday, December 8, 1983
Volume X, Number 13

ODK taps 25 students

By Loukia Louka
Associate Editor

The Elon College Circle of Omieron Delta Kappa honor society will initiate 25 Elon students early in the Spring semester.

These students are:

Melanie S. Artley, junior, chemistry major; Susan M. Bowling, senior, accounting and business administration major; Nancy C. Cale, junior, chemistry major; Jo A. Craven, junior, Journalism-English major; Kelly S. Crissman, senior, English major; Ronald J. Dalton, junior, history major; Donald R. Dyer, Jr., senior, Biology and chemistry major; Mary A. Eubanks, senior, business administration major; Suzanne C. Fishel, senior, human services major; Sharon K. Foster, senior, chemistry and biology major; E. Carlton Jarrett Jr., junior, political science major; Barry L. Kavanaugh, senior, biology major.

Also Karen L. Long, junior, accounting major; Christine Maggio, junior, English and Journalism-English major; Angela M. May, senior, business administration major; John Robert Moser, junior, political science major; Kelly G. O'Ferrell, junior, business

Continued on page 10

Photo by Paul Harris

How long is this going to take?

Santa Claus looks slightly perturbed as Karen Makeithan and Jane Mason rattle off a list of what they want for Christmas this year. The girls seem to have lost Santa amidst their conversation in Holly Hill Mall Shopping Center. For more Christmas pictures see page 6.

Last issue of 1983

This is our last issue of the year. We will publish one issue Winter term and resume regular publication for the Spring semester.

31 countries seen

Freshman Walt Clarke is a world traveller

p. 7

Christmas countdown

Faculty, students talk about what they want this year

By Vicky Jiggetts
Staff Writer

The Christmas season always creates a sense of excitement for children. During the entire year, they all have tried to be good little boys and girls, so that Santa will bring wonderful gifts.

This year, in interviews with The Pendulum, several Elon professors, students, and administrators have their own ideas of great Christmas gifts.

Lela Faye Rich, associate director of academic advising, asked for a few peaceful moments. She said, "I would like an uninterrupted evening, when I can snuggle up in front of a fire with a good book."

Suzanne Stevens, area coordinator of Harper Center, asked for a combination of gifts. Stevens said, "I want an emerald ring, and some jeans with the white stripe along the sides, like the ones that train engineers wear."

She also mentioned what she doesn't want for Christmas. "What I don't want for Christmas is a baby brother or sister for my son, Paul," said Stevens. "Just to be on the safe side," she said, "I'm sleeping in the rocking chair at night."

Ronald Klepcyk, acting dean of student affairs, simply said, "I would like a Baby Klepcyk for Christmas."

Naola Fearrington, secretary in the office of student affairs, said that she wanted "love, good health - and Marvin Gaye."

Mark Albertson, registrar, had a variety of gifts in mind. At first, he said, "I want a set of golf clubs like the ones that Rodney Dangerfield had on Caddyshack." He continued, "I'd really like to see my wife and two children happy and pleased with the gifts that they receive on Christmas Day. I'm also hoping for a safe trip to and from my visit with my parents in Pennsylvania the following week."

John Sullivan, philosophy professor, said that his gift came early. "I already have what I wanted for Christmas - a new car. This was a necessity, as well as a gift. I'd also like to get a radio for my new car," said Sullivan.

Continued on page 10

Elon defeats Longwood

81-64

Spencer leads scorers

p. 9