Splash Party

The Black Cultural Society will sponsor a splash party tomorrow in Beck Pool from 8 p.m. to midnight. Games and music will be played. Everyone is invited.

ROTC

Tomorrow there will be a military ball at the Four Seasons Mall Holiday Inn. The cost for basic course ROTC cadets, non-scholarship cadets and guests is $16. On the agenda is a semi-formal dinner and a dance.

A canoe trip is planned for April 14 and will be open to all interested students. Details will be announced later.

Blood Drive

On April 3, ROTC will sponsor a Red Cross Blood Drive from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Jordan Gym. There will be competition for student organizations. The group which has the most number of students to donate in the group's name will win $75. There will be a $50 second prize and $25 third prize. Competitors need not be members of a group, only donate in the group's name.

Student Admission Committee Information

Today, there will be an information session for anyone interested in learning about the Student Admissions Committee. Dean Joanne Soliday, will lead the session at 6:30 p.m. in the Chandler Meeting Room.

Campus Wide Worship Service

The April 3 Worship Service will feature speaker Dr. Charles Williams of the First Presbyterian Church in Burlington. The service is held at 9:30 a.m. in Whitley Auditorium with one college program credit offered.

Internships Available

The North Carolina Marine Resources Center/Roanoke Island offers work-study summer internships.

Students majoring in biology, ecology, environmental or science education, recreation, art and design, journalism and related fields are invited to apply. College credit can usually be arranged for students participating in an internship. More information is available from Rhett B. White, director, N.C. Marine Resources Center/Roanoke Island, Box 967, Airport Road, Manteo, N.C. 27954.

Mark Your Calendar

A career day for liberal arts students will be held on April 12 from 1-5 p.m. in Long Student Center on second floor. Representatives from banking, media brokerage, advertising, airlines and other areas will attend.

Priestley sponsors writing contest

Entries are being accepted for the first annual Priestley Award in Journalism, presented to the student majoring in Journalism-English whose published writing in newspapers or magazines has been of the most consistently high quality. The award with a $100 prize is given by Dr. Mary Ellen Priestly, former professor of English and journalism and adviser to The Pendulum from 1974 to 1982.

From the categories of news, features, editorials, sports and opinion columns, the qualifying student should select three published copies of three articles of at least 500 words each from newspapers or magazines. Entries should be presented by 5 p.m., April 2, to Professor Bob Nowell (Carlton 305), chairman of a three-judge panel that selects the winner. The selection will be announced at Awards Day, April 24.

Greeks

"Within the sorority, there are sisters who can help a pledge if she is having problems in a subject someone is majoring in," Womble says. "This is taken care of by the education director. This pledge class in particular has a very high grade point average."

The scholarship chairman for Phi Mu, Marti Kain, describes her organization as having "study buddies" which group a sister and a pledge. "We do programs like having all the girls set a gpa goal for the semester, and try to reach it. We gave out about 20 of those last semester. They set high standards for themselves. It has all been very encouraging."

Long-term goals

KA President Mike Simonelli says one of the main goals of the IFC is to open up communication with the advisors and the administration. He says, "A point we have to fall back on is the improvement on the overall Greek gpa. It shows that we care about Elon and what's going on in the community, and that we're not just down here going crazy."

In addition to working with scholastic achievements, the Greek organizations are sponsors and participants in service projects. The IFC will be sponsoring a Danceathon at the Ramada Inn this Saturday from 5-10 p.m. for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The organizations have also adopted national service projects for organizations like the cancer society, Special Olympics, United Way and other groups that aid the handicapped.
