

ROTC goes on scuba diving trip

Six Elon ROTC cadets, accompanied by Capt. Mark Bowers, travelled to Key Largo, Fla., during spring break for some camping and scuba diving.

Key Largo is the first island south of Miami, nestled between the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean.

"After a 17-hour ride, we set up camp at American Campgrounds," said cadet Jean Chausse. "Once the tent was set up, our campsite looked just like the 'swamp' on 'M.A.S.H.'"

"Because of our extensive ROTC training, camping out with a tent and cots seemed luxurious compared to sleeping in a dirt foxhole."

"Besides seeing schools of barracuda, we experienced no danger in the clear blue ocean," Chausse said. "A diver's main safety hazard is panic; about 90 percent of all diving accidents result from this."

"The most difficult and dangerous part of the dive was trying to get back into the boat. With 7-foot ocean swells, the boating ladder on the back of the boat became a lethal weapon as it shot up and down with each swell."

"We all felt like Jacques Costeau as we searched a World War II wreck for ocean life. Besides many violet and purple parrot fish, we saw a giant moray eel attached to the hull."

Colonades To Be Issued Today

The 1987 issue of Colonades the literary magazine of Elon College, will be distributed today at the College Coffee.

New Publication Planned

Michael Gaffigan, instructor of English, says he and some faculty colleagues are planning a new publication devoted to the creative thought of Elon College. The student/faculty publication, tentatively titled FORUM is scheduled for an October 1987 debut. Gaffigan says he is looking for short fiction; poetry; cartoons and other black and white artwork; book, music and film reviews and articles on issues which concern the Elon College community. Anyone having ideas for the publications should contact Gaffigan in 106 Carlton, call 584-2265 or drop a note to box 2135.

"Knowledge is of two kinds. We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it."

Alpha Chi inducts 12

Twelve students were inducted last night into Alpha Chi, Elon's top plastic honorary society, in a ceremony in Mooney Theater.

The new inductees are Linda Clifton Aldridge, Amy Sue Ferguson, Dallas Lee Holley, Rhonda Madren Huffman, Jane Marie Jones, Peter Koort, Kathy Davis Manuel, Todd Michael Nassief, Tammy Ann [unclear], Sherry Dean Roberson, Peter Robert Viteritti and Allison Paige Woodcock.

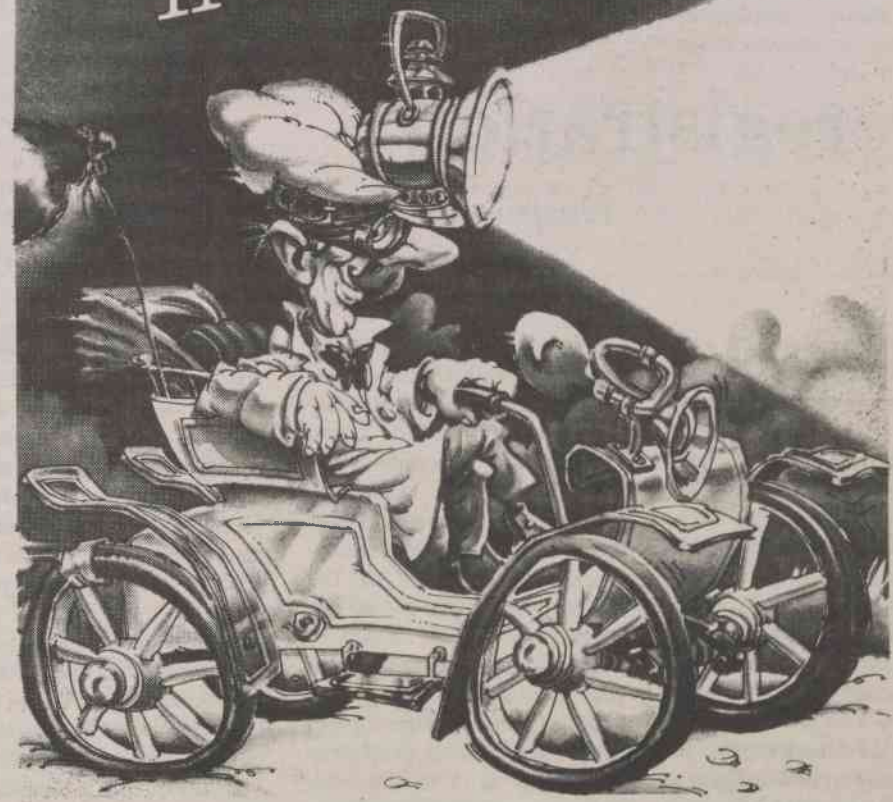

Dr. Robert Blake, professor of English, presided over his last induction ceremony after having served Alpha Chi as adviser for the past 10 years.

The organization will meet at 9:30 a.m. May 7 on the third floor Alamance to elect officers for 1987-88.

BUD LIGHT

PRESENTS

GREAT LIGHTS IN HISTORY

1892. HOWARD HANSELBERGERDORFER INVENTS THE HEADLIGHT.

And, boy-oh-boy, was old Howard beaming when he came up with that You'll be beaming, too, after you taste Bud Light. It's the less-filling light beer with the first name in taste. (Good thing its first name isn't Hanselbergerdorfer.)

So, like Howard, bring out your best. Beam yourself to your favorite tavern and ask for the great light of today. Bud Light
