

Semester in London program planned for '88

By Amy Andrews
Staff Writer

Elon College's Study Abroad program will expand to include a spring semester 1988 program in London.

Dr. Bill Rich, director of the Study Abroad program, said that the spring semester abroad will be "basically like our fall program except we will have different courses being offered."

Students may receive 12 to 16 hours of academic credit for the trip. The list of courses includes a history course dealing with colonializations, especially of America; two business courses, one similar to Business 323 (principles of management) and another similar to Business 311 (principles of marketing); and other courses in international economy, English theater and English art and architecture.

Several of the classes in the program will be taught by Elon professors. Rich noted that Elon rents a classroom from the University of London and hires instructors from other schools in England. The Elon students have access to the London student union and library.

The cost for the spring program is the same as Elon's spring semester tuition, plus airfare.

Trips have been planned for this summer, as well as for next fall and winter term. Over the summer, a trip to Russia, China and Mongolia will be led by Dr. David Crowe, professor of history.

Another scheduled for the summer will be to Spain. Rich said that on this trip, students will be able to speak in Spanish. On the winter term trip to Spain, the students have English-speaking tour guides.

This fall, Elon students will again be able to spend the semester in London.

Applications are now being accepted for the winter term 1988 trip to Spain and trip to London.

The winter 1988 program in London is Elon's 20th annual winter term in that country. The dates for the trip are Jan. 4-28. The trip will feature day trips to Bath, Stonehenge, Canterbury, Stratford-Upon-Avon and class days in the British Museum, Westminster Abbey, Tate Art Gallery, the National Gallery, and Hyde Park.

The cost is $1,725 and includes all airfare, hotels, day trips, plays, entrance fees and instruction. Students can receive three hours of credit for the trip. There is room for approximately 80 students and, according to Rich, one-third of the positions have been filled.

The winter term in Spain, led by Elon Spanish professor Gerardo Rodriguez, will be held Jan. 4-27, 1988. English-speaking tour guides will be used, and three hours of credit is available in either fine arts or Spanish. The trip will begin in Madrid and the group will visit five or six major cities. Highlights of the trip will be visits to the theater, free time to take an overnight trip into Africa (at additional cost) and, if the group is small enough, a home-cooked Spanish meal.

The cost for the Spain trip is $1850 and includes airfare, hotels, guide fees and breakfast.

Applications are now being accepted for both winter term trips and the spring semester 1988 trip to London. There is a limited number of spaces for each trip. Applications may be picked up in Alamance 109 or contact Rich for more information.

Thank you, Gayle Fishel . . .

for six years of hard work, dedication, and commitment to excellence. We appreciate all you have done for Elon College by bringing it recognition through award-winning publications. We also appreciate all you have meant to us as individuals—all the times you have stirred up our minds or made us laugh at ourselves and others. We have enjoyed working with you as a student, colleague, friend, designer, writer, and satirist. We will miss you when you are gone, and we wish you the best for the future. Elon will never be the same without you.
