

SGA receives letter from Young, officers proud of achievements

The Student Government Association has made many new changes for Elon students this year. SGA recently received a letter from President Young thanking them for their "many accomplishments."

The officers of SGA are proud of their achievements. So far the association has been responsible for new copiers in the library, more phone lines and the installation of shower heads that will conserve water for campus residents, improvement of lighting on north campus and has provided condoms on campus. They have also recently adopted a highway.

While many changes have been made, there are still more in the process. One of these issues is to try to change the format of the bookstore. "SGA is trying to change the format of the bookstore, a lot of thought is being put into it," said Scott Frail, president of SGA.

Another project that SGA is working on is "Earthday." While plans for this day are still underway, there will be events that students can participate in to help the environment.

SGA also plans to take a part in building the house that "Habitat for Humanity" is sponsoring.

While SGA is still making plans for upcoming events, they encourage students to come to their meetings to voice their opinions. "We are always open for suggestions," said Carter

Smith, Vice President of SGA. "Our meetings are open to students. They are held twice a month. We encourage students to come on out and share their thoughts and concerns."

"SGA has been very productive, but we need more students to come and voice their opinions," Frail said. "We are the link between students and faculty, but we represent only a small percentage of students. We need to hear other students' concerns so we can try to fix the problems."

The next SGA meeting will be held on March 19. It will be at 5 p.m. in the senate room.

Elections for new officers will be held April 10. If you would like to join SGA as an officer or senator, you can pick up petitions in the SGA office. All entries must be back by March 20.

The Bookstore has requested that students throw junk mail in the trash cans instead of on the floor in front of their mailbox. There are three trashcans located in the lobby of Long, so please put unwanted flyers in the trash. Thank You!

the homeless. Then the ACAC will have administrative offices set up, and a daycare center for the elderly will also be available. They are also hoping to eventually relocate the Good Shepard Community Kitchen (soup kitchen) to the new shelter.

Hunter said there will be an apartment for families that have lost their home to fire to stay for a short while also. "Hopefully we will be able to use the facility for illiteracy programs," Hunter said. "We will continue the program for indigent help too."
