Power of the family explored

The Elon College Counseling Service is starting an exploratory group to look at the roles played in the family.

The group will examine how your family role impacts your present relationships, communication patterns and approach to life.

The group will run for 10 weeks beginning Sept. 17 from 3-4 p.m. on Tuesdays.

This is a closed group with limited reservations. If interested please call 584-2107 or 584-2411 to reserve a place by September 10.

The goal of the group is to learn how to change thinking, feelings and/or behavior to feel better and to learn how to use your own strengths and resources in daily situations in a supportive and non-judgmental environment.

All groups are strictly confidential.

Repeat Dieter's Group Scheduled

The Elon College Counseling Service is starting a group for students who are struggling with their relationship with food.

In this group you will learn the consequences of dieting and how you learned to view your body and body weight.

This is a closed group with limited registration. You can register for this group by calling 584-2107 or 584-2411.

The first meeting will be on Sept. 12 at 6:30 p.m. The group will meet 10 times on Thursdays from 6:30-8 p.m.

College Orchestra premieres

On Thursday, Sept. 12, at 7:30 p.m. the Elon College Community Orchestra will premiere a new work by composer Richard J. Rendleman Jr.

The orchestra's season opening will take place in the theatre of the Fine Arts Building. Admission is free.

Rendleman's new work, titled "Concerto for Tenor Saxophone and Orchestra," will be performed by renowned tenor saxophonist James Houlick of the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. Rendleman is a professor of finance at UNC-Chapel Hill and composed the piece especially for Houlick.

"Two American Scenes" by composer Dwight Gustafson will also make its North Carolina premiere. Gustafson is dean of fine arts at Bob Jones University.

Lowe scholarship established

A $20,000 scholarship has been established in memory of Wilkes Estes Lowe, Jr. by the estate of his wife, Leffie Talbert Jones Lowe.

"Establishing a scholarship is a wonderful way to perpetuate the memory of Mr. Lowe, who was himself an educator," said Dr. Jo Watts Williams, vice president for development.

The scholarship will be awarded annually to a Burlington City Schools or Alamance County Schools graduate with preference being given to a Western Alamance High School student.

After graduating from Elon College in 1933, Wilkes and Leffie Lowe both taught in the Elon College public schools. One of the Lowes' sons, the late Wilkes E. Lowe III, graduated from Elon College in 1969.

The Lowes' remaining son, Charles Joseph Lowe, of Murfreesboro, said that the scholarship honors the memory of his mother and brother, as well as his father.

Elon College awards medallions

Elon College presented its most prestigious award, the college medallion, during its faculty/staff convocation on Aug. 19.

Retired admissions staff member Jacqueline Matlock and retired English professor Mary Ellen Priestley were the recipients.

"The medallion is bestowed upon faculty, staff and friends whose service to the college has been unusually long and of unusually high quality," President Fred Young said.

Matlock worked in the college's admissions office from 1948 until 1988. She began as a secretary, and as the staff grew, became assistant director of admissions.

Matlock worked under five different directors of admissions. Young credited her with having "trained more admissions directors than anybody else in the world."

Priestley joined the faculty in 1969. Young credited her with helping students create the college newspaper, The Pendulum and overseeing its progress until her retirement in 1982.

According to Young, Priestley's teaching and support of journalism led to the creation of a major separate from English. She provided the impetus for the eventual creation of the communications department, which is the second largest and fastest growing on campus.

Winter term in London

Winter term in London is still looking for students. If interested contact Dr. Jeffrey Pugh at ext. 2561, Dr. Tom Arcaro at ext. 2226, or Dr. Duane McClearn at ext. 2531.

Decision making seminar

The Elon College Counseling Support Staff is sponsoring a ten week seminar series designed to help students become acquainted with college.

The series kicked off on Tuesday evening. Dr. Nim Batchelor led a discussion on the new freedoms that students enjoy when they first come to college. Next weeks' discussion will be held Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. in West Lounge. Priscilla Haworth from the Academic Advising Center will lead a discussion on study skills.

In the coming weeks, the seminars will deal with long distance relationships, stress management, dealing with divorced parents, choosing a major, and dealing with anxiety and stress.
