Elon College President Fred Young announced April 8 that the search had begun for a new vice president of Academic Affairs after Francis was named the new provost.

Young said the college would accept applications from internal candidates.

Faculty and staff had speculated that Guffey would be a candidate for Francis's former position.

"I do not want Dr. Francis's old job," Guffey said.

Hanke said her new role as SGA adviser will be hard work, but she is excited about it.

"My role as an adviser is to challenge and support," Hanke said. "I think I am an advocate for students."

Students that want the premium channels must contact Cablevision of Alamance County.

Elon College will be adding four new channels including SCOLA, a foreign language news channel which will replace ACTS/VISN, the religious channel. The Elon Information Channel will replace the QVC Home Shopping Channel, and ECTV will be added.

The fourth channel has not yet been decided, but Fulkerson said, "With the way ECTV is growing, we may need another channel."

Fulkerson also said that the Cable Act of 1992 caused Elon to pay for all local channels and service and there were also restrictions. This forced the college to invest more money which was not economically feasible.

Another problem was that in the past, not enough students bought the service, creating a monetary loss for the college.

The proposed channel line-up is being worked out technically and legally with Alamance Cablevision.

The technical upgrading of cable will be done this summer, and residents living on campus will have the new service in the fall. Students are strongly advised to bring cable-ready televisions.

Head of Cable Repair and Maintenance Steve Holt said, "We've wanted the idea for a long time, but cable was never interested. Now they have a lot of subscribers."

Holt also said that one of the benefits of the proposal is the maintenance service.

"Every service call goes to cablevision, not the Elon switchboard. We used to have to go from room to room and troubleshoot, but this will save us personnel time," Holt said.

He said another benefit is that everyone will be connected to the basic and extended service, so there will not be confusion about hook-ups when students are moving into their rooms. There will not be any cable theft because everyone will have the hook-up.

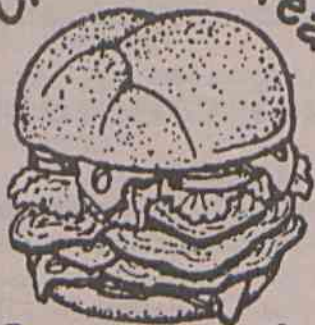

Extended channeling also allows technological advances in cable for students in years to come.

Holt said, "This will be a much more convenient way for students to have cable, and for us to get our work done. But if students are dissatisfied with the service, they need to let us know," Holt said.
