West and Virginia Dorms were vandalized in the early morning hours of April 22.

No one has come forward with information leading to the vandals, West Area Director Alice Ledford said last Friday.

All three floors in Virginia Dorm and the first and second floors in West Dorm were vandalized.

Toilet paper was scattered, furniture overturned in West Lounge, garbage and recycle bins were emptied in the halls, a flower arrangement was ruined and signs were removed from some doors.

Ledford said she did not want to talk about possible fines for those involved.

"I would prefer not to mention charges," Ledford said. "Let's talk about the community effort."

If anyone has information about the vandalism call Ledford at x2543, office of Residence Life at x2218 or Campus Security at x2407.

ARA Food Services receives local and state-wide recognition

Elon's ARA Food Services has earned recognition for employing persons with disabilities.

In November ARA was selected as the 1993 Employment and Advocacy winner by the Alamance County Mayor's Award Council. They received the honor for providing employment opportunities to mentally disabled people in the community.

After winning the local award, ARA was nominated to receive a state-wide award.

As a result of an impressive hiring record, they were chosen to receive the Governor's Advocacy Council for Persons with Disability Award.

ARA won the award from the small business category, which includes businesses employing less than 100 people.

"We are very excited about this award. It makes you feel good to know that you are helping the community," said Assistant Food Services Director Amy Carter.

ARA works with a job co-op program sponsored by Alamance Community College, which trains the workers for six weeks and then keeps regular checks on their progress.

"The job coaches from ACC are very helpful. If we have any problems we call them and they talk with the employees," Carter said.

Fifteen disabled people work for ARA. Two are line servers and the other 13 are utilities workers who serve in different capacities.

"Most of them are very thankful for the opportunity to work and they are very useful," Carter said.

Carter and Jeff Gazda, director of Food Services, will attend an award presentation luncheon in Durham on May 13.

ARA is one of three businesses from Alamance County to be recognized at the luncheon. Stadler's Hams and Roche Biomedical also won awards.

Elon student wins car on 'Price is Right'

Christy Earnhardt

When an Elon senior heard the words "come on down you're the next contestant on the 'Price is Right'," while on spring break, she couldn't believe her ears.

Wearing her college sweatshirt, Kathryn Whitney Kraft ran as fast as she could up to contestants row as her mom and two friends, Maddie Rabb and Heather Wissert, screamed at the top of their lungs.

"It was a lot of fun watching her up on stage," Rabb said.

After winning her way up on stage, Kraft took a gamble at the game "Any Number."

"It was that game where you pick numbers and try to fill up the price of the items they show you. Otherwise, your numbers go into a piggy bank," she said.

When the choices were revealed, "they showed me a desk...and a new car," Kraft said.

As a result of careful guessing, Kraft was the winner of a fuschia 1994 Mercury Tracer. "I was in shock...it felt like a dream," she said.

While waiting in line at 5:30 a.m. to try and get tickets, my friends and I were just hoping to get in and see the show...I never thought I'd win something, Kraft said.

After waiting outside for three hours, we were finally given name tags. "Then we were taken eight at a time and asked questions...it was like a line up," Kraft said.

"They asked me what I did," Kraft said. "I told them I was a student at Elon College."

Before the show began, the contestants were chosen based on the screening process, Kraft said. "I have no idea why they choose me."

Although the car was free, Kraft must pay for taxes, licencing and income tax. "I'm going to sell the car to my dad...he's buying it for my sister," Kraft said.

Kraft could be seen last Friday when the CBS game show aired at 11 a.m.
