

INSIDE OPINIONS

2-4
COMICS
17

NEWS

EV! prepares for the Special Olympics
6

The suffering of Holocaust survivors
7

Elon's cigar culture
12

A&E

It's "A Grand Night for Singing" this weekend!
10

"City of Angels" reviewed
11

SPORTS

Greek Week winners and photos
19

Elon softball has record year
20

Honors evening to feature students

Michelle Cater
Editor in Chief

Elon will focus on student academic achievement on Tuesday, April 28 at the Evening for Honors. Three students will be making presentations at this dinner for more than 500 people, including President's and Dean's list students, faculty, the Elon College Trustees and the Elon Society.

"The purpose of the convocation is to celebrate academic excellence, leadership and philanthropy," Provost Gerry Francis said.

Senior Melissa Pace, a history and accounting major, will present her research on the history of lung transplantation.

History and communications major Melissa Quinn, a junior, will present a seven-minute video that she wrote, produced and edited during her internship at a PBS station last summer.

The last presentation will be given by sophomore Dan Callaway, a music theatre major. He will discuss the intricacies of song preparation and will perform "Not a Day Goes By" by Stephen Sondheim.

see HONORS, page 5

Elon rallies against rape

Michelle Cater
Editor in Chief

Elon College students will "Take Back the Night" Wednesday, April 29, as they march against rape and domestic violence.

The slogan of this year's march is "You don't have to be a victim to be a survivor," said event coordinator Michaela Wadbrook.

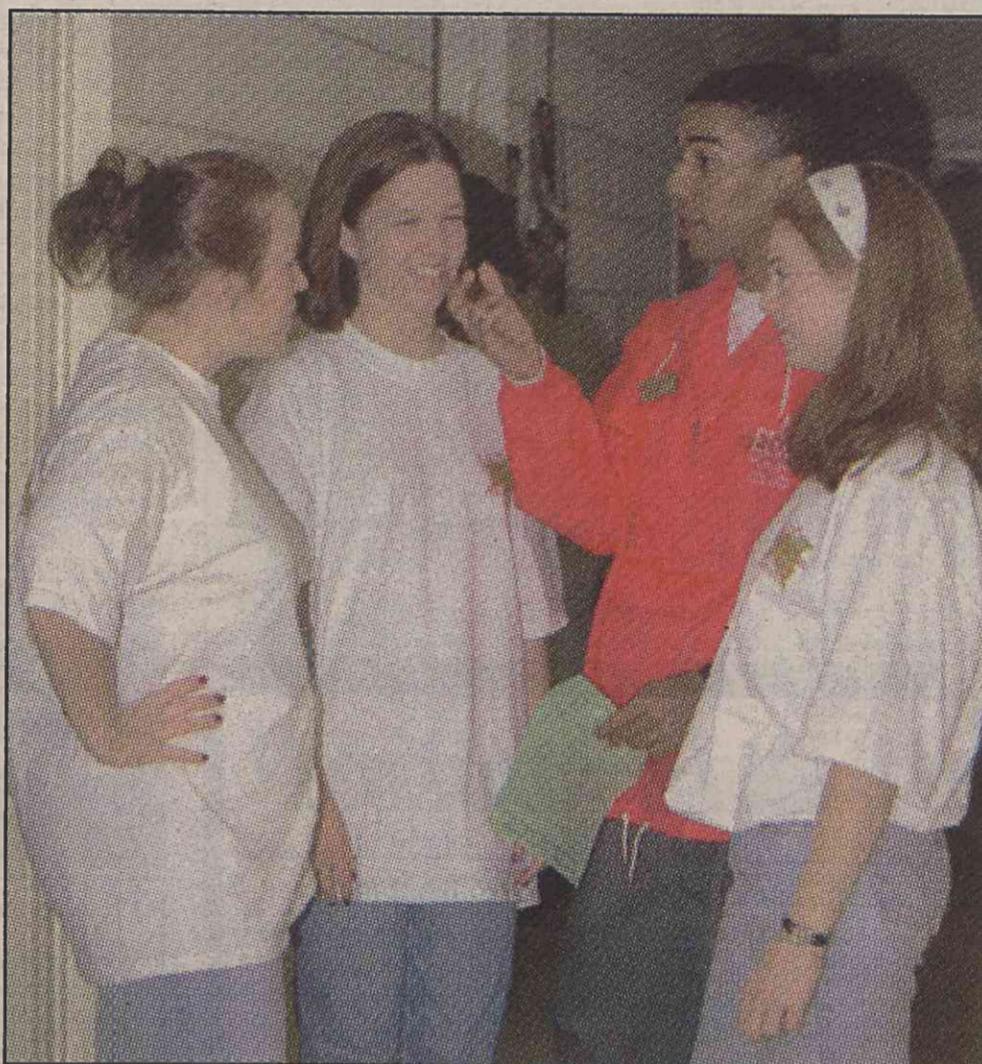

The march will start at 6 p.m. in front of Whitley Auditorium. After marching around campus for approximately 30 minutes, the march will end at Whitley.

After the march ends, refreshments will be served. Then Crossroads representative Ron Driscoll, Associate Dean of Students Jana Lynn Patterson and Chaplain Richard McBride will speak.

An Elon student who has been raped will also offer her testimony. Counselors will also be available for students to speak with.

"I think a lot of people think these things (rape and domestic violence) don't exist, but if we can get

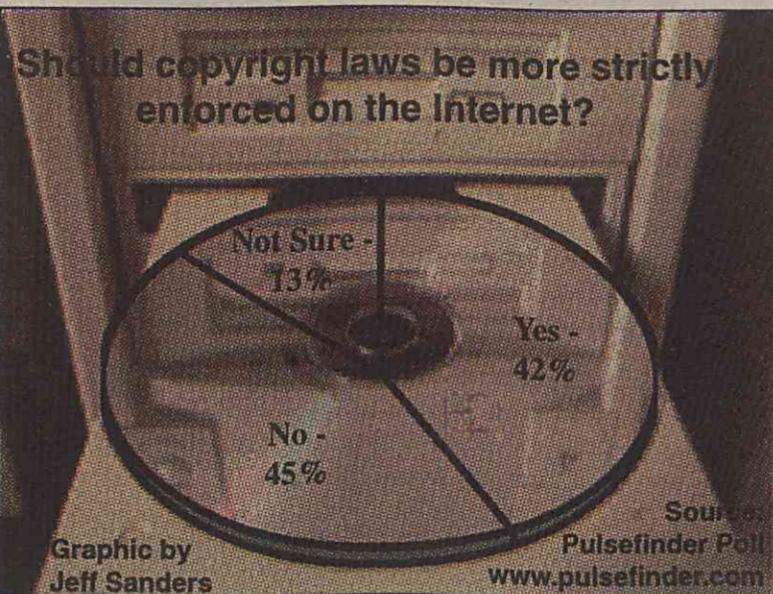

see MARCH, page 5

Emily MacDonnell/The Pendulum

Elon tour guide Salman Lewis discusses dorm living with Kristie Sanford, Joy Goad and Ashley Davidson during orientation weekend.

Pendulum F.Y.I.

Winter Term '99 offers new choices

Evan Lacasse
Contributing Reporter

Three new Winter Term opportunities give students 15 possible destinations for winter term in 1999.

On Friday, April 3, the Office of International Studies began taking applications for study abroad during Winter Term and will continue to throughout the semester.

Media and Culture in Japan,

the Holocaust and Cafe Europa-Eastern Europe in economic transition are the new winter term classes. The Holocaust and Cafe Europa trip bring students to Germany, Poland and Austria. An additional stop is made in the Czech Republic on the Cafe Europa trip.

With accommodations available for 20 students on the European Union trip, spaces filled quickly as almost 60 undergraduates filled the halls of Alamance building. One hour after accepting applications, the European Union trip was filled.

Winter Term studies abroad accommodate 20 to 30 people depending on the destination; however, the London trip accommodates 80 people.

Word of mouth is the best advertisement for Winter Term at

see WINTER TERM, page 5