

Cage and Ryan star in 'City of Angels'

Brie Bittenbender
Pendulum Reporter

I cried when I saw "City of Angels," but I don't know why. Although it was a let down, I must give it credit for being well written. It is definitely one of those "Chicken Soup for the Soul" kind of films.

As for the actors in the film, Nicholas Cage has portrayed everything from a drunk, to a convict and this time he is an angel.

Meg Ryan has maintained her 30-year-old look for the last 15 years and makes a great character out of the angel's attraction.

The story focuses on Seth, the angel played by Cage, and Maggie, a heart surgeon played by Ryan. As you might of guessed, they fall in love and everything works out great right?

Come to find out Seth can't feel emotions and when Maggie finds out about it, she leaves town.

In the meantime, Seth is debating on whether or not to turn in his angelic status for Maggie. He is perplexed by this issue and eventually seeks help from an ex-angel who tells him that it is possible for an angel to become human and fall in love with another human being.

Within days of Seth's an gelic sacrifice, the entire reason for the end of his immortality becomes extinct. So in theory, Seth gives up his wings for nothing, but it is justified by the poetic quality of Cage's character that, "Giving it all up for think about life and question whether or not there are angels somewhere watching over your shoulder.

Cage and Ryan find heavenly love in 'Angels'

one brush of her hair, one touch of her hand and one taste of her lips was worth never feeling it."

This average love story with a twist was definitely cute, but I would not see it again. If you are into that kind of romance, then you should see it because it does make you

Sonsa performs Sunday in Yeager Recital Hall

Erik Akelaitis
A&E Editor

An afternoon of 20th century music await as Sonsa performs Sunday at 3 p.m. in Yeager Recital Hall.

Sonsa is a trio of violin, clarinet and piano musicians who combine their talents in an effort to capture the essence of chamber music. The members of the musical group are Corine Cook, violin; Donald Oehler, clarinet and Victoria Fischer, piano.

Fischer, an Elon professor, wants the concert to provide the Elon community with a chance to experience chamber music in a positive manner.

"I hope that the performance will show Elon students what a great genre twentieth century music is," Fischer said.

"In the future we hope to expand our performances and get our literature written and out to the public."

The group will perform an array of American and international music from a variety of composers.

Some of the music the group will perform is "From The Green Mountains," by Jeanne Singer, an American song writer, as well as other early American music.

In addition, Sonsa will perform a variety of international music from different composers such as Bartok,

Corine Cook, Victoria Fischer and Donald Oehler of Sonsa perform Sunday

Khachaturian and Harbison.

The concert is free with an Elon ID.

*Do you want to enhance your resume?!?
If so, write for A&E!
We have one more issue and need reliable writers for the fall!!
Call Erik at X2331*

Big Box of Stuff

On Tour

- ◆ April 27- Jars of Clay; The Ritz in Raleigh
- ◆ May 2- Gran Torino 3 p.m. Rudd Field (North Area by fieldhouse)

On Stage

- ◆ April 23: Elon College Chamber Orchestra 8 p.m. McCrary Theatre
- ◆ April 24- The Department of Performing Arts presents "A Grand Night for Singing IV" 8 p.m. Yeager Recital Hall
- ◆ April 26- Sonsa; 3 p.m. Yeager Recital Hall
- ◆ April 30-May 1 Elon Dancers Concert, 8 p.m. McCrary Theatre; Tickets: $5
- ◆ May 2- North Carolina Poetry Society Spring Festival; 9 a.m.-3p.m. Yeager Recital Hall. For more information, contact Rosemary Haskell at 584-2211.
- ◆ May 2- Elon College Chamber Singers; 8 p.m. McCrary Theatre. Tickets: free

On Screen

West End Cinema (538-9900)

- The Player's Club
- The Object of My Affection
- Species 2
- Mercury Rising
- Grease
- Titanic
- Lost in Space
- The Odd Couple 2
- Paulie
- Barney's Great Adventure
- U.S. Marshals
- My Giant
- Major League 3
- City of Angels

Coming this Friday

The Big Hit

WSOE 89.3 Top Ten

1. Tuscadero- "Temper Temper"
2. Superdrag- "Hellbent"
3. Suicide Machines- "Black and White World"
4. SAMIAM- "Mr. Walker"
5. Propellerheads- "Velvet Pants"
6. Five Iron Frenzy- "Handbook for a Sellout"
7. Yuma House- "Joke of a Party"
8. HUM- "Isle of Cheeta"
9. Promise Ring- "Why did we ever meet?"
10. Vitreous Humor- "Fashion Anyway"

Record Town CD Releases

April 28

Jimmy Buffet
Dave Matthews Band
Big Punisher

Blockbuster Video Releases

April 28

Anastasia
Alien Resurrection