Elon student victim of hit-and-run accident

Back to school usually means new books, new classes and arranging that dorm room once again or for the first time. Treatment for multiple injuries is usually not included in the list of things "to do." Unfortunately for Daniel Logan MacCullum, this September has become more than the start of a new semester at school.

On Friday, Sept. 17, MacCullum was attempting to cross Williamson Avenue at 1:15 p.m. when he was struck by an oncoming vehicle. The vehicle did not stop.

Elon College Campus Police and the Town of Elon College Police Department are working together to solve this hit-and-run case. So far, there are no suspects. Police are looking for a white car, possibly a 1980s or older model Buick or Oldsmobile.

"No one actually saw the collision. Witnesses heard it [the collision] and then looked," said Corporal L.K. Albion. Witnesses stated that the driver pulled over in front of the College Coffee shop momentarily, but then drove away. No one was able to get any occupant or license plate information.

Employees at the College Coffee shop said they didn't hear anything until after the accident occurred. Bank of America employee Toni Webster said the bank didn't know anything had happened until a man ran up to the drive-through teller window and yelled for someone to call 911. Another bank employee, Anne Denney, made the call.

MacCullum was taken to Alamance Regional Medical Center where he was treated for rib, ankle and arm injuries. Tara Morlando, East Campus Area Director, was on duty when the accident occurred. Dean of students Scott Nelson said Morlando and Chief of Elon College Campus Police Chuck Gantos have been in frequent contact with MacCullum's parents.

MacCullum has since been released from Alamance Regional Medical Center and has gone home to rest and recover.

Field to be named after McKinnon

The football field at Rhodes stadium will be named McKinnon Field in honor of Trustee Bob McKinnon, class of 1962 and his wife Ray.

President Leo M. Lambert made the announcement during a luncheon prior to Elon's 40-7 home football victory over North Carolina A&T Saturday.

The McKinnons have made a contribution of $1 million toward the fundraising campaign for the stadium, priced at $13 million.

"We are grateful for Bob and Ray McKinnon's commitment to Elon College, their strong leadership for the Elon Vision campaign and their generous gift to this exciting project," Lambert said.

McKinnon is the chairman of the Campaign for the Elon Vision, as well as having served on the college's Board of Trustees for the past three years.

The luncheon also honored several other major stadium donors, including Dusty and Peggy Rhodes, who have contributed $2 million to the project which will eventually bear their name.

The Board of Trustees is scheduled to consider authorizing groundbreaking in the spring at their meeting next month. To date approximately $10.7 million has been raised for the completion of the stadium.

In addition to the stadium and field naming, the college announced that an archway at the stadium's entrance will bear the name of Nick Theos, a 1956 graduate of Elon.

The $750,000 donation for the arch came from classmate Furman Moseley, and his wife Susan of Seattle, Wa.
