Industry NEWS

NBC celebrated the 200th episode of "Frasier" Tuesday night. The episode featured a special guest appearance by Microsoft honcho Bill Gates.

After just two airings, ABC yanked its news magazine "America.01" due to poor ratings. The show had been created to fill the gap left by "The Mole II" on Fridays.

Michael Douglas is teaming up with his father Kirk and possibly his 23-year-old son Cameron for "Smack in the Puss," a comedy about three generations of a dysfunctional family in New York.

The Fox network is developing a new one-hour series about the Centers for Disease Control, Variety magazine reports. The ensemble drama is being developed by Mimi Leder ("Deep Impact") and writer Anthony Peckham ("Don't Say a Word").

Celebs such as Gwyneth Paltrow, Penelope Cruz, Britney Spears and Sarah Michelle Gellar are donating gowns and accessories to auction off, with the proceeds going to Sept. 11 relief efforts. Bidding opened Sunday at www.gloryauction.com.

Carrie Donovan, the goggle-eyed former fashion editor for The New York Times and Vogue who most recently found a devoted following as the quirky spokeswoman for Old Navy, died Monday in Manhattan. She was 73.

Best places on the Web: students can engage in procrastination

Leah Baker

Contributing Reporter

Procrastination-vb: to put off intentionally the doing of something that should be done. Here, I'll use it in a sentence for you. I procrastinated so long that didn't finish my Pendulum article in time and I missed the deadline.

Most college students are quite familiar with procrastination. And because I'm so kind and thoughtful, I thought I'd help perpetuate your procrastination.

Here they are, a list of the best web sites to visit while procrastinating!

www.emode.com

Emode is every procrastinator's heaven. With more than 50 tests, you're bound to waste plenty of time. Choose from the serious "IQ test," the obscure "What Color is Your Aura," (mine's gold, in case you were wondering) or the weird, yet fun "Which Shoe are You," (I'm a flip flop). By the way, Emode told me that I'll be married by Sept. 4, 2004. I'm currently accepting proposals.

www.thespark.com

The Spark features quizzes with attitude. This sarcastic site attempts to measure your bitchiness (18 percent), predicts your date of death (May 4, 2056) and even boasts the ability to guess your gender (I am in fact female). It manages to do all of the above and more with a great deal of cynicism. It even yells the occasional insult at you through your speakers. Bonus: it has a link to the infamous Spark notes (similar to Cliffs Notes) Web site!

www.cs.virginia.edu/oracle

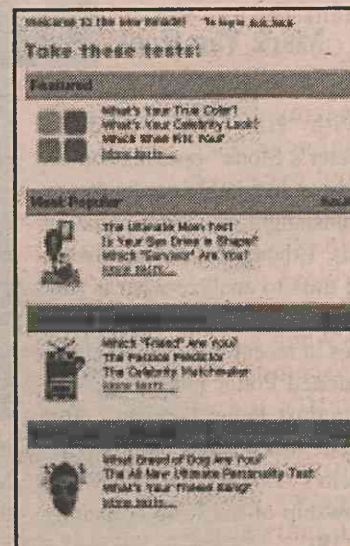

The Oracle presents six degrees of Kevin Bacon at its best. The computer is unbeatable. I thought I was good at this game, but even I couldn't connect Shaquille O'Neal. You've got to give the Computer Science Department at UVA credit for that one.

www.hampsterdance2.com

So it's just animated hamsters dancing. Forgive me, it was late and I was tired.

www.corynet.com/faces

Have you ever wondered what a person with Ricky Martin's head, Britney Spears' eyes and Woody Harrelson's mouth would look like? Most likely not, but even so, you'll definitely enjoy this site. You can make your own faces choosing different celebrities features, or let the random wheel make some for you. It gets old fast, but come on, you can't tell me you didn't laugh when you discovered that Jodi Foster, Christina Ricci and Leonardo DiCaprio actually make an attractive person. I guarantee you will laugh out loud at least once.

Emode.com offers many "tests," from love to money as a procrastination aid.

Happy procrastinating!

Send your favorite Web sites to The Pendulum. Tell us what makes them so great and we'll print them next week. pendulum@elon.edu

Take a detour.

Stop by Moseley Center 233 and pick up an application for Pendulum executive positions.
