Seniors gather for football

Seniors Sara Queen and Patrick Elliott talk with Monet Thomas while having a beer and enjoying fingerfood.

The Student Government Association sponsored Monday Night Football at the Harden clubhouse for seniors last Monday.

The event was catered by Aramark, with choices such as wings, pretzels, nacho dip and sodas. Students were given three tickets, which were used to receive beer or wine throughout the night.

More than 250 seniors showed up from 8 to 11 p.m. to hang out with fellow classmates, share a beer or two and watch the Dallas Cowboys play the New York Giants on one of the five TVs.

Students received their senior shirts, entered a raffle and played a number of games on the porch and around the tables.

SGA only planned for 125 seniors to attend and ran out of alcohol by 9 p.m.

Students spend Fall Break continuing service

Thirty-two undergraduates, three law students and five faculty and staff members spent their fall break in Bay St. Louis, Miss. Helping Katrina victims rebuild their homes. Group members all had different reasons for wanting to help, and they learned they can help in more ways than just rebuilding.

Before the first day of work, Rev. Michael Tracey of Our Lady of the Gulf church spoke with the group and reminded them of the three T's: "talking, tears and time." The victims need volunteers to help them physically rebuild, but sometimes they just need someone to talk to and listen to their story.

"The time I got to spend with the residents of Bay St. Louis was definitely the highlight of my trip," senior Matt Kerley said. "Experiencing firsthand the extreme determination, love and support that these individuals shared with each other and their communities was amazing and life changing."

"These people lost almost everything but they continue to move forward offering a helpful hand whenever possible. My time with these individuals has shown me the true beauty of human nature," said Kerley.

The volunteers had at least three different families to help each day. Projects ranged from burning wood, to putting up insulation and drywall, to helping move into a new trailer, to removing siding. The one
