The year at a glance

In the grand scheme of life, a year is not much more than a fleeting moment. From the millions of minutes that pass, only a rare few are dedicated to memory. This year brought student tragedy, environmentalism, academic excellence and newfound political awareness. As our year winds down and our graduates move on toward bigger things, reflect on what this year has been to all of us. It's the memories you take with you that will define your past and outline your future.
