THIS WEEK IN HISTORY - ELON'S FIRST FREE HIV TESTS

Truvada, a FDA-approved drug designed to help prevent HIV infection on the shelves of local pharmacies.

This week 13 years ago, Elon University began offering free HIV testing to students on the first Thursday of every month. Elon hoped to raise awareness of the disease and its possible effects on students on campus.

After the North Carolina Screening Tracing Active Transmission test detected 25 college males with HIV in the Triad area, Elon decided to offer students more access to testing.

By offering these resources the Health Center hoped to inform students of the risks of HIV and unprotected sex.

"The Elon Cares team has been visiting different Health and Elon 101 classes to inform students of the risks they face when they have unprotected sex," said Stephanie Kloeber, the 2004 coordinator of Elon Cares, a service branch of Elon Volunteers!

"It is important that a person be tested if they are sexually active," said Michelle Moody, who coordinated Elon Cares.

The Health Center still wants to make sure all students would have access to the medical assistance they needed.

Today, Alamance Care still provides free HIV testing at Elon.

FREE HIV TESTING AT ELON

Elon University's Health Center first offers free HIV testing in October 2004.

NEWS BRIEFS

Category 2 Hurricane Nate makes landfall in the US

Mississippi and Louisiana were struck by Hurricane Nate, a category 2 hurricane that made landfall Oct. 8. According to the National Hurricane Center, Hurricane Nate first made landfall late Saturday night as a Category 2 storm near the mouth of the Mississippi River in southeast Louisiana.

Hurricane Nate has maximum sustained winds of 85 mph. A hurricane warning was in effect for coastal areas from the border of Louisiana and Mississippi to the Alabama-Florida border.

Professors win second in casewriting competition

Three Elon University professors won second place in the 2017 Summer Institute of Management Accountants (IMA) Case Writing Competition.

Paula Weller, senior lecturer in accounting; Linda Poulson, chair and associate professor of accounting and Brian Nienhaus, associate professor of business communication, coauthored "Ethical Choices at Choice House."

The case was published in the September issue of the IMA Educational Case Journal and challenges students to overcome the internal control and ethical problems of a small nonprofit organization.

Elon dedicates Richard W. Sankey Hall site

Construction continues for Sankey Hall, the new business building was dedicated to Richard W. Sankey Oct. 6.

The dedication event was held to celebrate the support that Elon University parents Jim and Beth Sankey of Charlotte provided to the university and to Sankey Hall, which will bear the name of Jim's father.

Sankey Hall is located in the north end of McMichael Science Center parking lot adjacent to Colonnades Dining Hall and near the Martha and Spencer Love School of Business. Construction for the three-story, 30,000-square-foot building began this summer and will be complete in August 2018.

Family files brain damage lawsuit against ARMC

The Fraune Family of Burlington filed a lawsuit against Alamance Regional Medical Center (ARMC) on Oct. 4. Frances Fraune claims her newborn child had problems with breastfeeding and lost more than 7 percent of his body weight.

The doctors at ARMC told the family their son was dehydrated and had dangerously low blood sugar, but these proved to be inaccurate diagnoses. When the boy was 2 years old he showed signs of developmental issues.

According to the lawsuit, the Fraune's son had an oxygen level at 72 percent. Though the boy was clearly malnourished because of complications with his breastfeeding, the doctor told the family their child was eating well.

The suit alleges the nursing staff and administration for negligence.
