

sure that the parents would appreciate this gesture on the part of the Establishment, as I'm also sure they noted the lack of progress in the two month span since they first saw this complex.

I would be quite satisfied paying for goods received, but I hate like hell paying for something that does not exist.

William Y. Comninaki

BIRD'S EYE VIEW

The Old Elon Owl fell out of his bell tower last week when the college book makers announced the student selectees to Who's Who. I wonder how much one has to pay in order to fix the fight!

It is interesting to note that grades seem to be the primary factor in selection to this honor - school and SGA activities in most cases tend to stain one's record, especially if his efforts have been exerted in groups and activities of a controversial nature. Other than membership in snail - pace honorary groups whose only criteria is a healthy quality point average, the interests of only one of this year's selectees have been distributed into more than three areas. Yet, there is no grade - average requirement established by the national Who's Who organization. Somebody put salt in the drinking water! It seems that the easiest method of being selected is to be a member of the Who's Who committee (if you have