Cheers and the Scores

It is an afternoon that the home team has dreamed of for many days. The grandstands are filled with fans and people continue to come. There is a slight breeze and the sun shines beautifully. Perfect day the coaches say to themselves.

The opposing team runs on the field. Its colors of black and orange beam in the sun rays as the crowd greets the team with a deafening roar. Then proudly and full of confidence come the old Blue and White. The roars and yells let one know who is favored by the fans.

The game commences. The teams seem evenly matched, so the half ends with a score of 0-0. Wait.....The Broncos seem to be tiring. Their plays are slack and there prevails an uninterest in the game. Meanwhile the opposing team's cheering squad has gone and is going through all sorts of cavorts, cheering its players onward.

On the opposite side of the field the F. S. T. C. fans sit as mute as marble statues and statuettes. Feeble cheers go up here and there but fade out all too quickly because of the lack of cooperation on the part of the fans, mostly students in the latter category.

Can this be responsible for the absence of confidence and sheer disgust on the part of the Broncos? Maybe.

Despite the pep talks given the team by coaches Brewer and Gaines, the players still have that lost, pathetic gleam look in their eyes. The players cast pleading glances toward the grandstand; glances that say to the public, if you are not pleased at our performance we have nothing to play for and we will know whether you are or are not satisfied unless you yell.

The game proceeds and ends with the same spirit prevailing and the Black and Orange win with a score of 6-0. It wasn't easy to forget one's training though there is no moral support. Every one wonders now why the Broncos did not win. The weather could not have been better could it? The players were evenly matched were they not? What did happen?

It is another game day at kick off time. It is raining, not a slight drizzle but a steady pour. As before, the crowd is here and begins to yell and applaud when the teams appear. This splendid support continues throughout the thrill packed game. At the half the Alma Mater sounds across the field like thunder. It is fairly impossible to see the ball through possible to see the ball through the mud and mire of the field, the teams fight. Especially does the Blue and White fight because it has the wholehearted support of the school mates and fans. With all of these people for it, how can it lose? This is the one thing that keeps a team going when all else is gone and nothing looks at all bright. Just think, whether a man is tackled or tackled does not matter so long as ones' school is for one. A man can stand all that the opposing team can give so long as that cheering squad gets the support of the entire student body and sends the team on to a victory of 13-0.

TOBACCO BOWL CLASSIC

The second annual "Tobacco Bowl Classic" was held in Fayetteville, North Carolina for the first time in its history.

This event was a grand affair held at the Cumberland Memorial Stadium on the Fort Bragg road.

The stadium was crowded in spite of the very cloudy and cool weather. There were probably 3,000 or more people present.

The affair of the evening started with the parade of the tobacco queen, starting at "Liberty Point" and proceeding across town. All the queens were dressed in black and each had a car in which she and her chauffeur rode. The nine queens chosen from the student body of Fayetteville State Teachers College were as follows: "Miss Tobacco Bowl Queen," Pearl Young of Council, N. C.; "Miss Fayetteville," Mrs. Quanita

About Coach Gaines

Coach Gaines was born in Rochester, New York. The recipient of the B. S. degree from North Carolina College for Negroes in Durham, Mr. Gaines completed work for the master's degree in health and physical education at Columbia University in New York. Having enlisted in the Reserve Corp at North Carolina College, Mr. Gaines served thirteen months in the medical corp while in the army. Mr. Gaines was ALL CIAA tackle and guard for 1941 and 1942.

Cliette of Wilmington, N. C.; "Miss Lucky Strike," Dorothy Robinson of Elizabethtown, N. C.; "Miss Pall Mall," Atha Lennon of Pennsylvania; "Miss Phillip Morris," Lillie Queen Smith of Clinton, N. C.; "Miss Chesterfield," Rose Dove of Elerbe, N. C.; "Miss Camel," Virginia Jacobs of Halsboro, N. C., and "Miss Raleigh," Minnie Williams of Newton Grove, N. C. The parade was led by the E. E. Smith High School band, with the high stepping majorettes to tap it off.

The crowd was furnished music by the E. E. Smith band and the Darden High School band of Wilson, N. C. These two bands played many numbers and paraded during the half of the game.

The kick-off for the Tobacco Bowl classic game between Allen University and Fayetteville State Teachers College preceded a game which was played very clearly and excellent sportsmanship prevailed throughout the game. Both teams did a fine part of playing, but to our regret the Broncos were defeated 40-6.
