

Peace Corps

Mr. Samuel Gough, Public Affairs Officer of the Peace Corps, was a recent visitor to the FSTC campus. Mr. Gough, a graduate of Howard University, spoke briefly at the regular chapel hour, met with prospective applicants for the Peace Corps and showed moving pictures of the work now being done by the Peace Corps.

The VOICE wishes to present here a message left to our readers by Mr. Gough:

The Peace Corps offers you an invaluable opportunity to serve not only yourselves, but rather in a larger sense it offers you a chance to serve your country. As Robert Sargent Shriver, Director of the Peace Corps, stated, "The Peace Corps is people who want to give, people who are not afraid of challenge, people with tough hides and warm hearts".

You are a part of a new generation — a generation which is living through a Berlin Crisis, spectacular accomplishments in space flight, and continued attempts to gain equal rights for all United States citizens. We may be losing prestige in many foreign countries because of internal strife. But there are millions of people throughout the world who will still believe what they see — Americans helping Tanganyikans build roads, helping Colombians improve health standards, helping Indians produce food.

Here is an opportunity for knowledge and experience which is not restricted by race, creed or color. Here is a field of equal opportunity for all qualified United States Citizens.

However, Peace Corps service is not a primrose path on which one is led by the hand. As Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "This world belongs to the energetic."

Every volunteer must dedicate himself to the service of others and he must have the conviction, perseverance and stamina to perform that service in the face of hardship and frustration. He must be intelligent enough to meet the challenges of services abroad, healthy enough to adapt to new surroundings, and personable enough to establish good relationships with his fellow workers overseas. The basic considerations are character, skill, common sense, health and an ability to meet situations with both enthusiasm and tact.

Projects are constantly developing for which your skills are needed. The Peace Corps needs: engineers, community development workers, plumbers, masons, carpenters, heavy equipment operators, licensed practical nurses, social workers, social welfare workers, dentists, dental hygienists and assistants, laboratory technicians, pharmacists, x-ray technicians, sanitarians, vocational, technical, mathematics, science, and teachers for a variety of other subjects.

The basic requirements are that you be a United States citizen, and at least 18 years of age. If married, both you and your wife must serve on the same project provided you have no dependent children. If you have any further questions see Dr. C. C. Thomas of the faculty of FSTC, or write to Peace Corps, Washington 25, D. C.

Laugh . . . Bro . . . Laugh

Would you like to be an editor?

Being an editor is no picnic.

If we print jokes, people say we are silly, If we don't, they say we are too serious.

If we reprint things from other papers,

We are too lazy to write them ourselves.

If we don't, we are too fond of our own stuff.

If we inadvertently fail to report club meetings,

It is because we are jealous.

If we do, we are playing favorites.

And now, likely as not, someone will say

We swiped this from another paper.

Well . . . we did.

Harris Hall News

The occupants of Harris Hall consist of girls ranging from freshman to senior classification. We are largely under the direction of our dormitory matron, Mrs. M. E. Singletary.

In accordance with our democratic form of life in "our home away from home", we elected officers at the beginning of the year to serve us. They include:

Geneva Bennett . . . . . President
Senora Diggs . . . . . Vice President
Gloria Crawford . . . . . Secretary
Payton Harris . . . . . Asst. Secretary
Evelyn Torrain . . . . . Treasurer
Dolores Samuels . . . . . Reporter
Shirley Battle . . . . . Parliamentarian

Bi-monthly meetings are held for the purpose of discussing plans for future activities and suggesting standards for improved habits and mode for pleasant living, and an atmosphere more conducive for studying.

To date, we have held several activities, among them movies, birthday parties and a Christmas party.

We are looking forward to as much success in 1963 as we experienced in 1962.

Dormitory Directress

Smith Hall News

The occupants of Smith Dormitory are thankful for the accomplishments of the past year and are looking forward to what the new year holds.

The Nannie L. Smith Association is happy to inform you of the graduation of two of its young ladies, Miss Betty Grissom and Miss Junetta Boyd, at the end of the first half of the first semester.

Dormitory meetings were held monthly, featuring a guest speaker at each meeting. Guest speaker for the November meeting was Mrs. Helen Chick, who spoke on the subject Etiquette. She reminded everyone that modesty never goes out of style.

The annual Christmas party was given in Smith Hall Recreation Room. Greetings were by the president of the Association. The program included games, riddles, exchange of gifts and enjoying delicious refreshments.

Clothes were collected to provide Christmas gifts for the needy families. The year's activities were climaxed by the singing of Christmas carols on December 16, 1962.

A WARM WELCOME to the "newest entrant" to the College! Her name is Kimberly Vederra, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Asbury, born January 18. Congratulations and best wishes from the VOICE

Commendation

We wish to commend Captain Frederick Bibby for an outstanding job done this basketball season. Even though we did not have a successful season, Bibby scored a total of 316 points in 20 games for a 15.9 average and had 225 rebounds for 11.25 average, according to Robert Melvin, Assistant Statistician. Bibby will be a senior next year and our basketball opponents had better beware.

Bibby is a native of Franklinton, North Carolina, and is majoring in Health and Physical Education here at Fayetteville State.

accomplishments to the concert stage to which she is an ever welcome visitor."

Miss Dobbs has appeared as "Constance" in "Abduction from the Seraglio," "Olympia" in "Tales of Hoffman," "Queen of Shekhan" in "Coqd 'Or," and "Gilda" in "Rigolletto," to list a few of her appearances. The appearance of Miss Dobbs will climax Fine Arts Week.

Study

Selective Service

A Release from Office of The Registrar.

Applications for the Selective Service College Qualification Test to be given on APRIL 18 are now available to college students at the Selective Service local boards throughout North Carolina. The test will be given at more than 500 colleges in all 50 states, Puerto Rico, and the Canal Zone.

Scores made on the test will provide local boards with evidence of aptitude for continued undergraduate and graduate study. The scores will not of themselves determine eligibility for deferment, but are considered with other information by the boards in determining whether to defer individual registrants for further study.

Applicants for the test must be postmarked no later than midnight, Thursday, MARCH 28. Eligible students may also obtain information about the test from any local board.

The test, used since 1951 to aid local boards in determining questions of student deferment, is administered by Science Research Associate, McHenry, Illinois.

To be eligible to take the test, the applicant must be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time college course, undergraduate or graduate, leading to a degree. He need not be a student of a four-year college, but his entire course of study must be satisfactory for transfer of credits to a degree-granting institution.

The applicant must be a Selective Service registrant who intends to seek deferment as a student. He can take the test only once.

The State Director, Colonel Thomas H. Upton, pointed out a test score in the file will give the local board an additional piece of important information to use in determining whether a registrant is eligible for a student deferment.

Before The Legislature

All persons directly connected with Fayetteville State Teachers College and the many friends who have the interest of the institution at heart, are anxiously awaiting final decision of the North Carolina Legislators concerning appropriations for the coming biennium.

The projects which have been recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission and presented to the Legislature by the Governor include:

1. Classroom building, 25,000 square feet, total cost $385,000. This is to replace Aycock Building.
2. Library, 22,000 square feet, total cost $400,000.
3. Campus drainage and widening of main drive, total cost $90,000.
4. Redecoration of president's home, total cost $5,000.
5. Dormitory for 200 women, total cost $550,000, to replace Bickett Hall.
6. Dormitory for 250 men, total cost $687,500.
7. Physical education building for women, 25,500 square feet, total cost $470,000.
8. Student center, 20,000 square feet, total cost $460,000.

Big Doings

National Library Week will be celebrated throughout the nation the week of April 21-27. Something new is planned for our program at F. S. T. C. this year according to Mrs. N. R. Smith, Librarian. In addition to unveiling a paperback collection geared to student favorites, an invitation is being extended to all interested students who will prepare an essay on the theme "Reading — Our Fifth Freedom — Enjoy It!"

The essay is to contain not more than five hundred words since length will not be a prime factor in judging its quality. All entries presented to Mrs. Smith by April 10, 1963 will be carefully judged by a committee of English teachers and the three best essayists will be awarded valuable prizes. The very best essay will be read as a part of our chapel program on April 24; this could prove to be just the beginning of honors for excellent writing on this subject.

More detailed instructions will be given on bulletin boards, through English classes and by the Library Committee.

Start thinking seriously now about the wonderful freedom that we all enjoy in being able to read WHEN, WHERE and WHAT we like!

Tales Out Of School

In a large family, the littlest boy was called "Little Man." After his first day of school, someone asked him if he had learned anything.

"Yep," he said.

"What was it?"

"I learned my name was John."

Endeavoring to teach her charges to think, a third-grade teacher was asking tricky questions. "Johnny," she said, "give me an example of 'nothing'."

Unhesitatingly, Johnny answered, "Nothing is a balloon with its skin off."

At the close of each school year, a fifth-grade teacher had her picture taken with her class.

One day she saw a student going through a stack of these old pictures.

"Are you looking for some of your friends?" she asked.

"No," the student answered, "I'm just trying to see which of your classes aged you the most."

The little kindergartener came home and proudly told her parents the class had learned Irving Berlin's beautiful "God Bless America." Then she proceeded to sing, in her clear little voice: "God bless America, land that I love; stand beside her, and guide her, through the night with a light from a bulb."

During a creative-writing class the teacher warned her students against ending sentences with prepositions.

A pupil then volunteered, "My little sister produced a classic last night. She asked my mother to bring a book to read to her, specifically mentioning one book she did NOT want. Absent-mindedly, Mother brought up that one, and Sis said, 'What did you bring that book I didn't want to be read to out of up for?'"

The class was studying Africa and when the teacher asked how ivory is used, one small boy excitedly held up his hand. "Most ivory," he said, "is used for soap."

A seven-year old on a TV program was asked if he had any sisters or brothers. "No," he said, "You see, I'm single."

The judges of a school essay contest felt one nine-year-old's composition on the subject of "Manners" had special merit and awarded him first prize. Here it is in full: "I have good manners. I say good night and good morning and hello and good-by, and when I see dead things lying around the house I bury them."

A youngster came home after his first day at school and proudly announced he had learned to write, backing up his statement with a gold star he had won for penmanship. "Goodness, darling," beamed his mother, "and on your first day. What were you writing?" The youngster said smugly, "Ones."

The small boy interrupted his father, who was reading the evening paper: "Pop, the boy said, 'I'm supposed to tell you there's going to be a small P.T.A. meeting tomorrow night.'"

"Well, if it's just a small one, do I have to go?" the father demanded.

"Oh, yes," his son replied, "It's just you, me, and the principal."

Modern father to teenage son: "Man, it's really cool outside. Get with it and dig that crazy snow."

During a class discussion on taxes, the lecturer asked Bobby to give an example of indirect taxes. "The dog tax," he replied.

"Why is that an indirect tax?"

"Because," answered Bobby, "The dog doesn't pay it."
