Tutorial Plan Really Tutors

By DELORES NORFLEET, NEWS WORKSHOP WRITER
The Tutorial Program which is under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Roscoe proves to be beneficial to all

The program is geared toward strengthening the University's freshmen and sophomores in subject areas where assistance is most needed; however, the program is open to all students. Voluntary enrollment is accepted by students who feel the need for tutorial assistance.

The aim of the program also is to repair and alleviate where possible the weakness and deficiencies of background culminated through elementary and secondary educational exposure.

Another function of the program is to strengthen the students' facility in the tool subjects through the supplementation of regular classroom instruction by individual and personal contact.

The Tutorial Program provides special individual and group counseling and orientation experiences. Tutees are selected on a voluntary basis. Student tutors are selected primarily from faculty recommendation; however, some tutors with exceptional academic records are selected. Student tutors are compensated in pay on an hourly basis.

According to Mrs. Roscoe, a report from last semester showed that seventy-five per cent of the students registered in the program progressed considerably.

All students who are having difficulties in subjects or need help in specific areas are urged to enroll in this program. It proves to be a success.

The Tutorial Program is located in the Learning Laboratory.

Placement Office on the Move

DELORES NORFLEET, NEWS WORKSHOP WRITER The Placement Office at FSU aims at providing all students with information concerning the expanding career opportunities which are now available. It also arranges interviews for graduating seniors with the many recruiters who came to our campus seeking graduates. Counseling is given to graduating seniors who do not seek employment immediately after graduation but wish to enroll in graduate school uation, but wish to enroll in graduate school.

The Placement Office assists dropouts who want to find meaningful employment. Assistance is given for summer and part-time employment.

This Office is under the direction of Mr. Milton Yarboro and is located in the basement of the Reading Laboratory. Mr. Yarboro stated, "All students should register at the Placement Office,"; it is quite classes began February 9, 1970 for the second semester in the University Studies Center. The orientation classes function as an aid to second semester freshmen in their independent living away from home. It aids students in making daily mental, moral, and phy-sical decisions for long range happiness and success in life.

Library Toured In Orientation

By DORETHA WATSON

The first class session began its start with an introduction by the in-structor, Mrs. Katherine Weber and an explanation of lab tests and helpful books available. A course of this type should be taken by every new student entering Fayetteville State University.

The freshmen orientation classes toured the Chestnut Library on February 16, to get acquainted with library procedures.

students were guided by Mrs. Kennedy, the Catalogue Librarian and Mrs. Hightower who works with periodicals. They listened to discussions on the techniques one uses when trying to locate different books on the shelves, and the order in which books are Films were labeled. shown on detailed analysis of how to find books, three kinds of cards in cataloguing symbols of alphabets, call numbers, restricted books, continuation cards, and the different colors for ordering and finding information in magazines.

This tour proved to be a very worthwhile one because efficient use of the part of a student's academic development.

FSU Prof Receives Rave Notices

Fayetteville-Harvey C. Jenkins, chairman, area of art, Fayetteville State University; has two works currently on display that are receiving rave notices. "Ippon Seui Nage" a bronze sculpture, is currently on exhibit at the Gallery of Contemporary Art, Winston Salem and was cited as "most unique" in its class.

The Winston Salem art center is fast becoming center is fast becoming the southeast's premier showcase for works by artists. They have had more pieces to copped national ribbons than any other cent in the last two years. The award - winning Jenkins also has "Freedom Now" a sculpture made of plaster, on exhibit at the North Carolina Museum of Art, Raleigh. It has also been cited and continues to capture the eye of view-Jenkins is active in the Fayetteville Art Guild and will have some art works on display at the upcoming Women's Club EXPO (71 in March.

"These days about the only thing you can be sure of geting for a nickel is five pen-

Employment Service Opens Here

By ANN BUSHROD, News Workshop Writer

News Workshop Writer
There is a new program underway on the FSU campus, "Student Employment Service." The office for this program is located in the basement of the University Studies Center building; Mr. Milton Yarborough is the director. The program has rector. The program has begun on a small scale, but according to Mr. Yarborough it will be in full swing by the fall - semester.

The "Student Employment Service" will atment Service" will attempt to provide many types of employment and placement will be possible, in some cases, in one's field of interest. It will attempt to provide employment to all invide employment to all interested persons who desire part-time, full-time and summer employment. The service will exhaust all possible means to procure employment for all interested parties.

F.A.O.Affords Many Aids

By ANN BUSHROD

News Workshop Writer The Financial Aid Off-ice of FSU has many programs to assist students in need of financial aid, according to Mr. Nixon, director of the Financial Aid Office. Some of the programs are: College Work Study, National Defense Student Loans, Education Opportunities Grants, State Programs (North Carolina State (North Carolina State Scholarships, College Work Aid, Guaranteed Loan Program). College Foundation Aid is recommended by the Financial Aid Office and determined from financial need. Fayetteville State University Grants and Aids versity Grants and Aids are also determined by financial need and are outright grants to the student.

"The scholarship program is often misunderstood", declares Mr. Nixon. "Money is not just for the asking, but is administered according to need-- the exceptions are academic scholarships and athletic scholarships; these stipulate perform-ance." The student must apply for aid at the Financial Aid Office.

FSU HISTORY PROF PUBLISHES BOOK

Fayetteville-Dr. Shia-Ling Liu, professor of history

"American Domestic and Foreign Policies in International Relations" is the title of the book and it came off the press in Talpei during December.

"The China Daily News", one of the nation's most prestigous dailies, reviewed the book in their December 27 edition and called tone of the most information.

ber 27 edition and called it one of the most informative publications in its area.

Dr. Liu's other publications include "History of Western Political Thought" and "International Relations". In addition, he is a syndicated columnist for the "China Daily News".

A native of Human, China, Dr. Liu holds a master's degree from the University of Cincinnati and a earned doctorate degree from North Texas State University.

His affiliations include Phi Delta Kappa, American Political Science Association, Southern Political Science Association, and the Association for Asian

FSU in Mid-Atlantic Conference

By VALERIE GRIER

News Workshop Writer Fayetteville State University participated in the Mid - Alantic Regional Conference of the Nation-al Student Volunteer Program sponsored by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The conference was hosted by Durham, North Casity, Dur rolina, February 27-28, 1970. It gathered representatives from schools in North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, and Pennsylvania.

The purpose of the conference was to provide an opportunity for an exchange of ideas and experiences on the devel-opment and operation opment and operation of student volunteer programs. It also offered the schools in attendance the opportunity to share programming ideas and techniques.

Representing FSU were ophia McIntyre and Sophia Brenda Pigford along with Miss D. Bradley.

Remember when $20 worth of groceries would hardly fit into the trunk of your car? Now it fits in the glove compartment. — Wm. R. Davis, Three Forks (Mont.) Herald.

Full Tuition Scholarships To Be Offered

Fayetteville State Unirayetteville State University will offer 100 full tuition scholarships to outstanding high school students who will be graduating in 1970.

Taylor E. Jones, Director of Admissions, and Harold Nixon, Director of Financial Aid, made the joint appropriement the joint announcement Monday. The grants will cover tuition, room and board, and materials.

This marks the greatest number of individual grants the University has ever offered and it is in keeping with general trends in education.

Nominees IOT grants must have a good prep academic average. possess special talents. and evidence of other outstanding promise as a university student, the university said. Also, a satisfactory score--math and verbal--on the College Entrance Examination Board Scholastic Aptitude Test is required.

Interested candidates may contact their high school guidance coun-selor or write to the Director of Admissions, Fayetteville State University.