

GROUND BREAKING AT FSU -- Chancellor Charles "A" Lyons, Jr., (third from left) initiates groundbreaking at FSU recently for two new buildings being erected on the campus.

GROUND BREAKING HELD FOR TWO MORE FSU BUILDINGS TOTALING OVER $1 MILLION

Just months after Chancellor Charles "A" Lyons, Jr., announced a $2.5 million academic building would begin construction on the Fayetteville State University campus, two more buildings will begin springing up immediately.

Chancellor Lyons led a host of FSU dignitaries, students, staff, faculty, and friends of the University in groundbreaking ceremonies on campus January 23 for a new $1.5 million dormitory and a $260,000 Continuing Education Building.

The buildings are designed by Fayetteville architects McMillian & McMillian.

The new dormitory is styled as an apartment complex in which the basic unit will accommodate ten students in four bedrooms. Each student will have a separate closet, chest and desk. Each unit will have two complete baths and a separate counter lavatory, a linen closet, a general storage closet, a living room-dining room-sized study, and storage space for trunks.

The first floor will include a lounge of approximately 1100 square feet facing outdoor terraces on two sides. Adjoining the lounge will be a meeting room or study area, storage facilities, washrooms and manager's office. A vending machine area and a student laundry and ironing facility will also be provided on the first floor.

The Continuing Education Building will be a one-story structure while the dormitory will be a three-story building.

The Continuing Education Building will consist of two wings, large central lobby, print shop, library, administrative offices, offices for secretaries, and numerous multi-purpose rooms.

Fayetteville State University already has a 2.5 million dollar classroom building under construction on the campus which is scheduled to be completed in September 1975.

The multi-million dollar building is named for the late FSU Board of Trustees Chairman, Dr. George L. Butler, a Fayetteville State alumnus who was also a prominent dentist and citizen of Fayetteville.

THE VOICE

VOLUME 29 NUMBER 14

JANUARY 31, 1975

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

Bulletin

On Monday night, January 27, the Fayetteville City Council voted against placing a maintenance headquarters across the street from Fayetteville State University. See February issue of THE VOICE for further details.

Read details in February's issue of THE VOICE

FSU Students Honor King's Birthday With March

A throng of Fayetteville State University students, led by student government president Tommie Mitchell and members of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity (Dr. Martin Luther King's Fraternity), commemorated the slain civil rights leader's birthday January 15 by marching from the Seabrook Auditorium to downtown Fayetteville.

At the downtown site on Hay Street, several local black leaders praised the late Atlanta-born minister and admonished that his works should not be forgotten.

King received many plaudits and honors during his lifetime which included the Nobel Peace Prize and was president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

He was killed by a sniper's bullet on April 4, 1968 in Memphis, Tennessee.

KING BIRTHDAY MARCH is led by FSU student government president Tommie Mitchell (with glasses extreme right) as they proceed from campus to downtown Fayetteville for a tribute to the late civil rights leader.

HAPPY 1975 TO ALL says lovely Renee Wilkins, a native of Rocky Mount, and a sociology major. Renee is active at FSU and participates in the dance group.

A REMINDER FROM THE VICE CHANCELLOR FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

YOU'RE STILL IN CLASS UNLESS...

In the past, many students have assumed that if they never attend a course for which they have registered, they would be dropped automatically. THIS IS WRONG! A student is considered a member of each class for which he has registered until he completes the course, officially drops the course or withdraws from the University.

Please be sure that you have been officially dropped from a course before you discontinue class attendance. In this connection, your attention is invited to the University Catalog, page 50, paragraphs 7 and 8 and page 51, paragraph 1.