

FSU HONORS TOP STATE LEGISLATORS ON CAMPUS MAR. 7

About 200 persons attended a dinner in the H. L. Cook dining hall at FSU March 7, honoring Sen. John Henley of Cumberland County, the president pro tem of the state Senate and House Speaker James Green of Bladen County.

The FSU planning task force, chaired by Ralph Potter, sponsored the event. The task force, initiated almost a year ago, is a voluntary citizens group that assists in planning for the University.

Dr. Charles "A" Lyons, Jr., Chancellor of the University told the audience that it was unusual for two legislative leaders such as Green and Henley to both come from the same area.

Dr. Lyons later presented the two men with plaques bearing the FSU seal. Henley and Green were also presented plaques honoring them for their service to their communities and to the state.

University of North Carolina President William Friday also received a plaque with the FSU seal from Chancellor Charles "A"

Lyons, Jr., and President Friday said that the University system and this campus are the beneficiaries of the concerns of these two men.

Earlier the two men were given a briefing on the building needs of the campus.

The needs include a new science building, a new health and physical education building and the restoration of a wing to the Butler academic center which was cut out because of insufficient funds.

Henley said that he felt some of FSU's needs would be given high priorities if the "state funds are better than what the Advisory Budget Commission anticipated" when it proposed the 1975-77 state budget.

Green said that after his tour of the campus: "Some of the buildings are old and need renovations or need replacing. How fast we will be to provide those needs, none of us know because of the uncertain economy and its effect on budget predictions."

"FSU is a viable unit" in the State's higher education system, Green said.
