

Avery County High School Students Visit WCC

The students of Avery County High School Food Service Program took a day off from their classes to visit us at WCC and find out about the programs here.

When they arrived Mac Warren talked to them about the college and gave them a tour of the campus. They then went to the John A. Walker Community Center and toured the facilities there. After the tours they ate lunch with the students of the Food Preparation II class and Dr. Holt. The Food Preparation students had prepared Emily's chicken, green beans almondine, glorified rice, and a tossed salad with strawberry pie for dessert.

Before leaving the campus, the students invited Chris Cheap to visit their facilities and to do a few demonstrations for their classes.

February 1986 Is For Community College Lovers

February 1986 is National Community College Month

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- February 1986 has been proclaimed NATIONAL COMMUNITY COLLEGE MONTH by President Ronald Reagan as a result of the October 22 signing of Senate Joint Resolution 158. The American Association of Community and Junior Colleges (AACJC) will host several national activities during February to enhance the public understanding and recognition of the nation's 1,221 community, technical, and junior colleges. In addition, local two-year colleges are being urged to join the national campaign to promote greater awareness of the value of the associate degree and celebrate NATIONAL COMMUNITY COLLEGE MONTH.

Senate Joint Resolution 158 and House Joint Resolution 125 were made possible by the AACJC/ Association of Community College Trustees (ACCT) Joint Federal Relations Commission, House sponsor Don Young (R-AK), and Senate sponsor Frank Murkowski (R-AK). "The unanimous support of the Congress and the presidential proclamation indicate the high regard with which community, technical, and junior colleges are held," emphasizes Dale Parnell, president of AACJC. "We continue to be America's college of opportunity for nearly five million credit and more than four million noncredit students each year. National Community College Month affords us the opportunity to better acquaint the public, employers, our educational colleagues in four-year institutions, and decision-makers with the mission and philosophy of two-year colleges."

Mr. Tony Randall

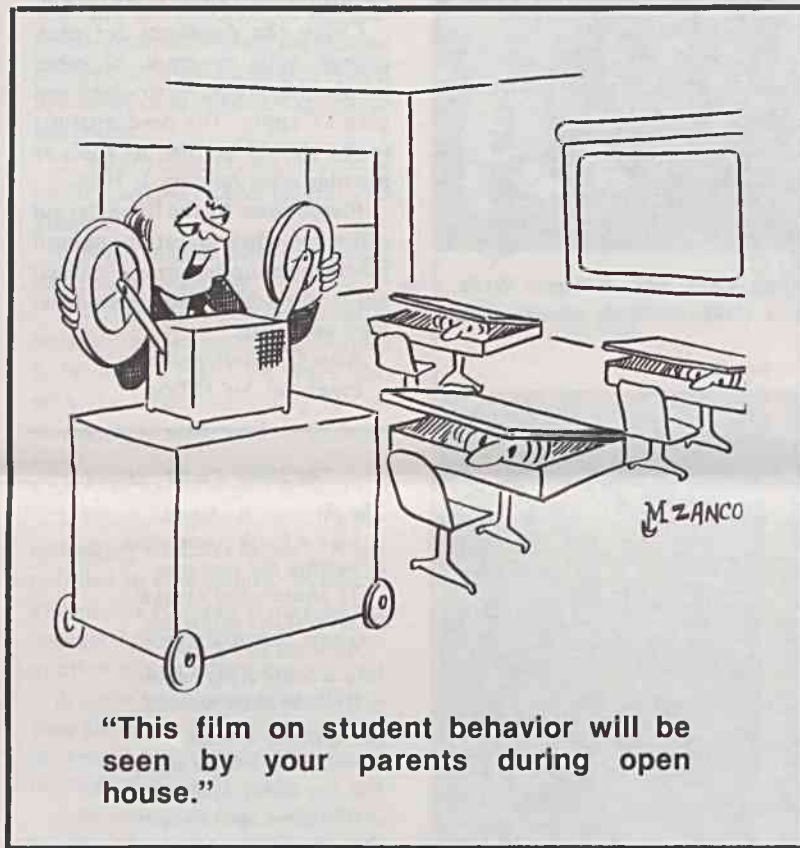

Message From The Dean

February has been proclaimed Community College month. We are proud of our System of Community Colleges in North Carolina. Of the fifty-eight institutions in the system, all are within the geographic and financial range of every citizen of the State.

Our technical and vocational programs offer the student choices in a variety of skill areas. Each institution is constantly searching for ways to improve program offerings to allow students to prepare to meet a changing industrial economy.

Beyond occupational education the Community Colleges reach out to serve the community in many other ways including Adult Basic Education with the new Plato computers to enhance learning; Human Resources Development helping put people back to work; and Small Business Centers helping thousands of small businesses in the State survive and prosper.

We believe that Wilkes Community College is an outstanding example of what a COMMUNITY College is. The College enjoys community support and an outstanding family of employees to make it a great place to work and learn.
