YEARBOOK STAFF ADVISOR RETIRES

Dr. Josephine Hendrix has taught for 40 years. Teaching has been her life. After 30 years at this college, and 10 years as a high school teacher, she has retired. Dr. Hendrix is currently living in Illinois for the summer. Dr. Hendrix has a husband, E.H., and two sons, Benny, of Raleigh, and Timothy, of Illinois. Her family has been wonderful in supporting her while she continued her education and in her many years of teaching. Over the years she has taught mathematics, physical sciences, physics, geology, and calculus. And if that is not enough, Dr. Hendrix has been heading up the newspaper and yearbook staff for the last 18 years. She also was the advisor of the Phi Theta Kappa organization of WCC. She has given this college many years of hard work.

Dr. Hendrix began her education in 1951 at Appalachian State University and received her undergraduate degree. She received her masters at UNC Chapel Hill in mathematics. She went on to do postgraduate work at Wake Forest University, Duke University, and the University of Virginia. Finally, she finished her education with a doctorate from the University of Southeast Nova, in Florida.

Dr. Hendrix would like to express her regret over leaving WCC from which she received great support over the years, with academic freedom and a great faculty and staff to work with. She will mostly miss her students, though. Her work with the Cougar Cry, the yearbook, and the Phi Theta Kappa has brought her close friendships with many students who still keep in touch with her. Dr. Hendrix says good-bye to her students and friends, and we say good-bye to her with great regret. Thank you, Dr. Hendrix for all your hard work and dedication to WCC. BP
