"A & J's" Critique of the New Cafeteria

By Josh Callaway

General Student Comments

Students who experienced the new cafeteria's service have felt almost overwhelmingly that it is a good establishment. Many have commented that they feel that the pleasant atmosphere has made up for any faults the cafeteria has. Many students feel that even though the prices are higher than the old cafeteria's, the great atmosphere, cleaner area, and friendly service have made up for it. Many students like the fact that the cafeteria is almost completely run by and for the students. This aspect makes them feel a little more spirit for their school.

Grievances

The new cafeteria has inconvenienced some people in that it is so far from the shop and Hayes Hall. They feel that it has decentralized the school and basically is inconvenient. Others feel that is unfair that they should have to foot the bill for someone's condiments which are provided by the cafeteria at no extra price, but the expense is distributed throughout the menu.

The Defense

The people who run the new cafeteria know that there will be some that feel uncomfortable with something new. They do appreciate the compliments. The inconvenience factor that the students have felt cannot be helped because they are basically fixed in their station in the student services building. They do not expect to charge the students for their condiments for convenience. They hope that over time that those who have to go a little farther or pay a little more will be appeased by the great atmosphere, fresh food, and cleaner friendly service.

"Personal Comments"

As a food service worker myself, I commend them for the convenient and efficient service. For those that feel that it is out of your way, look around the student center area. There is more to enjoy around you. You could, for instance, workout, watch TV, study, or catch that extra bit of sleep between school and work. After any of these activities, you may need to tank-up. So the cafeteria, being in the middle of all the action, brings the whole school together with food. The cafeteria is doing a great job with limited space and personnel. They do realize that they may need to improve. Therefore, they welcome your suggestions directly or put them in the suggestion box past the cash register.
