

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

It's hard to believe the year is slowly coming to a close. But, luckily, the end of the year does bring a fair amount of festivities -- luminaries, President Lambert's Holiday Party, and much more. It's a nice break from the stress of exam week, to say the least.

While there is an apparent shift in attitude when the holidays are around, this change doesn't hide the fact that college students still have a lot to do before Winter Break. We have five projects to complete, and we have exams to take. We have to finally purchase a plane ticket to that coveted study abroad destination. We are stressed.

College is supposed to hold some of the best times of our lives, and it does. But it's not often that we are warned about the tough stuff. The stress that, sometimes, gets so bad we need to talk to someone about it. This edition of The Edge not only investigates the thrills of the holiday season, but also takes a look at that tougher stuff that, often-times, we sweep under the rug.
