Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Last Thursday the young men who attended the Y. M. C. A. heard one of the most interesting talks of the year when Miss Julia White addressed the meeting on the subject, "Boards and Pins or the Sons of Merari."

Every ear was alert to be enlightened as to the meaning of the subject. The speaker began by referring us to the twelve tribes of Israel. From this she went to the manner in which the Israelites carried the ark from place to place. Each tribe was assigned a definite task in moving the ark. Some unrolled the various curtains which covered it, others took charge of the table for the shewbread, but the Sons of Merari were those must carry the boards which supported the ark and the heavy pins which held the tent. Besides being assigned the heaviest task they were forced to camp on the north side, and to be the last to leave and the first to arrive at camp.

The speaker drew a beautiful lesson from this fact, however, when she said, "there is no record where there was ever a complaint or a failure of duty on the part of these men." Even though their's was the hard task, they never murmured but showed the others that they were real men.

So may we in college life prove our manhood. If our task is in any way similar to that of the sons of Merari let us be even as they were, men enough to meet it without shirking.

WEBSTERIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

A very interesting debate was heard in the Websterian hall last Friday night, when the following question was discussed: Resolved that the members of the cabinet should have a seat in Congress with the right of discussion only. J. H. Beeson and R. J. Yow were on the affirmative, while D. E. Smith and F. H. Mendenhall spoke on the negative. The subject was well discussed. The judges, however, favored the negative.

The second number on the program was a humorous declamation given by Charles Carrol. The speaker kept the hearers in a continuous laughter the entire time.

I. G. Hinshaw, who served as critic for the evening, gave a brief but splendid report.

A word of encouragement should be said for the new men. They are beginning to get interested in genuine society work and some are working earnestly. The program for next meeting, open for new men only, is expected to be one of the best of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Willingham were to see Misses Vira Clodfelter and Amy Stone Sunday afternoon.

LITERARY CLUB.

At the regular meeting of the Literary Club, March 29, the following program was given:

The Antigone—story of the drama and the character of Antigone, Miss Julia S. White. The real issue of the drama is the struggle between obedience to the gods or to human authority. In Antigone herself one sees a strong human will based upon moral convictions dashing itself against human laws. She believes the laws of the gods are to be obeyed rather than those of men.

The chorus in the Antigone, Miss Pauline White. One sees in this drama of Sophocles a chorus which assists in the dramatic development of the tragedy at the same time adding beauty and charm. Miss White sketched briefly the themes of the six choruses.

The theme which underlies the plot of the Antigone in both Greek and Roman literature, Dr. L. L. Hobbs. Sophocles gives an exhibition of the laws of Greece respecting burial. Dr. Hobbs then read selections from other writers to illustrate the Greek and Roman idea of the laws of burial.

ZATASIAN SOCIETY NOTES.

At the regular meeting of the Zatasian Literary Society on the evening of March 24, the following new officers were installed: Grace Taylor, president; Mary Ella Copeland, secretary; Fern Highfill, marshal. The meeting of the society was cut short on account of the Peace contest immediately following.

At our last meeting the following programme was given:

Instrumental Solo—Amy Stone.
Debate, Resolved that it is better to put criminals in prison for life than to electrocute them. Affirmative, Eulalia Motsinger, Vaner Neece; negative, Clarice Newlin, Alta Lindley.

The Widow Deconbed's Poetry—Beulah Cranford.

Newspaper—Sara Richardson.

On the whole the programme was good. The performers showed preparation, ability, and wit.

The judges, Misses Sullivan, Crutchfield, and Pike, gave their decision in favor of the negative.

The committee appointed to arrange for the improvement contest reported the names of five girls who wished to enter the contest.

After some points of both specific and general criticism, the society adjourned.

Mrs. Charles Tebbetts and daughter, Edith, visited at the college Thursday.

R. J. Yow spent Sunday in High Point attending the Baraca-Philathea county convention.
