The football team has made no great record. Yet we are not discouraged. Inexperience played a great part in our team this fall. We had not even one experienced player on the team, but we have a foundation and we must see that the frame work is built of seasoned timber. Players are not coming to Guilford if we sit idly by and merely wait for them. We must go search the high schools and show the young fellow who wants to play football during his college career what we have and what we are going to do. There is not a moment's time to delay. Why isn't Guilford able to offer scholarships to worthy students, students who cannot only preach but students who can represent the college in bloody battles on the gridiron? We must compete with the other colleges if we wish to be recognized as a college. Thus, when every other college is giving some special inducement to the well-rounded high school graduate how are we going to hold our own if we wait until the dish has been passed to other colleges to be at last set before our plate with even the bones made into hash in the passing. It is time to open our eyes and shake off this sleep. We need more men with red blood flowing in their veins and who can kick the life out of a pigskin and ram like a battering ram instead of these puny beings who can hardly kick the ashes off a cigarette duck! BIBLICAL SEMINAR DISCUSSES CHURCH PROBLEMS.

The Biblical Seminar held its regular bi-weekly meeting Monday evening, October 16th. Prof. Brinton opened the discussion on church problems.

"Formerly," he said, "the church was controlled by the state but now it had to shift for itself. In modern times it has been subjected to a great deal of criticism for its apparent lack of drawing power and it is our business to see whether this criticism is justified and to suggest remedies." Changes in method, the introduction of novelties, different kinds of sermons, different styles of architecture, the influence of unbelief, the use of popular language, denominational rivalry, the substitution of newspapers and magazines for sermons, Sunday recreations, etc., were the subjects he discussed and their relation to the main problem brought out. In conclusion Prof. Brinton said, "The average man is interested in the problems of the human soul. How are we going to reach him." In the discussion following some interesting points were brought out. The Seminar is glad to welcome as members D. S. Cameron, D. E. Smith, J. G. Reddick, C. M. Macon and I. T. Valentine.

ORGANIZATION OF STUDENT MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION.

On the evening of September 19th, in company with President Newlin as leader, eleven young men formed themselves into an organization known as the Student Ministerial Association of Guilford College. The following officers were elected and installed: Leslie H. Barrett, president; Charles B. Shelton, secretary and treasurer. These meetings are to be held bi-weekly. On the evening of October 3rd President Newlin gave us a helpful talk on the call to the ministry and what it means. On the evening of the 17th of October Luby Casey led in a discussion on "Why Am I Preparing for the Ministry." It is the hope of the charter members of this organization that it will continue through years to come, helping and strengthening all those who are preparing for the ministry.

LIBRARY SECURES BIBLE ENCYCLOPAEDIA.

The college has recently received as a gift from our friends, Professor John W. Woody and Mary C. Woody, the International Standard Bible Encyclopaedia in five well bound volumes. These books contain the best and most recent investigations of the ripest scholarship in Europe and America. About two hundred authors contribute to this work. This set of books will be found to be very useful to all students, and especially to those taking the Bible courses. The gift is much appreciated. These volumes are issued by the Howard-Severance Company of Chicago.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

This week Miss Bessie Field conducted prayer meeting. She spoke on the subject of consecration. "We may be Christians," began the leader, "and still not have a deep sense of consecration. We want our bodies to be living sacrifices to God. There are two ways of following Christ; first we may follow him at a distance, but then the second and best way is to follow Him as a personal Savior—to be His love slave."

"We want to let God plan our lives," she continued, "for we want to know His perfect love. When we give ourselves to Him we want to forget the past. If we trust Him, He will carry our burdens."

Miss Field concluded the service by reading the beautiful little poem, "The Path of Obedience."

The girls are beginning work on the annual Y. W. C. A. play. Several who took part in last year's play will play important roles this year in "The Virginia Heroine." Quite a number of new girls have been fortunate enough to be selected also. With these, it is very likely that this year's play will eclipse all its predecessors.

The Y. W. C. A. store is still a paying investment. The girls patronize it morning, noon and night.

Probably the most talked of feature of Y. W. C. A. work now is the announcement of the approaching bazaar. The bazaar is to be planned and given by the girls some time in December. It is to be patronized by both boys and girls and half of the proceeds is to go to the Y. M. C. A. building fund. A fuller description of this will appear later.

Last week the Associations News committee began a campaign for subscribers to the Association monthly. Several girls subscribed.

Quite a number of the Guilford students attended "The Birth of a Nation" which was given at Greensboro Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Among the students going to see Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" were: Messrs. Hinshaw, Newlin, Cameron, White, Bulla, Reece, Moore, Smith, Stuart, Shelton, Tomlinson, Willard and Townsend, and Misses Pike, Highfill, Speas, Lewallen and Armstrong.
