QUAKERS HAVE RUNAWAY

Defeat Lenoir in a Lopsided Contest
—Game Good in Spots.

On Saturday evening the Crimson and Gray added another victory to her list, when she on her own floor triumphed over Lenoir College in a one-sided game of basketball by the count of 67 to 18. The Quakers were entirely too fast, in every department of the sport, for the visitors and hence the locals scored at will.

The visitors were first to record a field goal, and due to their close pursuit of and careful gathering around the ball, all at once, for the first few minutes of play, held the home team at bay. After a short period of such playing, Guilford solved the problem as to how to extricate the ball from the mass of players and from then onward, like a trained wind storm, whirled the ball around the visitors and in an easy and precise manner pocketed the sphere repeatedly. No less than fourteen field goals were thrown in the first duration of twenty minutes, the score standing at the close of this period 29 to 12. Not satisfied with such a lead, and being invigorated by the enthusiastic loyal yelling and singing of the student body, the Crimson and Gray after ten

WEBSTERIANS IN NEW HOME.

Several Old Webs Present at Housewarming.

The first meeting of the Websterian Literary Society in its new hall was held Friday night. President Hinshaw called the meeting to order. Mr. A. J. Smith was appointed critic.

The question, Resolved, That Congress should pass a law requiring all labor disputes to be submitted to a board of arbitration, was ably argued. Messrs. R. Arthur Lineberry and Robert H. Frazier advanced the affirmative. These explained compulsory arbitration, showing it to be practical and just. The negative was upheld by Messrs. J. Dewey Dorsett and D. D. Shields Cameron, who proved compulsory arbitration to be opposed to American principles and that it would be impracticable when put into effect. The literary program was closed by a very well delivered humorous declaration by Mr. Paul V. Fitzgerald. The judges decided in favor of the negative in the debate.

After the program several speeches were made expressing pleasure at being in the new hall. Dr. C. O. Meredith and Coach R. S. Doak, both old Websterians, spoke. Dr. Meredith emphasized the fact that the Websterians were in the nicest place that they had ever been housed. The entire society was favorably impressed with the new hall and this sense of pleasure at having a new home will cause superior society work. The meeting was closed by a constructive critic's report.

CLAYS ENTERTAIN THE ZATASIANS

ABLE PRESENTATION OF LINCOLN'S CHARACTER AND ACHIEVEMENTS FOLLOWED BY ENJOYABLE SOCIAL TIME.

Friday evening, February 9, one of the most brilliant social events of the year, took place when the members of the Zatasian Literary Society were the guests of honor at a reception given by the Henry Clay Literary Society.

E. B. CARROLL
President of the Henry Clay Literary Society

It was not lacking in any of the three things essential to an enjoyable occasion — the anticipation of, the realization of, and the memory of. For a whole week the Zatasians had been anticipating an evening with the Clays. From the moment they entered the door of the beautiful Society Hall, they began to realize the pleasures and now they are feasting their minds on the memory of the happy occasion.

The Henry Clays were fully equal to their reputation as excellent hosts and gave to the Zatasians a royal reception.

The elegant Society Hall was tastefully decorated with pennants of the two societies and with white carnations.

For the space of a few minutes the meeting was given over to the chaplain, I. T. Valentine, after which the literary program was rendered. The program was in commemoration of that beloved statesman so dear to all—Abraham Lincoln.

Again there was brot to mind his noble deeds, his beautiful character, his unparalleled devotion to his principles of right.

In listening to the debate so ably argued by E. R. Moore and A. I. Newlin, the audience was made to see his wisdom and shrewdness as a politician. The declamation, "Lincoln at Gettysburg," given by Sherry White, enabled all to realize his power as an orator, and "The Tribute to Lincoln" by W. Mitchell increased the reverence for his nobleness. Then, hearing of "Lincoln as a Man" so uniquely and ably presented by J. P. Garner, brought a realization of the great and unselfish deeds he did which have influenced and blessed future generations.

The tribute given Lincoln by Ed. B. Carroll increased in the hearts of his hearers the desire for present day rail splitters, whose ideals are as honest and pure as those of the hero of long ago.

After Society adjourned, each had got a lassie and everybody wended their way to Founders Hall. Here again tasty decorations in green and white were used.

Delicious refreshments, consisting of cream and cake, coffee and mints was served.

MISS ETHEL M. SPEAS
President of the Zatasian Literary Society
The merry chatter, the cheery laughter betrayed the fact that everybody was happy, and when the time to depart came everybody lingered as long as possible, regretting that such an enjoyable occasion must now be only a memory.

GUILFORD WELL REPRESENTED

Miss Ayer and Miss White attended the meeting of the Greensboro Chapter of the Southern Association of College Women on Friday last. Miss Ayer in her capacity as president presided in a very effectual manner. An interesting program was reported.

REV. TOWNSEND ADDRESSES STUDENTS.

Rev. F. L. Townsend, of Reidsville, addressed the student body at collection last Friday morning. He called Guilford a "man factory" and told in an interesting manner, illustrated by apt illustrations, what it meant to be a man.

GUILFORD TO DEBATE A. & M.

First Inter-Collegiate for Guilford Scheduled For Saturday Evening at the Normal.

The first inter-collegiate debate in which Guilford has participated will be held next Saturday evening in the auditorium of the Students' building at the State Normal College in Greensboro, A. & M. College being the institution with which we lock horns. The query for the discussion is "Resolved, That the Federal Government should own and operate the Inter-State Railways, constitutional-ity being waived." The forensic encounter bids fair to draw a large crowd in view of the fact that Guilford and A. & M. both have large followings in Greensboro coupled with the interest being manifested in the debate at the Normal. Another factor which is calculated to increase the interest in the event is the fact that the same subject is being used as the query in the State High School Debating Union.

Guilford will be represented in the discussion by Rhessa L. Newlin and I. T. Valentine with Robert Frazier as alternate. The Guilford team while uninitiated in inter-collegiate debating is not untrained in the art, having had considerable experience in class debates. The Quaker representatives are putting the final touches on their work and will be ready for the fray when the first speaker is called. A. & M. has chosen her most experienced and ablest debaters in their desire to secure the decision, David H. Coltrane and W. K. Scott being selected by the Raleigh institution. These men were successful in vanquishing Alabama Polytechnic Institute last year and of course are desirous of administering the same medicine to Guilford. But Valentine and Newlin are both vigorously opposed to government ownership of railroads and do not propose to allow A. & M. to dictate to Uncle Sam as to the advisability of such a proposition if it is in their power. Anyway, there is to be a real contest at the Normal next Saturday evening and most of the Guilford students will be there to give their loyal support to the standard bearers of the Crimson and Gray. Quite a number of Alumni have also expressed themselves as expecting to be present, so the total number of Guilfordians ought not to be negligible.

And the Normal—of course she has been most considerate. Besides contributing the auditorium, the Normal Debating Council has planned a social hour for the debaters and their committees. (Incidentally quite a number of applications for membership on the Guilford Council have just been filled.) The evening will be worth the while and no Guilfordian can afford to miss it.
