

GREENSBORO SECRETARY SPEAKS AT Y. W. C. A.

Miss Evelyn White Describes Association Work in the City—Girls
Subscribe $25.00.

The girls were glad to have Miss Evelyn White, general secretary of the City Association work in Greensboro, at the last meeting.

Miss White first spoke of the organization of the city work—how it consists of the employed staff and volunteer workers. She emphasized the facts that the work is not charitable, but philanthropic, that it is not first of all slum or rescue work but preventive and like all such institutions should not be self-supporting.

The speaker divided the work into ten departments and spoke briefly on each department in the following order: Educational, religious work, social, physical, recreation, industrial, employment, travelers' aid, boarding home, girls' work.

Speaking of the educational work she said that the Association was not just for working girls who had scarcely any advantages, but that the Association tries to meet the demands of all the women in the city—for instance, the Association offers classes in Spanish, French and music.

Miss White said that the religious work is done principally through Bible study; but that it had been found that practical demonstration in the gymnasium and social work means more in influencing the life of girls. The purpose of the Association is then to develop girls and women physically, mentally and spiritually.

Miss White gave as the requisites of a good secretary, refinement, tact, a sense of humor, the Association spirit and above all a knowledge of Christ as her personal Savior.

J. H. BEESON LEADS Y. M. C. A.

"Four Reasons For the Christian Life."

In the Y. M. C. A. meeting held last Thursday night J. H. Beeson gave four fundamental reasons why every one should be a Christian.

First, "we cannot escape it" for no matter where a person goes he cannot entirely get away from it, or in short "society has destined that we become Christians."

The second reason was that "it embodies the best of life." No one can be a Christian unless he renders to God his very best services.

A third reason for the living of this great life is "its influence upon men has been seen." Wherever Christianity abides reforms of various kinds are introduced. Each man helps his neighbor to live a straight, upright life.

Last of all, "one should be a Christian just for the good it does him." "No one can be a self-made man" because the course one pursues must and does affect the lives of those around him. In other words "we are heirs of ages of Christian influence" and consequently each one helps to mould the character of his fellow-man.

ful theory but we are here to face facts, not theory." This attitude was maintained by both of Guilford's representatives in the rejoinders and the political dangers inherent in the federalization of the railways were made perfectly obvious by Valentine and Newlin. Valentine kept the audience laughing and applauding during his entire rejoinder. His quaint and tremendously effective attack on the plan of the affirmative was overwhelming.

The rebuttal offered by the affirmative was comprehensive but somewhat lacking in effectiveness. D. Kerr Scott made an eloquent appeal centering his attack on the theory of the negative that public control would destroy individual initiative. The stronger rebuttal was made by D. S. Coltrane, however, who made a terrific effort to disestablish the entrenched arguments of the Quakers. He reiterated the contention that the plan proposed by the affirmative was free from the objections urged by the negative, but the doubt as to the expediency and equity of the proposed plan had been so well established by the negative that the judges rendered their decision in favor of the Guilford representatives.

The judges for the evening were the Right Honorables W. P. Bynum, E. D. Broadhurst and G. S. Bradshaw, all of the Greensboro bar.

The alternates in the debate were Robert Frazier for Guilford and S. Schenck Cline for A. & M.

After the announcement of the decision by Professor W. C. Jackson, Dean of the Normal College, and president of the debate, a reception was extended to the visitors. The Normal College orchestra furnished the music for the occasion and the many other services rendered by the Normal authorities were powerful factors in making the event a notable one. Certainly the gratitude of Guilford and A. & M. Colleges is due the State Normal.

A large number of Guilford Alumni were present for the debate, easily the largest number of Alumni collected since the last annual meeting. They were not disappointed, either, at the outcome and a larger number should be present next year to give their support to the Quaker representatives in the coming forensic contests.

CLAYS DEBATE WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

At the regular meeting of the Henry Clay Society Friday night the question for debate was: Resolved, That the women of the United States should have equal suffrage with men. Messrs. Fox, Braxton and Moore advanced the affirmative, while Messrs. Townsend, Doughton and Hussey defended the negative. The judges rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative. Mr. Gentry then gave an interesting reading entitled "A Little More Time."

most every time and registered four field goals. Reece's phenomenal ability to perfect foul goals, coupled with Massey's inability to find the basket during the first half was a large factor in Davidson's victory. Both teams guarded closely and consistently.

Guilford Outclassed by Statesville Club.

After having played Davidson on the Statesville floor and spending Saturday as hosts of Statesville and the Statesville Female College, the Crimson and Gray quintette, on Saturday evening suffered a greater defeat than on the previous evening at the hands of the strong and fast Statesville Athletic Club aggregation to the tune of 26 to 52. The Statesville team was entirely too strong for the small Guilford five, however the game was more exciting and thrilling than the score might indicate. The locals had a decided advantage over Guilford in the first half, the score standing 15 to 22.

In the beginning of the second frame the Crimson and Gray team seemed to find themselves and due to a sudden spurt, tied the score, pocketing seven points before the locals were aware of the fact. However the Statesville five awaking to the situation, started an outburst which resulted in twelve field goals before Guilford could check the onslaught.

Statesville exhibited good defensive as well as offensive work. Holden. Statesville's stellar forward, registered thirteen field goals. He was able to pocket goals at any time, seemingly, from any position on the floor. Massey, Guilford's sturdy guard, played a good game, covering practically the entire floor. Also Smith played stellar ball, while Jones did some very clever passing. Guilford. Position. Statesville.
