Y. W. C. A. CLOSES SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Pretty Ceremonies at Installation of New Officers.

Last Thursday evening a most beautiful and impressive initiation service ushered in the officers and cabinet members of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year. There was an element of sadness in the displacement of those who for so long have borne the responsibility of the Association work, and as the girls of the class of '17 rendered final reports of their official service, which is now a part of the history of our local Association, a feeling of genuine regret at their departure struggled with a feeling of true thankfulness for the influence and helpfulness of their comradeship.

In the first part of the service each member of last year's cabinet gave a

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS CONTEND FOR MEDAL

Jamestown's Representative Wins the Prize.

Last Saturday evening the second declamation contest for High School girls was held in Memorial Hall under the auspices of the Philomathean and Zatasian Literary Societies.

Miss Hazel Armstrong, president of the Philomathean Society, presided. Miss Ethel Speas, president of the Zatasian Society, acted as chief marshal. Dr. Newlin welcomed the contestants.

The judges, Prof. Farlow, Miss Pauline White and Mrs. Davis, rendered their decision in favor of the representative from Jamestown, Miss Treva Ward. Before delivering the medal, Prof. Farlow commended the work of each contestant and urged every girl to strive for a college education.

Miss Williamson and Mr. Paul Fitzgerald rendered the well-received musical selections. Mr. Fitzgerald was especially effective in his encore.

The numbers of the program came in the following order:

Fleda Kearns, Farmer—"Tom-mie's Prayer."

Mabel Whittington, McLeansville—"The Dynamiter's Daughter."

Martha Nicholson, Friendship High School, Burlington—"The Old Wife's Kiss."

Vera Paschal, Siler City—"How Ruby Played."

Freida Byrd, Summerfield—"As the Moon Rose."

Song—"Last Night"—Kjerulf—Paul V. Fitzgerald.

Stella Slate, Mountain View High School, Mizpah—"Malebran and the Young Musician."

Evelyn Burt, Biscoe—"The Barrel of Soft Soap."

Treva Ward, Jamestown—"Aunt Sophronia Taber at the Opera."

Pauline Dawson, Bessemer High School, Greensboro—"The St. John's Fund."

Piano—A la Bien-aimee—Lillie Williamson.

Song—A Sailor's Chanty—Paul V. Fitzgerald.

The Haverford Game.

In the first game on the local diamond, and the second contest with Haverford, on Monday, Guilford won from the Quaker rivals by the score of 7 to 1. The fray was characterized by steady and consistent pitching and erratic fielding.

Zachary held the Pennsylvania Quakers to two hits, and struck out eight in eight frames. Buzby also twirled a good game, but was given poor support by his team-mates. He yielded six hits and sent five hitters to the bench with a saddened face.

Guilford began the game by scoring in the first frame, when Garner reached the initial sack on an error by Hayes, was advanced on a fielder's choice, and scored on a wild pitch. Six more tallies were added—two in each the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. The couple in the fourth being annexed by a series of errors and wild pitches. The pair in the fifth being secured on a single coupled with errors, while the final couplet was secured on a combination of three singles in rapid succession.

Newlin connected with a fast one in the seventh round for a three sacker to deep center, but was thrown out at the plate in an attempt to stretch it into a homer.

Aside from the splendid twirling of Zachary, Marlette featured the game with the "willow" by driving out two singles and a double in five trips to the plate.

Haverford obtained her lone tally in the seventh frame on Cochran's Texas leaguers, an error and a bingle by Gilmore.

The Lenoir Game.

In a game fraught with erratic playing Guilford defeated Lenoir College by a score of 7 to 0 in the third game of the season, last Wednesday afternoon.

The game, at first, began to look like a succession of strikeouts. Both pitchers were working in good style. Guilford began her scoring in the first frame, when Massey drove a clean one to center for a single, went to second on errors, stole third and scored on a wild throw.

Marlette in the same inning was walked, went to second on an error, came to third on a wild pitch and home on another error.

In the fourth, H. Fritz, for the visitors made a beautiful shoe-string stab in center. Plyler, the pitcher for the Lutherans, was pitching a consistent game all the while, but had ragged support.

Guilford resumed the run making in the fifth. Reddick went to first on a clean drive to left. Ballinger looked four bad ones over and walked thereby advancing Reddick to second. An error put Garner on first thus chucking the bags with runners.

At this juncture Massey came forth with a smashing two-bagger to center, scoring Ballinger and Reddick and putting Garner on third. Marlette next up, reached first on an error, again filling the sacks. It was then that Duncan produced a triple which scored the three men, but he was called out for failing to toe second. The balance of the game was very mediocre, nothing exciting occurring.

The locals played errorless ball, fielding cleanly and fast. Massey featured with the "willow," securing two hits out of four trips to the plate. Murchinson, who had been hurling a great game, was relieved by Finch in the sixth and he maintained the high standard of box work which has characterized Guilford's pitchers this season.

Websterians and Philomatheans Attend Senate

Exciting Filibuster Staged at Successful Reception.

The time was Friday evening, March 30th; the place was the U. S. Senate chamber; the persons were members of the Philomathean and Websterian Literary Societies; the occasion was the 64th session of Congress assembled for the consideration of the Armed Neutrality Bill.

But thereby does not hang the tale. In truth this story spoils in the telling, for who having been transplanted by a magic wand to a Senate chamber, can tell you, who were not under that spell, what really happened?

To find themselves suddenly in the presence of senatorial oratory and governmental proceedings was quite startling to modest North Carolina maidens of secluded life who have not yet the suffrage bee in their bonnets, but to find there Senators La Follette and Stone actually engaged in a filibuster was really overwhelming.

The first speech was made by Senator Owen, who strongly resembled our own famous orator, Ralph Yow. This speech was so convincing in its argument that every spectator felt that there was no ground for contention that we should not be armed always and at all times against invaders. Indeed so forceful was his speech and that of his colleague, Senator Overman, whom the Philomatheans thot strikingly like Robert Frazier, that they one and all became convinced of the necessity of certain resolutions in favor of protection to be attached to the bill under consideration.

Imagine the amazement when Senator Stone rose to oppose the rash measures for which this bill provided. His style of humor so much resembled Joe Reddick's own inimitable brand that one might have thot it to be Joe himself. As his speech, which included a plea for the strict observance of George Washington's birthday (?) and a demand for protection against Cupid's darts when directed against Uncle Sam's loyal subjects, proceeded, the Senate grew quite restless. It became very evident that he meant to draw out his words in linked argument until the clock should sound the hour of 12—the hour of final adjournment. At length he was overcome by the very intensity of his zeal and despite the loud and clamorous efforts of his opponents to gain the floor his supporter Senator La Follette, whose dignity could be compared only to that of Ira Hinshaw, succeeded in being recognized by Vice-President Henry Beeson "Marshall." Thereupon ensued such a storm as has seldom been witnessed, even by the prison type of suffragettes. Distracted pages flew hither and thither, feet and chairs mixed violently and general disorder reigned. But as the clock struck 12 the shouts and de-
