In the light of some recent observations it has been suggested that a course in the rudiment of courtesy might profitably be added to the curriculum of more than one educational institution. Certainly there seems to be a tendency on the part of some college students to assume liberties and privileges which even a slight degree of culture would not sanction.

Nowhere is this regard for the rights and feelings of others, or the lack of such kindly consideration more evident than in the general conduct of a visiting athletic team. The fact that a student is an athletic representative of his particular college gives this student no warrant to disregard and disobey all the rules of the colleges visited, and of good breeding as well.

To be more specific: The necessities of the case make it imperative that a library shall be used for quiet reading and study rather than an exhibition of one's ability as a conversationalist.

It is neither just nor fair that girls be compelled to submit to a patrol of unknown young men around their dormitories, and to be obliged to run the gauntlet between ranks of fun-poking visitors. It would seem that a proper amount of self-respect, if nothing more, might make such a condition impossible.

Other instances might be cited, but they would grow long in the telling. Suffice it is to say that institutions of learning may differ a great deal, but the fundamentals of courtesy and kindness are the same the world over and were long ago given a most excellent summary in the Golden Rule.

GUILFORDIANS MEET IN VIRGINIA

At the last quarterly meeting of Friends held at Corinth near Ivor, Va., October 20 and 21, two or three Guilfordians, seeing so many former Guilford students, called for a short reunion during the noon hour on Sunday.

Twenty-four met for a few minutes, two others were at meeting during the day and at least three more the preceding day. They include students of New Garden Boarding School at irregular intervals from 1866, and of the College almost without interruption from the time its charter was granted, to the present.

Among them are both quarterly meeting clerks, one monthly meeting clerk, several elders, overseers and Sunday school teachers, and some of the leading members of all the particular meetings in the quarter. Twelve are or have been grade or high school teachers, two won the Bryn Mawr scholarship; one is soon to sail for France to join the Reconstruction Unit there; and one is judge of the Juvenile Court in Richmond.

We were interested in noting that three of the old students were also grandchildren and three great-grandchildren of New Garden Boarding School. While in the families of the old students there, there are twenty-three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren of the institution.

Many spoke warmly of their love for their Alma Mater and all joined in sending to the college loving greetings; grateful appreciation for the lofty ideals fostered in us there; and the hope that Guilford's high standard may never be lowered. The list of those present follows:

Martha J. Harris Raiford, 1866-8; Josephus Byrd, 1881; Mary Cox White, 1882-5; Joseph L. Hare, 1891-2; Sue J. Farlow Raiford, class '92; Eva Scott, 1895; Hunter D. Raiford, 1895; Bertha White Babb, class '97; Charles E. Raiford, 1900; Linnie Raiford Neave, class '01; Joseph Brown, 1901-2; John Bradshaw, 1901-2; J. Hoge Ricks, class '05; Miriam Byrd Jones, 1905-6; Richard E. Bristow, 1906-7; Allen J. Neave, 1907-8; Mabelle Raiford, class '08; George W. Bradshaw, class '08; Julia Raiford Urquhart, 1908-09; Isaac White; Mary R. White, class 1910; Janie P. Brown, class 1911; Teacy Beaman, class 1913; Exum White, 1912-13; Emerson Raiford, ex-'15; Cecil F. Cloud, 1914-15; Leonard Byrd, 1916-'17; Bonnie M. Barnes, 1916-17; Ellen T. Raiford, class 1918.

NEW GARDENSENIORS ENTERTAIN

A Salamagundi Proves to Be a Most Delightful Affair.

On last Wednesday evening the Seniors of New Garden Hall, Addie Morris, Bernice Pike, Totten Moton and Gertrude Cronk announced themselves at home to the members of the class of '18.

The invitations bade us come to a "Harvest Salamagundi," and conjecture ran high as to just what a "Salamagundi" might be. But this "mixture," as Mr. Webster defined the unknown term, proved to be a most pleasant one.

Soft light and brilliantly colored foliage had transformed New Garden lobby into a scene which suggested autumn at its best, and the warm hospitality of the hostesses amply made up for the chilly atmosphere outside.

Upon arrival each guest had the name of some eminent person pinned on his or her back, and was told to ask any questions whatever concerning the person except the name. After much questioning in every quarter each guest at length succeeded in determining the name in the rear.

But our ingenious hostesses were not content, that we should let our wits rest there. We were immediately set to work again—this time on the most delightful task of supplying the missing words in a love story. As this was to be done with the names of trees and shrubs we had also a splendid chance to display our knowledge (or ignorance) of botany. Prof. Brinton seemed best versed in this science and was presented a col-knowledge. Just here a bunch of (ice cream) grapes, and cake refreshed those wholection of poems for his superior had toiled in vain, as well as the vic-

Of course the evening would not have been complete without a dip into the future of each Senior, and Gertrude Cronk as fortune teller brought joy and sorrow mixed in her marvelous revelations. But Totten Moton as assistant revealer cheered some downcasts up a bit, and we all came away hoping that the future at least had another "Harvest Salamagundi" in store for each of us. For indeed this type of entertainment becomes most pleasant on intimate acquaintance.

Besides the class of '18, those present were: Prof. Edwards, Prof. Brinton, Miss Osborne, Coach Doak and Miss Dix.
