

NINE LIVES SAVED.

Science For Once Grows Sentimental.

In these days when life is held so cheaply it is gratifying to learn that feminine wiles have saved another victim from an unmerited death. A certain cat well known for its unblemished character and regular habits was captured recently by the Biology Department. Prof. Rogers acting as judge, jury, council for the prosecution and executioner condemned the cat to death. When the news became known great indignation was expressed. New Garden cried out with one voice "Curfew shall not ring tonight." A well-known cat fancier of Founders quoted the famous lines:

"Ding dong bell,
Pussy's in the well,
Rogers go to, the same place."

A meeting was held and plans matured for swearing out a writ of "habeas corpus." Both force and law however finally gave way to strategy. A delegation was sent to the death chamber to announce that the cat belonged to a certain lady member of the faculty. Mr. Rogers either thru chivalry or thru fear of the supposed owner granted full pardon and released his prisoner. He is said to be somewhat confused by the fact that the cat has renewed its nomadic habits far from its fair protector.

WINSTON HIGH

pace of the first two quarters and neither was in danger of scoring. The quarter closed with the pigskin in Winston's possession on her 30-yard line.

In the last quarter a strong offensive was uncorked by the scrubs, which placed the ball on Winston's 35-yard line where Barnard made a beautiful attempt at goal. The ball, however, struck the cross bar. After an exchange of punts, Marlette forced Kirk outside on Winston's 35-yard line. After another exchange of punts Crute made a brilliant dash over the scrubs left tackle and placed the ball just forty-seven yards from Guilford's goal, thus, the whistle blew as Winston invaded the scrubs territory for the first time during the entire game.
