

Guilford College
N.C.

THE GUILFORDIAN

VOLUME V.

GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C., FEBRUARY 19, 1919.

NUMBER 16

DR. JONES TALKS TO SCIENCE CLUB

Health Officer Gives Much Interesting Information.

Dr. Wm. M. Jones, of Greensboro, County Health Officer, delivered an able address to the Science Club last Wednesday night. The event marked the largest attendance at the Science Club this year, the room being filled to overflowing. Each member had invited a guest. The meeting was held under the auspices of the class in Home Sanitation of the Department of Home Economics. Miss Noles, head of the department, introduced the speaker.

Dr. Jones gave a general survey of the subject of sanitation particularly confining his remarks to the causes of communicable diseases. He showed that they are spread mostly through carelessness around the home. The dangers of the open well with its bucket and chain were graphically set forth. Open wells, he said, are always polluted. Not generally by surface drainage but by the bucket coming in contact with the germ laden hands. The fly was also described as a carrier of disease. Dr. Jones discussed the subject of fumigation and disinfection. He had no confidence in terminal disinfection, but believed strongly in the practice of disinfection thruout the course of the disease. Fumigation as generally practiced is entirely worthless. There is much erroneous opinion about the stage of a disease when it is most communicable. In smallpox it occurs before the eruption takes place, in scarlet fever before the rash appears. This has been shown by experiments on the anthropoid ape. There is no danger from the scales as is generally supposed. The same applies to measles and all diseases of that class. Dr. Jones expects the flu epidemic to last for three years though in less virulent form each year.

By no means the least welcome feature of the evening was the reception tendered to the club and its guests by the class in Home Sanitation. The audience was invited into the Home Economics laboratory and found there a delicious reception menu of sunshine cookies, marguerites and cocoa with whipped cream. After a pleasant season of social intercourse the club adjourned.

"JOLLY" JUNIORS MEET AGAIN.

On Wednesday evening, February 19th, the Juniors met for the first time in the new term. During the business meeting the following officers were elected: President, David White; vice-president, Genevieve Lindley; secretary, Frances Moore; treasurer, Luby Casey; marshal, Katherine Campbell. These officers were then installed.

Next some discussion arose concerning a pledge to the endowment fund and a committee was appointed to see about this. The class then adjourned to spend the few remaining minutes around the piano.

THE WORK OF FRIENDS AT VERDUN

William Harvey Talks on Reconstruction in France.

On the evening of February 15, William B. Harvey, representing the American Friends Service Committee, gave an address in the meeting house. William Harvey briefly stated a phase of Quakerism one application of which leads to the opposition to war. As in the days of George Fox, all the official declarations of Friends now state that all activities of life will be enriched to just that degree in which it is lived in accordance with the spirit of Christ. The one conflict of lasting import is between those whose way of life, depending on materialistic religion, results in an un-Christian civilization, and those whose manner of living ordered by faith in the potential power of Spiritual forces, shapes a Christian social order.

Opposition to war, though one of the minor applications of Quaker belief, has recently attracted much attention. This interest is partly due to the fact that loyalty to Quaker principles at this period has two important results.

In supporting the conscientious objectors, we have established a status for Friends of future generations. Liberty of conscience, freedom of worship and freedom of speech have been obtained. This in itself is a work which has upheld the very essentials of democracy.

(Continued on fourth page)

MISS EDWARDS LEADS Y. M. C. A.

On last Thursday evening to a very attentive audience Miss Edwards read the sixth chapter of Galatians and spoke briefly but very interestingly on the subject of "Promise of reward for Godly living, universality of law of compensation." This law operates in all walks of life. No benefit comes to us unless some one pays the price. Likewise every benefit comes with a tax stamped upon it, so that we must consider ourselves obligated to pass it on. Education in no sense frees us from responsibility or makes an easy road for us to travel, for we must meet such duties as good preparation fits us for. Life is a series of upward climbs and plateaus—the plateaus representing days of hard, continuous toil, and the rises following representing the compensation—namely, privilege of living and working on a higher plane.

Jesus Christ has paid for us a great debt and we are offered free the compensation for his suffering and death. Let us accept him and model our lives more closely upon his principles. It is the one way to round out our lives.

A quartette consisting of Messrs. Casey, Fox, White and Trotter, sang a selection which was also very much enjoyed. Such singing adds much to the meetings.

GUILFORD BEATEN BY CAROLINA AND TRINITY

College Quint Unable to Break Losing Streak.

Last Friday night in the Greensboro Y. M. C. A. the Guilford College basket ball team went down to overwhelming defeat at the hands of the fast representatives from the University to the score of 56-23. Guilford at first seemed dazed by the rapidity and system of the University attack but later on recovered and in spite of the one-sided score the game was exciting and interesting thruout. Both teams seemed to be handicapped by the small size of the floor. Guilford's team work was not in evidence and the forwards had recourse to individual playing. Owing to her ability to get the tip off Carolina worked to perfection her combination plays and once they had the ball started down the floor it meant a shot at the goal sooner or later. Carmichael excelled for the University while Frazier made some pretty shots for Guilford in the second half. He was not however up to his usual form in putting thru the foul goals. A good crowd was in attendance and the Guilford rooters stood by the team with their yells until the finish.

The line up:

Carolina.	Guilford.
Carmichael F	Frazier
Lunch (Hodges). F	Rice
Hippert C	Taylor
(Griffith)	(Stafford)
Cuthbertson G	Raiford
Morris (Brown). G. Anderson (Cox)

Field goals, Carmichael 10, Lunch 6, Hippert 4, Cuthbertson 6, Frazier

(Continued on third page)

MRS. BINFORD GIVES

INTERESTING TALK

The students of Guilford College were favored with an interesting talk by Mrs. Binford at Sunday morning chapel. This talk was so helpful and inspiring that it deserves special mention.

The speaker began by reading passages from Matt. 25 on the subject of talents, and took for her subject "What we have and what we are." She spoke of the old proverb "A chain is no stronger than its weakest links," being all right to apply to inanimate things but not applicable to the lives of individuals, because we are stronger than our weakest point. Mrs. Binford continued by saying that our dispositions and talents should be cultivated rather than repressed and our services should always be willingly offered whenever duty calls for it. We should not rely on our past record but strive to cultivate our talents and develop higher ideals.

In conclusion the speaker impressed on the hearers that now is the most opportune time for them to prepare themselves for leadership.

MRS. DAVIS GIVES A SPLENDID TALK

On Thursday evening, the 13th, the Y. W. C. A. heard one of the most splendid speeches of the year, the subject being "Rejoice." The meeting was opened by singing and the President reading the 113th Psalm.

Mrs. Davis, the speaker, commenced by saying that at this particular time there was so much to be thankful for, and over which we might rejoice. The conflict in Europe has ended. Youth and health belong to the majority of the members of the Y. W. C. A., and no one should fail to take note of these things. "There is in each person's life," said the speaker a conflict similar to the one which has just ended, but in these battles, God will lead you out into the sunlight of hope and love, if you live by the text, "Whatsoever things are lovely, think on these things." We each have it in our own power to direct our lives. We may naturally have an unpleasant disposition, but if we allow the love of God to come in, it will fill us with happiness. We have from the Master himself the promise that we can leave our lives in his hands and go on our way rejoicing.

Joy may come from different sources. Sometimes people get joy from things which are wrong, but that is not lasting joy. Only the joy that comes from a life like Christ's can be lasting.

"The true and genuine Christian must rejoice that his name is written in the Book of Life. Anything which is good will not be withheld from us if we endeavor to gain it. We grow by placing our dependence in God, for "to them that love God, everything works together for good" "As we come into the love and kingdom of Christ he makes us rulers over our temples," said Mrs. Davis. "Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven and all things necessary shall be added." Why should we go around downcast, thinking what might happen next year. People should rejoice over what they have to make them happy now, and not be downcast over things which may never happen. Every one desires to be strong and pure. One never sees a person who rejoices in the Lord and does not exert a great influence on those around. Think of the person who looks on the dark side of life always, in comparison with one who looks on the bright side. The joyous spirit of a little child is an example for all.

A person may enjoy that which is not his. A picture hanging in another room may be enjoyed, nature may be enjoyed.

Did you ever think of going to God in a grumbling fashion.

Mrs. Davis said in closing, "all work is much easier, lessons easier to learn, life so much sweeter, if we are only happy."

Mrs. Davis always brings something good when she speaks and the Y. W. C. A. was much benefitted by this splendid talk. The meeting was well attended.