

PHILOMATHEANS DISCUSS

MILITARY TRAINING

At the regular meeting on Friday evening, Oct. 31, the Phils debated the following question: "Resolved, That the United States should adopt a policy of compulsory military training in its colleges."

The affirmative was upheld by Misses Ethith Macon and Ida Willis Thompson, while the negative was upheld by Misses Ethyle Venable and Sobelia Williams. The society was very proud of the spirit and "pep" that the debaters showed. Miss Thompson deserves special mention because of her speech in defense of the affirmative. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

Miss Vera Farlow gave a discussion on "Who is John J. Pershing and What Has He Done?"

The third number given by Miss Mary Dixon was entitled "The Greatest Force That Won the War." This was interesting as well as instructive. Miss Dixon showed how much had been accomplished during the war by electricity.

The last number, "Selections of the Latest Current Poetry," was given in an interesting way by Miss Myrle Cox. Miss Cox stated that current poetry was of two kinds, that written on Nature and that pertaining to the war.

The chairman of the executive committee proposed a plan to run a contest for six weeks. The plan which was adopted after discussion provided that the society should be divided into groups and each group should plan its own programs.

After a critic's report by Miss Mariam Mendenhall the society adjourned.

MRS. DAVIS LEADS Y. W. C. A.

"The Fuller Life" was the subject of Mrs. Davis' beautiful and helpful talk to the girls on Thursday evening last.

Holiness of mind and soul is very closely connected with healthfulness of body. Let not the body retard the mind and soul, for they can never rise to the greatest height unless they are supported by a strong body.

Jesus came that we might have fuller and more abundant life, and He wishes us to make our lives full in the truest sense. When He was on earth He cared for the physical life. He healed many who were sick. He cares for the physical that it may co-operate with the spiritual life.

A girl who has sound health of body, mind and spirit is of sound judgment, and credits others with purity and good judgment until she is convinced of the contrary. She will not look down upon one who has not had the advantages which she has, neither will she feel ill at ease in the company of her superiors—that is, those who are better educated than she.

While in college girls should devote their time to their assigned work, should make friends by showing themselves friendly, and be true to every trust. Development of the mind makes life fuller in every respect. Wisdom teaches the best use of what we know. There need be no fear for the future if the mind and heart be pure.

Are we true to ourselves, or do we yield to our besetting sin? By yielding we dwarf our lives and souls. Even though we may regret our misused powers, we cannot help the consequence. Let us now, today, consider the trend of our lives. Let us ask ourselves if the lives we are leading will lead us to the womanhood we are seeking, or will lead us downward. Each girl has her own responsibility. She may lay the foundation for a cleaner, more abundant life if she so wills.

CLAY NOTES.

The Clays Met Friday Evening, With Vice-President S. G. Hodgkin

Despite the fact that many members were absent the Clays had a very good program, including a debate, "Resolved, That the Federal Government should operate the coal mines." The affirmative was successfully upheld by Messrs. Ham-bright, R. C. Williams and Crews, while the negative team consisted of Messrs. Dassiter, J. E. Doughton and Wolf.

The rest of the literary program consisted of an extemporaneous solo and debate.
