VOLUME VI.

GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C., JANUARY 14, 1920

NUMBER 13

PHILOMATHEAN SOCIAL WAS A BIG SUCCESS

The social Saturday evening, Jan. 10, was in the form of a box supper, given under the auspices of the Philomathean Society. It proved to be a great success both socially and financially.

The social was conducted in Memorial Hall. Each Philomathean contributed a box beautifully decorated. Much originality was shown in the boxes, which were of various shapes, sizes and colors. They contained all sorts of fruits, sandwiches, candies, pickles, cake, etc.

At the appointed hour when everybody had assembled Prof. Mark C. Mills and Hugh Moore began the sale of the boxes. Much "pep" and enthusiasm was shown throughout. The boxes ranged in price from $2.00 to $5.00 each.

Immediately after the sale of the boxes came the time of feasting and merriment. Those who were fortunate in securing a box sought a favorite place in which to partake of the dainties of the box.

Others were able to supply their wants at a booth, where refreshments consisting of lemonade, candy, peanuts, cake and various kinds of sandwiches were served.

The last box was sold by guessing for the lucky number at ten cents a guess, the numbers running from one to one hundred. Miss Isabel Pancoast was successful in winning the box by guessing the number 73.

The total amount received from the sale of boxes and refreshments at the booth was $150.

The Philomatheans wish to express many thanks for the hearty co-operation and support which was shown to them by all who were present. The proceeds will be used in securing new chairs for the Philomathean Society Hall.

NEW COURSE.

A new course in Rural Problems will be offered the second semester by Professor Mills. The course will deal with the outstanding social and economic problems of rural life. Particular attention will be paid to distinctly Southern and North Carolina conditions. The text book used will be Galpen's "Rural Life," a new book just published by the Century Company. The text book work will be supplemented by special oral and written reports. The class will be open to Juniors and Seniors and will meet three times a week.

THE DES MOINES CONVENTION

The eighth International Convention of the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions, held in Des Moines, Iowa, beginning December 31, 1919, and adjourned January 4, 1920, was in the number of representatives the largest assembly of its kind ever held. The Coliseum, where the convention was held, with a seating capacity of twelve thousand, was packed during every regular session. Nearly six thousand of this number were American student delegates, two thousand foreign delegates from nearly forty different countries, one thousand missionaries, one thousand faculty representatives, and two thousand representatives of denominational mission boards and church leaders of Des Moines. Thirty special trains and a great number of special cars were required to carry this great army of Christian workers into their temporary camp and headquarters. This great gathering, in words of one who addressed it, possessed "more potential power than any assembly since the time of Christ."

Dr. John R. Mott, presiding officer of the convention, known the world over as a Christian worker, delivered the opening address. The long list of speakers who addressed the convention included Robert E. Speer, Sherwood Eddy, Samuel M. Zwemer and prominent men and women from every continent of the globe. These eminent men and women gave to the thousands of eager students such a clear vision of world conditions and needs that the blindest of them were forced to get a glimpse of world needs, and in the soul of each student was planted a deep set resolution to get farther away from the selfish life and become at least a small force in the great crusade of this generation to carry the teachings of Christ to the entire world.

One of the interesting places connected with the convention was the Hall of Exhibits in the Auditorium, only a few blocks from the Coliseum. Here the facts presented from the platform were pictured graphically. The exhibits consisted of 450 panels full of live, down-to-date information, centering around the following main features: (1) World Conditions, (2) Forms of Missionary Work, (3) Student Mission Activities, (4) Graphic Methods, (5) Material for Prospective Missionaries, (6) Inter-Church World Movement. Stewards were stationed in various sections of the hall ready to answer

GUILFORDIANS DISCUSS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

In compliance with the request that college students take a vote on the League of Nations, Guilford students met on last Friday evening to hear the matter discussed.

Dr. Binford first stated the four propositions for voting as they now stand.

1. I favor the ratification of the League and Treaty without reservations or amendments.

2. I am opposed to the ratification of the League and Treaty in any form.

3. I favor ratification of the Treaty, but only with the Lodge reservations.

4. I favor a compromise between the Lodge and the Democratic reservations in order to facilitate the ratification of the Treaty.

He then brought out the fact that an understanding of some kind is necessary for any people who are to live together in harmony. There must be certain rules under which they are to act. Not can these be had without some sacrifice of independence, but the benefits of organization are superior to independence.

That the League offers a great opportunity to America, for helping other nations, was the chief point emphasized by Dr. Hobbs, the next speaker. The League would help to prevent future wars for the reason that no nation would attack another if it thought all other nations would disapprove.

Prof. Balderston then gave a short discussion of the two classes of opponents. The first class are those who are extremely afraid lest they shall have to do something they do not wish to do, or that something will be done without the consent of the U. S. Senate. They claim that the government has a right to do as it pleases in any issue. The second class is composed of idealists, who have hoped for a new and better world as a result of the war. They object to the League because they say a League should not be prepared by a few diplomats, but by a convention called for the purpose.

Miss Gifford brought out the fact that some people are opposed to the League for practical reasons. They do not think that with a number of discontented Germans under Polish rule, and with China displeased with the Shantung situation there can be permanent peace.

A brief explanation of the machinery of the League was presented by Prof. Mills. A Council consisting of not more than nine, a General Assembly of not more than ninety,

QUAKER QUINT TO MEET U. N. C. IN GREENSBORO THURSDAY NIGHT AT 8

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR A WINNING TEAM THIS SEASON.

Freshmen Lose to Sophs 15-7.

The pre-season game with Draper Y. M. C. A. before Christmas gave Coach Doak an opportunity to try out several of the aspirants for the varsity quint and see how they would work in an actual game. Since vacation ended daily practice has rounded the team into shape so as to give some idea of what the prospects of a victorious team for this season will be. Practically all of last year's team are back and are showing up well. Zachary, who was out of school last year working with the Friends Reconstruction Unit in France, is back at his old position at center and is playing the game in his usual capable style. Frazier, who was suggested as all-State forward last year, has come in since the holidays and has been doing some clever shooting. Smith, who is a new man coming to us from Asheville School, has shown up to be one of the fastest roving guards seen on the Guilford floor since Tom Seman's days. He passes well and is also good at working the ball down the floor and into the basket. Tom Cox is playing his usual close game at guard and bids fair to keep up his last season's record. Stafford, of last year's team, has been playing part of the time as center and sometimes as forward. Anderson, McBaBne, Newlin,
