HOW CAN WE BEST DEVELOP CO-OPERATION ON OUR CAMPUS?

Have you ever noticed how much more enjoyable a job is when eight, ten or twelve people work together on it, than it is when one person at a time works on it by himself?

It is human nature for us to have a desire for comradeship, fellowship; without it the heart starves. A man may go along thru life lacking this warm close touch with his fellows and not know exactly what he is missing, but his heart and life will be dwarfed and stunted as truly as if he did know it.

In our college days we have many splendid opportunities for cultivating friendship, comradeship and brotherhood with our fellows. All of us long to live sometime in a place or community where the utmost neighborliness of spirit prevails. But the only way of making sure of this Promised Land is by starting toward it right now—and one of the best ways to make this start is by co-operation.

It is our duty to try to put in each fellow student's heart the warm, joyous sense that he is working with others for the enrichment of his life and for the college that we all love. Our college days would be much happier if we all possessed this warm feeling of co-operation.

In order to have a campus athrob and aflame with this spirit of human comradeship there must be practical co-operation. The basis of such a development must always be mutual acquaintance and good will. Just at this time especially this college needs the hearty co-operation on the part of every student. Conditions are not always as we would have them be, the heat is not always as we would wish—the loss of the power house by fire has caused some inconvenience in regard to lights—yet we as a student body and as individuals should co-operate in every possible way to make the best of these unavoidable conditions instead of continually making complaints. So in every respect let us be loyal. Altho it may seem hard at first, we might find conditions elsewhere even worse.

There are many ways in which we can show a good spirit of co-operation on our campus. Oftentimes we make very unjust criticisms about our teachers and members of the faculty when we should co-operate instead by helping them in every way we can. Then we should show a co-operative spirit toward our college managers in keeping our campus in good condition.

As I was walking from the postoffice to Founders Hall a few days ago I noticed that papers and orange peelings could be seen all along the main driveway. Now this, it seems to me, shows a lack of co-operation on the part of students. Shall we allow this to continue? The spirit of co-operation which we show our campus is very likely to be the same which we will show in the future years just ahead.

WEBSTERIANS ARGUE SIX-YEAR TERM FOR PRESIDENT.

The Websterians were highly entertained Friday night by a debate between R. A. Lineberry and Paul Rayle, of the affirmative, and Samuel Harris and Thompson on the negative side of the question: Resolved, That the President of the U. S. should be elected for a term of six years and be ineligible for re-election. The affirmative won the decision of the judges.

An extemporaneous debate between Beeson and Tate as to their relative preference to being hit by baked potatoes or snowballs was feelingly discussed by both gentlemen. They having had ample experience in both cases, made quite eloquent appeals to the judges for their decision.

A discussion of the strategies and forces involved in the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient by the First American Army was given by S. Cameron.

The following officers were elected and are to be installed at next meeting: President, R. L. Tremaine; vice president, John Dorsett; secretary, Dabney White; assistant secretary, William Fishel; marshal, Samuel Harris.
