EDITORIAL

When students begin to follow the attraction of the screen, they should not forget the Hill from whence it came.

To some of the less impulsive students, athletics may suddenly become repulsive, since the faculty has made it compulsive.

For the past few years it has been a custom, of a certain class of boys, to attempt to give a display of base ball pitching ability just in front of the doors of Cox Hall, for the benefit of the open-mouthed base ball "fan" who never looked a pitcher in the eye or felt the sting of a scorching grounder. This practice had never resulted in anything more serious than the wreck of a few window panes, which the occupant of the damaged room or the Athletic Association has been in the habit of replacing, until Saturday, September 25. One of the students just coming from his section received a wild throw on the side of his face. As a result, this student has a broken cheek bone, with a doctor bill and much pain donated to his account.

No one at Guilford wishes to discourage athletics, but students who do not have the energy or forethought to get away from the dormitories, and off the more frequented walks, to pass a base ball do not deserve, and will not receive, the admiration of any clear-thinking stu-dent, who knows that both the College proeprty and the lives of the students are endangered.

CLARA HENLEY AND LYNDON LEAD IN JOINT MEETING OF CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS

On Thursdey night, Sept. 23, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. met in Memorial Hall in a joint meeting.
Clara Henley, speaking on the subject of "The Harmony of Life," pared the lives of human beings to a violin. The "A" or main string is likened to the big things of life. The "E" string which gives the clear, sweet tones strikes the high, joyful notes of life. The "D" string which connects all the other tones of a violin may be compared to the minor tasks of life which when performed carefully lead one on to the bigger jobs. The "G" string which furnishes the resonant bass notes may be compared to the difficulties and hard places in life, which, when overcome, bring out the deeper nature of the individual.

Remembering these different comparisons, a life is made the most successful when it keeps in mind these words: "Always play as if a Master listened." In the case of a musician it is hard to imagine the presence of a human master, but there is always the assurance that the Heavenly Master sees and hears all who play upon the violin of life. whether there be discords or har-

Lyndon Williams spoke of "Honesty" and gave the illustration of the young Arab who was given forty pieces of silver with the instructions from his mother that he always tell the truth. After having traveled for a long time he was overtaken by a band of robbers who detained him. Three times he was asked, "What money have you, young man?" and twice his straightforward answer, "I have forty pieces of silver sewed up in my garments," baffled the thieves on account of its frankness. The third time however the captain gave orders that he be searched. When the money was found the power of his personality caused the whole band to be con-

When students come to college their honesty to their parents is tested when they are allowed to either waste or use their time. Wasted time means only a worthless life; wellspent time is rewarded by a strong and powerful character, which enables a man to ever press toward a higher

GUILFORD SCRUBS IN BASEBALL GAME WITH ARCHDALE HIGHS

On Saturday afternoon, September 25, the Archdale base ball team was defeated on Hobbs field by a team picked from the Guilford stu dents who neither play foot ball, volley ball nor tennis. The game throughout was interesting and at no time during the contest was the outcome certain.

Among the Guilford "smashers" were a number of new students who displayed real base ball ability. The most brittent performers of Saturday's contest among the new men were J. W. Frazier and Winn. White White for Archdale did some splendid

Coach Doak has been unable to give these base ball aspirants much attention, but he sees some excellent material to fill vacancies in his varsity team next spring. Score by innings:
