CLAYS DISCUSS CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Officers Installed.

The Henry Clay Literary Society held its regular meeting Friday evening. Following the regular order of business the following officers, who were elected at a called meeting a few days before, were installed: President, B. L. White; Secretary, R. E. Cummins; Censor, Frank McGee; Chaplain, B. C. Shore; Sergeant-at-arms, Frank Casey.

The debate, Resolved, That "Capital punishment should be abolished in North Carolina," was well rendered. Eugene Shaver, J. A. McDaniel and J. E. Daughton upheld the affirmative, while Allison White, T. H. Mackey and Lindsey Winslow defended the negative.

The judges rendered their decision in favor of the affirmative.

Following the debate, Everette Hollady gave a lecture on the Art of Debating.

After the literary program several encouraging remarks were made by two old Clays, H. L. Johnson and Roger Kiser. The Society was also glad for the presence of Wade Thompson and Clyde Rush. Wade Thompson was elected to membership in the Society.

E. L. Hollady was appointed as Henry Clay representative on a student committee to confer with the faculty in regard to the promotion of the Peace Oratorical Contest.

PHILOMATHEAN DEBATE

Question of Co-educational School

The Philomatheans held their regular meeting Friday night, November 19, in the Y. W. C. A. Hall, their own hall being used for the Zatsian-Websterian reception. The following program was then rendered:

- I. Current Event . . . Nell Carroll
- II. Reading . . . . . Helen Johnson
- III. Debate: Resolved, that a person educated in a co-educational school is better prepared for life than a person educated in a non-educational school.

Affirmative, Ophelia, Paul, and Mattie Lou Williams.

Negative: Shelly Clodfelter and Nettie Steward.

- IV. Piano solo . . . Emma Kurfees.

At this meeting several business items were discussed. The following officers were elected:

Frances Bulla, President; Elizabeth Yates, Secretary; Mary Dixon, Marshall.

DEBATING CLUB MEETS

The Debating Club of the Philomathean Literary Society met for the second time Friday night. There were only a few members present, but these were very enthusiastic. Tom Stewart was elected permanent chairman, Madge Coble was appointed correspondent to the Guilfordian. At this meeting plans were mapped out for the year's work. The Club decided to make a condensed study of the technique of debating, and obtain practical results by the application of the principles learned on debates developed by members of the club and criticized by same. If these plans materialize, beneficial results are inevitable.

PREPARATORY CLASS MEETING

The preparatory class met November 16, 1920, at Memorial Hall, for their first regular meeting.

The meeting was called to order by President Ladson Dorrity, after which the Minutes of the last meeting, were read, and adopted.

The following program was given:

- I. Piano Solo—Lloyd Merrimon.
- II. The Class and What It Is—Prof. White.
- III. Around the Campus—Mary Byrd Lassiter.
- IV. Hail Dear Old Guilford—The Class.

It was announced that the faculty had consented to allow the preparatory class to have four regular class meetings per year instead of three.

All gathered on the platform and an hour was spent in playing various kinds of games.

stressed the fact that comparatively few young men have the opportunity of receiving a college education, and that those who do should make it a point to live in such a way as to be an example to others and to lead them right. He told of the need for more Sunday School and Y. M. C. A. leaders and showed the great part such leaders can play among people. The meeting was then turned over to various speakers each of whom made some interesting and helpful remarks on the same subject.
