FOUNDER'S SOCIAL

The social committee made up of members of the Young Woman's and Young Men's Christian Association, directed, what was probably the most enjoyable college social that has been given this year.

Shortly after the parlors and society halls of Founders Hall had been filled with students, the entire group was reshuffled by the social committee and dealt out to the numerous tables in couples. The scene that followed would have reminded one of the recent examination week had not the exchange of information and talking been so abundant. An examination covering three very important and numerous courses of study was given. The winners, Mary Dixon and "Jim" Newlin were presented a large box of candy.

The remainder of the evening was taken up by numerous games, and much talking and singing.

MRS. BROWN ENTERTAINS FOUNDERS HALL GIRLS

On Wednesday evening, January nineteenth at nine thirty, Mrs. Brown opened her doors to a band of Founders Hall girls and helped them to forget exams by giving them a party. The winking of the lights at ten fifteen caused the girls to stay only forty-five minutes but everybody had a good time. Mrs. Brown and Misses Hazel and Virginia Brown served delicious refreshments: Sandwiches, coffee, concoction of fruits, whipped cream and cakes. Those enjoying Mrs. Brown's hospitality were: Misses Bulla, Stewart, Raiford, Dixon, Motley, A. Brown, Outland, and Page.

"AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?"

The Subject Which Mrs. Williams Develops In "Y. W." Meeting.

Mrs. Edgar Williams gave an interesting, instructive and inspiring talk to the Young Women's Christian Association, on Thursday evening, January 27.

Mrs. Williams took as the subject of her talk the memorable words of Cain—his reply to his Master, "Am I my brother's keeper?" The leader showed that since our lives are so closely interlinked, and interdependent upon each other, each one is to a very great extent his brother's keeper.

The talk was one of a number of a very high type that have been delivered by visiting ladies to the local Young Women's Association.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION TO BE ESTABLISHED

A Part of the College Extension Work

The College authorities are planning to establish a Bureau of Information for the Young Friends Societies of North Carolina Yearly Meeting. This addition to the extension work of the college is to meet the demand for material and assistance that comes from almost every Friends community. Many of the young people never attend college. Few of the young peoples' societies have access to a good library. The work of the Bureau of Information would be to meet the demands and needs of these societies and young people.

The course of study of each society would be outlined in advance, by the bureau, and reference books provided. This will meet the big need of the Christian Endeavor Societies, that have rather strong membership but very little literature to work with.

The proposed bureau would not only aid young friends societies but individuals who for any reason are not able to attend college even for the short course that is now being given. A young man or young woman desiring to make a study of some definite subject, would be able to get the course outlined and reference books provided. If text books are necessary the student will get advice concerning the books to purchase.

This scheme will necessitate and eventually build up a circulating library, which can be made to benefit every community of the state.

This plan is just one of the many efforts of President Binford to make the college serve every Friends community in the North Carolina Yearly Meeting and the non-friends community as well. It is a big addition to the present college extension work, which is just now in its infancy, but which promises to develop into a strong department of the college.

C. C. COUNTRYMAN HEARD BY COLLEGE STUDENTS IN MORNING CHAPEL

C. C. Countryman, a prominent lecturer and public speaker, spoke to the student body during the Monday morning chapel. Mr. Countryman has lectured quite extensively in the interest of the Young Men's Christian Association in North Carolina, and throughout the United States. He spoke briefly of the advantages of a small college over the larger institutions, and of the reasons why all the years of toil, and expenditure of money in securing an education are worth while.

The whole student body was well pleased with Mr. Countryman's short talk and his pleasing disposition.

College Proverbs

Many co-eds believe in making headway while the moon shines.

If brevity is the soul of wit, there's nothing funny about a college chapel service.
