U. S. Tarriff Policy Debated by Clays

The Henry Clays used both argument and oratory Friday night, May 11, the great tariff question was discussed in the following form "Resolved; that free trade is a better economic policy of the United States than protection." The affirmative composed of A. W. Thompson and Carson Thornburg succeeded in tearing down the argument of the negative which was presented by Harvey Dinkins and Marvin Shore.

The second number on the program "Experience in love" by Moir Edwards was enjoyed by all.

Short Story Writing Discussed by Phils

The program given by the Philomatheans last Friday evening was an clever picture-pantomime and the interesting one being devoted to a discussion of the short story.

The first number the "Form of the Short Story" by Alice Thompson explained the technique and scope of the short story. Lila May Stevens then gave a discussion of O'Brien's collection of "Best Short Stories." The familiar story by de Maupassant "The Necklace" was well told by Alma Stuart. Maude Simpson, contributed, perhaps the most instructive number of the program. This was a discussion of the way our short stories are published and explained the work of editors and authors and accounted for the courses of the disappointments to would-be authors.

The musical number of the evening was an instrumental solo by Luna Taylor.

The Zatasian sophomores had charge of the literary program Friday night, May 11. A well planned miscellaneous program was given.

The originality of Mary Cal Henley was brought to bear in the form of a humorous poem on "The Spirit of Guilford." Pansy Donnell then rendered a musical selection.

"Alex Bean Story" recited by Carrie Norman pleased the society immensely.

The last number was a pageant in which the characteristics of the freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors were represented respectively by characters named Ama Green, Ainta Smart, Joy Joyce, and Ima Highbrow. Those carrying these parts were: Nelle Chilton, Marion Ward, Ione Lowe, and Ruth Levering.

The subject for debate in the Websterian society, Friday night, May 11, was, "Resolved: that congress should pass legislation that will more adequately conserve our lege, at chapel, May 16. Basing their sketch on "Correct Etiquette of Dressing," the seniors showed in a novel manner the different ways of dressing to the worst and best advantage. Following the flashing of a subtitle, such as, "The 'divinely tall' should not wear vertical lines lest they resemble the well known bean pole," on the screen, a tall senior appeared dressed in straight lines which visually seemed to increase her height by inches. With equal force it was shown that horizontal stripes do not suit stout people, tuxedos are not to be worn to church, nor business suits to afternoon tea. And so it went, through a general list of rules for good dressing, the correct way being carefully contrasted by exaggerated contrasts. It was a forceful sermon told in number called "Forest Voices."

"Block" Smith, center fielder, and George Ferrell, proved to be valuable baseball players. Smith came through twenty games with only one error to his credit. Ferrell, in pitching, outfielding, and pinch hitting, proved himself to be one of Guilford's best men.

"Babe" Shore of the pitching staff came through the season with the highest pitching percentage. He is a veteran at the game and has always pitched reliable ball. Roy Burge, made a brilliant showing for his first year at sizes $5\frac{1}{2}$ to 12 which was the encollege pitching. Ferrell, emerged with the lowest percentage of games won.
