

SOCIETY NOTES

Patriotism Keynote Of Program of Zatasians

Patriotism was the keynote of the program in the Zatasian Literary Society, Friday evening.

For the first number, Ruth Stephens read a touching poem entitled "In Flander's Field," written by an American soldier who now lies buried in Flanders. Bessie Phipps gave a paper on the chief events in the life of Francis Scott Key the composer of the American National Anthem.

A vocal solo by Hazel Colettrane, and a piano selection "Mendelssohn's Spring Song" given by Viola Tuttle, composed the single musical numbers of the evening, and were much enjoyed.

In an essay on "America's Patriotic Songs," Sara Hodges showed what constitutes patriotic songs, how those of America came into existence, and in what way they express the sentiment of our nation.

At the conclusion of the program, the entire society joined in the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

Miscellaneous Program Given By Philomatheans

A short miscellaneous program was given by the Philomatheans on Friday evening, November the ninth. The two musical numbers were particularly good and were enthusiastically applauded. The first was an instrumental solo Chopin's Prelude in C minor by Leora Sherrill, and the other was a vocal solo by Chandos Kimrey. Her selection was "The House by the Side of the Road" by Foss. A paper with the title "What 1923 Philomatheans will be Doing in 1935" by Lalah Hassel was an interesting dip into the future, revealing the possibilities of various members of the Society. "The Query Box" by Laura Ballinger furnished the humor of the program. Edith Hollowell was critic for the evening.

Henry Clays Listen to Debate by New Members

The Henry Clay Literary Society held its regular meeting Friday night, Nov. 9th. The first number on the program was a debate. Resolved: that National Enforcement of prohibition is better than State Enforcement. The participants were all new members of the society. The affirmative was upheld by Thigpen and Russell while the negative attacks were launched by Baker and Winslow. Both teams were primed for the occasion and it was not until the last speaker had left the floor that the judges were able to make their decision in favor of the affirmative.

The next number on the program was an oration by John Reynolds. The society was glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Cannon as visitors for the evening, who greeted the society in a few well chosen remarks.

Websterians Have Debate On Government Coal Problem

"Resolved; That the United States should own and control the coal mines of the country" was the subject debate in the Websterian Literary Society last Friday night. The speakers for the affirmative were Sam Harris and Floyd Gray; while James Howell and Jack Harrell maintained the negative. The decision of the judges was in favor of the negative.

After the debate Duke Morse related a number of interesting facts relating to the faculty and students of the college. The number was of a highly humorous character and was loudly applauded. The third number presented a sharp contrast to the second, as it consisted of Emerson's "Good Bye" and "The Blue and Grey." Lonnie Russell gave this reading. It was well-presented and very interesting. After a prolonged discussion of miscellaneous business society adjourned.

Financial Condition of Y. W. C. A. Taken Up in Meeting

At the regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A., Thursday evening, the financial conditions of this association were discussed.

Hazel Richardson briefly explained the new system of systematic giving which has been introduced into Y. W. this year. She likewise presented the financial situation and stressed the importance of supporting its needs. A clever little stunt entitled "She comes up smiling" was enacted as an illustration of the point which was presented at this meeting.

Kirby V. Bowen Talks to Y. M. C. A. On Respect For Law

Rev. Kirby V. Bowen of Ashboro St. church, Greensboro, in leading Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening spoke on "Respect for Law." He mentioned that is reported that at parties of high school students in Greensboro there is often whiskey drinking. Mr. Bowen said that young Americans do not seem to like the idea of obedience.

"The idea of young Americans," affirmed Mr. Bowen, "is that obedience is something to which their parents were subjected and to which they will not conform. Obedience to order is regarded by them as belonging to the Dark Ages. There is much more noise in the school-room than formerly. There is a lack of restraint in young and old alike.

"But restraint is necessary," the speaker continued, "for our civilization demands it. Right is good and wrong is sinful just the same as in the past. All nations really have a Golden Rule, and Jesus Christ is the redeemer of all if he is accepted."

"Violation of the divine law," asserted Mr. Bowen "brings retribution. Formal religion without practice is of little value.

"The lower and baser passions when they come to the surface of a life, take all the beauties virtues and holiness away."

"Low is the collective desire of the people," continued Mr. Bowen. "People who do not obey the laws of their nation seem to be slipping back into barbarism. The biggest criminal is one who takes advantage of his position to disobey the law."

"Disobedience, it seems to me," maintained the speaker, "is learned in the home. Faults should be corrected in youth. The foolish sentimentality against punishment should be avoided. It is the part of Christianity to see that the laws are respected and enforced. The greatest dangers to the country are disrespect for law and disobedience to the law."

Miss Kathleen Ervin of Greensboro College and Miss Edna Wood of Spray were the week-end guests of Miss Leora Sherrill.

Miss Louise Holton spent the week-end at her home in Jamestown.

Miss Neolo Steed spent the week-end at her home in High Point.

Miss Nellie Chilton spent the week-end at her home in Walnut Cove.

Miss Lillian Sullivan spent the week-end at her home in Pinnacle.

Misses Deborah Mendenhall and Gertrude Atkins spent the week-end with Miss Alvin Stone at her home in Greensboro.
