QUAKER GOES TO PRESS

The "Quaker," the 1924 Annual, is now partly in the hands of the publisher. The material from the various classes is being edited by the Editor-in-chief, Hershel Macon, and the entire contents of the "Quaker" are expected to be in the process of printing the latter part of February, and proofs returned before the first week in March.

The subscription on the campus has been finished. The committee in charge report a hearty patronage on the part of the student body. The circulation manager will begin work among the Alumni during the latter part of the week. The total number of subscriptions has not been reported for publication.

Lewis McFarland Addresses Mission Study Classes

Mr. Lewis McFarland, Yearly Meeting superintendent for North Carolina, addressed the closing exercises of the mission study classes at the church on last Sunday evening. The subject of Mr. McFarland's address was extension of Friends in North Carolina and Virginia.

Mr. McFarland very forcibly pointed out the fact that there was much real home missionary work to be done right here in our own home state and that the young people of North Carolina have a large field of service before them.

Misses Sara Tomlinson and Willie Cates were the week-end guests of Miss Marie Beaman.

SOCIETY NOTES

Websterians Debate Mellon's Plan for Tax Reduction

The question, "Resolved that Congress should adopt the tax reduction bill designed by secretary Mellon's plan of tax reduction" was debated in the Websterian Literary society last Friday evening. John Cude, J. W. Frazier and Wendel Cude ably upheld Mr. Mellon's plan of tax reduction while Efton Warrick and Kenneth Neese, although presenting good argument against the tax reduction plan, were unable to overcome the argument of the affirmative. The judges gave their decision unanimously in favor of the affirmative.

The next number, "Jokes," by George Martin were exceptionally good. Mr. Martin had a rare selection of original jokes and he presented them in good form.

Phils Install Officers; Leora Sherill, President

The following new officers of the Philomathean literary society who had been elected at a previous meeting, were installed at the regular meeting Friday evening, Feb. 8: president, Leora Sherrill; secretary, Elizabeth Cude; marshal, Mary Lou Wilkins.

The life and works of Shakespeare were the topics under discussion for the evening. The life of William Shakespeare was accurately and interestingly given by Ruth Ragsdale. The female characters of Shakespeare's tragedies, were ably discussed by Elizabeth Brooks. Lalah Cox then gave two numbers on the Victrola, which were quite in keeping with the rest of the program. Marie Beaman read and discussed the Soliloquies of Hamlet in a very interesting manner.

Clays Hear Lecture on Correct Debating

The third and last of a series of lectures on the amateur debator, "Presentation of material," was given by John Webb Cannon last Friday evening at the meeting of the Henry Clay society. Using a house as an illustration of a debate Mr. Cannon said, "Select your material, build your house, and then sell it, for a house, no matter how beautiful is no good unless it is useful. In other words, unless you can convince your hearers that your debate is both solid and useful after the attacks of your opponents you will not receive credit for your work."

James Thigpen read a humorous selection from Mark Twain entitled "poultry raising," which was greatly appreciated by the society.

Harvey Dinkins and Edward Holder took part in an extemporaneous debate to the amusement of the society.

Fine Arts Program at Zatasian Society Meeting

At the regular meeting of the Zatasian literary society, Friday evening the following program was given:

- I Vocal Solo—"Lullaby from Jocelyn" Mary Webb Nicholson.
- II A class in Art Appreciation—teacher, Gertrude Bundy; students, Beulah Allen, Sarah Hodges, Carrie Norman, Mae Holladay.
- III Piano Solo, "Valse Chromatique," Mildred Townsend.

The class in art appreciation was rather a clever scheme arranged to give the prophecy of the lives of Ruth Levering, Hazel Richardson, Jennie Howard Cannon and Pomona Johnson after they become famous artists.

PHILADELPHIA FRIENDS VISIT GUILFORD CAMPUS

Francis and Anna Walton, prominent Philadelphia Friends, the latter being superintendent of the Friends preparatory schools in Philadelphia were visitors on the campus last Monday and Tuesday.

Tuesday morning Miss Walton addressed the student body at the chapel period. Speaking of her association with young people she stated that each generation is a distinct improvement on the preceding ones. At the present time it is a more common practice than formerly for competitors to render more aid to each other—there is more of the spirit of brotherly love in the hearts of people.

The speaker expressed great interest in Guilford's endowment fund, but expressed the hope that Guilford would not lose her simplicity of life and earnestness of purpose through receiving this endowment. She stated that she believed in "plain living and high thinking."

In conclusion she briefly mentioned the work of the Indian Friends school in Western New York, which is actuated by this spirit of "high thinking and plain living."

Miss Ricks and Mrs. Perisho Attend Y. W. C. A. Meeting in High Point

Miss Katherine C. Ricks and Mrs. Inez Beebe Perisho spoke at the membership meeting of the Y. W. C. A. in High Point the night of Thursday, February 7. The meeting was attended by approximately 200 persons, consisting of the Y. W. C. A. members and their husbands and friends.

Miss Ricks spoke on the use of her Y. W. C. A. membership card during her recent tour in Europe, while Mrs. Perisho discussed the Young Woman's Christian Association and citizenship.

Endowment Campaign Closes

thing about it was the interest that former students and members of the Friends Church are taking in the College and their determination that the Endowment Campaign shall succeed—and better still—a real interest in the College and the work it is doing, not only in a scholastic way, but in helping to train young men and women for future service in the Yearly Meeting.

While on this Eastern Carolina trip it was the aim of Dr. Perisho to visit as many homes of the students who are now in Guilford as possible.

Dr. Perisho is very much encouraged in regard to the completion of the Endowment Campaign and says there seems to be a renewed interest on the part of all, now that we are within $50,000 of our goal. When the graduates and former students have made their contributions he feels that the campaign will quickly be completed.

The campaign will be among Friends in Alamance county, next.
