Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hayes of Winston-Salem were on the campus to see Miss Maude Simpson. Misses Ina and Leola Stevens of Goldsboro were the week-end guests of Miss Olive Jinnette. Mr. Archie Johnson of High Point was on the campus Sunday. Miss Hattie Burgess spent the week-end in Winston-Salem. President Garfield once confessed to Edward Atkinson, a Boston business man, that he dated his intellectual life from listening to a lecture by Ralph Waldo Emerson, and from that lecture he could remember only one thing that Emerson said, namely: "Mankind is as lazy as it dares to be." This one thought stuck in his mind all his life. It stimulated his thinking as nothing else had. Possibly it served as a personal rebuke, causing him to make a greater effort to develop himself than he would have done.—Ex.

SOCIETY NOTES

Websterians Honored With Visitors; Former Webs Return
 The Websterian debate of last Friday evening took the form of an extemporaneous discussion with Herschel Macon, Thomas Hadley, Ernest Cude and Floyd Pate participating. An unusual amount of spirited oratory featured the debate. The second number on the program was "Eulogy on Woodrow Wilson" in which James Howell paid high tribute to the late president.

Jokes by Floyd Pate were original and enjoyed by the society very much. The last number, a vocal quartette by Sparger Robertson, Sam Harris, John Cude and Kenneth Neese was something new in the Web hall, and caused much applause from the members. The society was glad to have as visitors Mr. Edgar Murray of Center, Mr. Ernest Macon of Liberty, and Mr. Coleman of Reidville.

St. Valentines Day Observed By Philomathean Society
 The Philomatheans gave their undivided attention to a Valentine's program on Friday evening, February 15.

Originality was the keynote of the program. Viola Odom gave an interesting and instructive talk on the customs of St. Valentine's day, in which she pointed out the customs of "finding the one," that had been followed since our grand-mother's day. Deborah Mendenhall then gave an interesting story entitled, "Valentine Romance." Chandos Kimery then sang in a touching manner "Your Eyes have told me so." As a concluding number Virginia Galloway amused the society for quite a while with "Valentine Wit."

Henry Clays Debate Revision of Immigration Laws
 A debate, "Resolved that the sixty-eighth congress should again continue the three per cent act of May 19, 1921," was staged by the Clays Friday evening, February 15. The affirmative speakers, James Thigpen and Max Kendall, succeeding in proving the success of the three per cent act and that it is the best plan yet advanced. Hardin Kimrey and Albert Peele for the negative showed many defects in the three per cent act but failed to present a better plan. The society was glad to have as a visitor Elwood Marshall of High Point and enjoyed the short speech which he made.

Zatasian Society Presents Festival Program
 The program presented to the Zatasian literary society, Feb. 15, was less instructive than entertaining. Katherine Shields, in her usual original way, told of the old customs and superstitions practiced by lovers on St. Valentine's Day. The second number on the program was delightful and in keeping with the spirit of the occasion. Margaret Conrad read with much expression Riley's "That Old Sweetheart of Mine." The program ended with a vocal solo, a Love-song by Ola Nicholson.

GUILFORD CAMPUS DONS OARB OF SPRING SEASON

During the last few weeks, the campus has lost much of its erstwhile wild appearance. Some of the boys have, in their spare time, been raking the leaves off the quadrangle between Founders Hall and Memorial Hall. Spots where one would think grass could never force its way to the surface of the leaves have been cleared away and the warm spring days are all that is lacking to finish the picture.

Nor has the work been confined to this small part of the campus. Coach Doak has had his huskies bestirring themselves upon the athletic field. Hobbs field, which a little while ago presented the appearance of the football field only, has the outlines of a baseball diamond besides a well beaten race track around the outside. The diamond itself has been plowed, and dragged and all of the turf raked out. With a few more days of fair weather it should be in fine shape for practice.

Then, too, there has been a perceptible thinning out of vagrant cats and dogs about the college grounds. Students of the biology department have for several days been tracing out the circulatory and nervous system of those animals with the result that few specimens of the felis domestica or cani familiaris tribe are to be seen making their rounds of the campus in search of the much needed bone to fill the aching void within. The lessening number of these animals might not seem to the casual observer as of any great importance, yet to the strict aesthetic, a decrease in the number of wandering canines is something to be appreciated, while the cessation of the quarrels of mad cats beneath the window at night is something to be noted with pleasure.

Teapot Dome Question

 retary of Interior, A. B. Fall, who leased the Teapot Dome region to the Sinclair Oil Syndicate, which has obtained $100,000,000 from the leased oil region. "It was Josephus Daniels," said Dr. Perisho, "who first called the attention of the public to this action by an editorial in the Raleigh News and Observer. Senator Caraway has characterized secretary Fall as a greater traitor than Benedict Arnold. Senator Walsh has introduced a resolution in Congress for the cancellation of the lease which received the full support of one political party." Dr. Perisho then discussed the attempts of the British Government to obtain oil regions, and cited the acquisition of the Mesopotamian oil area as an example. He stated that now the United States is using more oil and gasoline than it produces. He characterized ex-secretary Fall as a man who believed in corporate control of resources rather than public control. He stated that the United States has the greatest coal fields and forest resources of the world, but that we must conserve these natural resources.

Misses Vida McCombs and Leora Sherrill spent the week-end with Miss Vargie Platt of Greensboro.
