

QUAKERS WHITEWASH ELON

Guilford Boys Beat Ancient Rivals 7-0

S. MOORE IS STAR Carries Ball Over in First Period After a Series of Pretty Gains

COX AND MARSHALL HURT

Local Line Tears Elon's Forward Wall to Shreds and Paves the Way for Brilliant Runs of the Backs

October 26.—In a rather one-sided contest, the Quaker eleven smeared their ancient rivals for a 7-0 victory on Elon's home field.

In the first quarter, Smith kicked from his 30-yard line and the ball went out of bounds on the 50-yard line. Through a series of line plunges Cox and Moore carried the ball down the field. Moore pushed the ball across for a touchdown and Cheek kicked the extra point.

Through a break, Elon approached the Quaker goal once, but lacked the necessary drive to carry the ball over.

Walker, through his off-tackle and end runs, captured Elon's backfield honors, while Cox, Bunn, Cheek, Parrish, and Moore consistently ripped through the Elon line for substantial gains.

Lippencott started his first game and showed unusual capability at tackle, while the performance of the line from end to end was stellar. The Christians' line gains were few and far between.

In spite of the fact that Shepard's proteges were able to make only one touchdown, most of the game was played in the vicinity of Elon's goal posts.

Neither team accomplished much through aerial attacks. Guilford failed in all six of her attempts at passing.

FACULTY TO PRESENT TWO ONE-ACT PLAYS

Pretty Romance of Seventeenth Century to Contrast Sharply With Realities of Modern Married Life

THIRD PLAY BEING CONSIDERED

Saturday evening, November 3, the Guilford College Club will present two or three one-act plays in Memorial Hall, using this year their own members entirely for the cast and hoping to take in a substantial amount to be added to the sum which is being raised to pay for the improvements made in the auditorium during the past year.

Miss Elizabeth Bruce is to play the part of Sylvette, a petite French maiden of the seventeenth century, and Mr. Mumford will act as her young lover in the play, "The Romanceers," by Edmund Rostand. Both of the aristocracy have been sent away to school, and upon returning to their homes, find that their fathers are arch-enemies. The old wall which separates the two estates becomes a part of their paradise—until the fathers find out. But the ending depends all on these two old gentlemen, M. Pasquinot and M. Bergamin, the parts played by Dr. William Lofton and Dean Elton Trueblood, respectively. The dramatic art of Strouff, a professional, does much to heighten the effective closing. Coach

Bonfire

Guilford celebrated victory over her ancient foe by a huge bonfire Friday night. About 10:15 a terrific racket broke loose which drew everyone on the campus out in front of Archdale where a huge pile of gas-soaked wood was being lighted. Cheers were given for the team, after which short talks were given by Coach Shepard, Dr. Binford, Captain Hoyle, and several members of the team, after which a jubilant group of students sought their beds to dream of future Guilford victories.

GUILFORD DEBATERS TO ORGANIZE SOON

North Carolina Forensic and Oratorical Association Meets at Elon

PATRICK VICE-PRESIDENT

Oct. 27.—The representatives of the North Carolina Forensic and Oratorical Association met at Elon College today, selected a query for debate this year, and fixed a schedule for the member colleges to go by. Guilford will engage in six debates within the association this year. Of these the main attraction will be the annual triangular debate with High Point and Lenoir-Rhyne. In addition the Guilford arguers will meet Elon and Atlantic Christian College of dual debates.

The topic for debate this year will be the one used by Phi Beta Kappa concerning the worthiness of the present jury system. An exact statement of the question has not been made.

The state oratorical contest will be held at Elon in March. Every college is urgently requested to enter a representative in this contest. In addition to the handsome medals which are given for first and second places, a handsome silver loving cup will be given to the winning college this year. If any college is able to succeed in winning the cup three years in a row it becomes the permanent possession of the winners.

The possibility of having an oratorical contest and debating league for girls was discussed at length but no definite decision was reached.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Robertson, of Elon College, president; Rembert Patrick, of Guilford, vice-president, and Dr. Keiser, of Lenoir-Rhyne, was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Trueblood Paraphrases

D. Elton Trueblood is reported by the American Friend as having made a very impressive paraphrase of the passage in the Bible which reads, "I came not to send peace by a sword," at the recent Baltimore Yearly Meeting. His statement was: "I did not come to give you soothing syrup, but an electric shock."

STATELY SENIORS HAVE CELEBRATION

October 24.—Due to over-work, worry, and the desire to get away from the daily grind of study the senior class let their social nature get the upper hand. Since dignity characterizes each senior while on the campus, this was laid aside for a short time and an informal picnic and romantic moonlight stroll was solemnized in the Lindley cow pasture a short distance from the Quaker center of learning.

The hikers assembled at 4:40 and "Forward, March!" was given by able Commanders Hazard and Levering. Half an hour later found these recreation seekers gathering wood for the campfire.

The feast was delayed somewhat due to the fact that Messrs. Jazz and Steele had not been properly informed just where the pasture was located. Hunger was forgotten when the beautiful instrumental music that Miss McPherson was making on the victrola reached the

MASQUERADERS HIKE UNDER CLOUDY SKIES

Which Add to Ghostly Appearance of Spooky Old Farm in Lonely Field

SEARCH HAUNTED BARN

October 27.—Guilford College students and faculty members were temporarily transformed last Saturday evening into ghosts, witches, hobgoblins, and other weird creatures of the mystic world. The occasion was the annual Hallowe'en masquerade.

It was a distinctly heterogeneous group which wound its way from its place of assembly through wood and bog and meadow to the old and desolate farmhouse situated some uncertain but seemingly far distance beyond Whip-poor-will Lodge. When the last straggling creature had arrived, everyone was ordered to file through the hall, which was dimly lighted by jack-o'-lanterns, for costume inspections. Many and varied were the characters represented, but the judges finally awarded the prize to Glenn Robertson and Carrie Teague, who were dressed as Pierot and Pierette. The prize for the most unique costume went to the black cat, Sallie Belle Best. Henry White and Alice Hazard, as a Scotchman and Gypsy, respectively, and Eugene Hire as a skeleton were given honorable mention.

Then followed entertainment for the spooks. Each class gave a stunt so unique and clever and novel that no one coveted the position of the judges. However, the stunt given by the senior class, a burlesque comedy in which the hero and villain "A-salted" each other with salt-shakers, was voted first place.

Then something happened that completely disproved the theory that ghosts are not composed of material substances. Apples, popcorn, and marshmallows were served to the entire party and it was quite noticeable that none of the ghosts refrained from partaking.

After harassing experiences in an old barn adjoining the farmyard, the "weird creatures of the mystic world" decided that they had been defeated at their own game, and returned to the college to seek a comfortable place for rest and sleep.

THE PHILOMATHEAN SOCIETY IS HOSTESS AT PARTY FOR CLAYS

On Friday Evening Program Given in Memorial Hall Most Entertaining

USE HALLOWE'EN THEME

Dances, Music, and Songs Feature the Program Entitled "Witches' Revels;" Social Hour in Founders

October 26.—The first of the year's inter-society receptions occurred last Friday evening when the Philomathean Literary Society entertained the Henry Clay Literary Society at a very pleasing reception in the society halls at Founders, following a most entertaining program in Memorial Hall.

It being the Hallowe'en season that idea was carried out most attractively in both the program and the decorations. The programs were in the shape of pumpkins, and typical ghost language announced both the numbers on the program and the menu.

The entire program was entitled "Witches' Revels." The first number was a dance entitled "Goblin and Sprite," given by ten girls. Their costumes were especially attractive, as when they turned one way they appeared as boys and the other way as girls. This was merely to introduce "Romeo and Juliet," the program of the evening.

The second part was "Owl Hoots," which was a piano solo played by Georgia Fulk.

The third and main part of the program was a burlesque presentation of the final scene of Shakespeare's drama,
