M'CRACKEN SPEAKS ON LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

Mr. Duane McCracken spoke in chapel Monday morning about his work in the Library of Congress where he did quite an extensive bit of research this summer and he told the students something of the accommodations.

This library building is the largest in the world. It has floor space of 13.6 acres; steel shelving of 158.3 miles and costs to date, $7,490,951.

This library is surpassed in number of books and pamphlets only by the Bibliotheque Notronale, in Paris.

It has an accommodation for 850 readers including 23 separate rooms and over 100 study tables for research workers.

In the exhibition halls are the originals of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

Mr. McCracken worked about a month on a research problem. He was fortunate enough to be assigned to a private desk with privilege of having books brought to him and he also had a "stack permit" which enabled him to go to the stack room and get a book for himself.

These are among the most capable leaders of the senior class and will produce a Quaker worthy of special attention. There remains for selection the art editor and several assistants for these officers.

The editor-in-chief and the business managers do not have their programs well arranged yet. A number of companies have been interviewing members of the staff but the contract has not been let.

LAWS SUBJECT OF TALK BY FRAZIER

Former Graduate Lays Stress on Importance of Laws; Two Divisions Made.

LAWS MAKE CHARACTER

Robert Frazier, former student of Guilford, now a lawyer of Greensboro, gave advice and inspiration to the students at chapel Friday morning.

The speaker said laws are divided into two groups. Under the divine laws come the laws revealed through nature; under human laws, the rules of action prescribed by supreme authority.

It is well to consider laws. Science, always looking for the new and finding only that which is old, has questioned the law, disrupted idea of nature's laws.

This is an age of question. Shall we abandon laws, the perfection of reason? There should be great respect for the basis of question as the best of experience that comes down through the ages.

Dr. T. Newlin says, "The way you are walking and standing in college determines the way you will be walking and standing in the future."

"Of law no less can be said than that her seat is in the bosom of the Lord. The greatest are not exempted from power. Angels and men and all with uniform consent admire her as the mother of peace."

Attends All American Friends Conferences at Oskaloosa; Seven Hundred There.

J. P. ELKINTON'S ACCOUNT

Mrs. Perisho has returned from several weeks spent in Iowa, Indiana, Minnesota and South Dakota. She states the outstanding event of her trip was the All American Friends Conference at Oskaloosa, Iowa.

J. Passmore Elkinton has written as follows of this great meeting: "When the United States has twice its present population; when little Friends Meetings are multiplied as outposts, till they dot the map of North America; shall we not look at this year's Oskaloosa Conference as one of the early mile stones of a reinvigorated Quaker history?"

SENIOR GIRLS ENTERTAIN HONORING SENIOR BOYS

Picnic Supper Held in Grove Near Binford's—Boys Seem Well Pleased With Program.

Tuesday night at regular class meeting after business the senior boys began to get uneasy about when they were to be entertained by the girls.

The girls, not being quite so dumb as the hints would have one to believe, called a meeting immediately afterwards and unanimously decided to entertain them at once.

A wild party was anticipated by all the boys and their anticipations were not wholly out of keeping with the happenings for everyone seemed to enjoy the big bon-fire and such games as those occasions offer.

WELL, WELL, GUILFORD HAS PLENTY OF WATER

Newest Addition to Campus Received With Great Ovation by Students; Frosh Will No Longer Suffer.

AUTOMATIC PUMP IS INSTALLED

Well, Well, well, every department on the campus has something new this year. The faculty got several new members. Mr. Noah got a new music hall. Mrs. Andrews got some new worries (with due apologies).

There are good wells, poor wells, deep wells, shallow wells, artesian wells, and ordinary wells, but none to compare to what Guilford's new well is going to mean to all Guilfordians.

What a future this well has before it — with Guilford's ever-increasing number of students. To furnish water abundantly for Founders, Cox, New Garden, Archdale, and other needy places, what more need any self-respecting well wish?

Never more will we hear the football men gently suggest that the water was off, so they couldn't wash their hands before dinner. The freshmen, too, will be blest by the addition. For in previous days they have been declared negative when there was any danger of
