

CENTENNIAL PROGRAM INITIATED

PROGRESS IS TOPIC OF RABBI RYPINS IN CHAPEL TALK

Well-Known Jewish Rabbi of Temple Emanuel in Greensboro.

LAUDS MAHATMA GANDHI

Advocates Straight Forward Progress As the Best Thing for Our Modern Government.

Rabbi F. I. Rypins of Greensboro was the guest speaker in chapel Tuesday morning, January 24th. Speaking on the subject of "Progress," he expressed the opinion that there is a question whether some things for which we of the modern age are seeking are good or not.

"There is a great amount of interest now shown in the scandals of Washington, much more than in past days," said the speaker. The inquiries into how Washington works have shown that our government is a sort of "merry-go-round."

In business we find cycles of depression and inflation which are comparable to the cycles found in the realm of religion.

The speaker advocated straight forward progress as the best thing for our country, and used for examples the experiments of Russia and the rise of socialism in our country.

"There is at least one great person in the world who doesn't forget the people. That person is Mahatma Gandhi, and more and more people are beginning to appreciate him," said the Rabbi.

We should build more than from day to day. We should build for and toward a future.

FIRST GUILFORD STUDENT TAKES ORAL EXAMINATION

Priscilla White Takes Comprehensive Test Without Having Attended Class Lectures.

COMPREHENSIVE IN PHILOS. 10

The first student of Guilford to take an oral and written examination on a course, permissible in place of attending class, was Priscilla White, of Greensboro, a sophomore who took the oral examination, Philosophy 10, Wednesday, January 25th. On passing both the written and oral phases of the exam, she received full credit for the course.

The examination professors were Mrs. E. C. Milner, in charge of the course; Mrs. R. Binford, of the Foreign Language Department, and Professor J. Furnas, head of the English Department. They questioned the student thoroughly upon the general development in Esthetics particularly, and in Art and Architecture.

As part of the progressive policy of Guilford, as a liberal arts college, all general culture resource courses are being offered as syllabus courses. The student is given a list of elected references upon the subject and then takes the written and oral comprehensive tests.

Other syllabi that have either been made up or are in the process include Biology 12, Geology 5, Philosophy 103 and 104, Sociology 2 and Psychology 1.

PROF. SUITER SPEAKS ON FEMINISM IN U. S.

Contends Women Are Largely Responsible for Modern "Jazz Age."

HAVE LARGE INFLUENCE

Professor Suiter, of the Department of Economics, spoke on "Problems Arising With the Growth of the Feminist Movement in America" in the monthly joint Y meeting last Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

Taking rather a gloomy view of the subject, Mr. Suiter said that women were in large part responsible for the modern jazz age. He pointed out the effect of the movement on such widely separated things as automobile design and the flood of sensational literature, both of magazines, newspapers, and books, that is filling the country. He further stated that the feminist movement is turning art into useful channels rather than the fine arts.

Mr. Suiter showed that the movement had taken a great part of its power from the introduction of machine labor which has cut away the traditional view of labor as a distinctly masculine enterprise.

He illustrated the effects of the movement in changing institutions such as the home, in increasing divorce, and in changing the relation of the sexes. These and other problems result from the entrance of women into the business and industrial world.

A CAPELLA CHOIR SINGS IN A CHAPEL PROGRAM

Group of Numbers They Intend to Drop, Including "God is a Spirit," and "Steal Away."

The A Capella Choir gave five numbers in chapel Friday morning, January 27th. The choir was handicapped by the absence of several members in the tenor and bass sections, but nevertheless, gave an excellent performance. "Beautiful Savior," one of the encore numbers, was the only one sung Friday that the choir is not dropping from its program this year. This is the num-

GUILFORD HISTORY REVIEWED BY DEAN IN CENTENNIAL TALK

Did Not Close During Civil War, As Other Colleges Were Forced to Do.

ONLY 20% LAST 100 YEARS

Guilford Is One of 100 Oldest Colleges in America, Second Oldest Co-ed College in South.

With the challenge "to throw in our best," Dean Clyde A. Milner concluded his talk on the Centennial program in chapel January 5th.

He pointed out several interesting facts concerning the history of Guilford College. In the 96 years of its existence Guilford has not closed its doors once, as several larger colleges in the South were forced to do during the Civil War. Guilford is one of the hundred oldest colleges in the United States. It is the second oldest co-educational college in the South, having begun as a co-educational boarding school with 25 boys and the same number of girls.

Only 20 per cent of American colleges have existed as long as 100 years, and Mr. Milner asked why Guilford was one of the two out of ten that have endured. For the student body to think over he also asked the question, Has Guilford a program so unified and so carefully thought through as to continue to challenge the support of its friends?

"It is for you and me to decide," he said, "and it is our responsibility to help bring Guilford closer to the ideals for which it stands."

MIDNIGHT RIDE STOPPED BY RANDLEMAN MAYOR

"Listen, my children, and you shall hear of the midnight ride of Paul Revere. He jumped in his flivver"—no, this was not a flivver, nor was it Paul Revere on his famous ride. Then what was this ride? Who was this phantom creature that crept from dale to dale, over first one sandy mound, and then laboriously over another?

The first report of this strange phenomenon was received from Asheboro, an outpost of the sandhill section of North Carolina.

As soon as this news reached Randleman, eight miles away, the townspeople began literally swarming in the streets, to get a glimpse of this struggling, over-grown horseless carriage.

At last, after two hours of patient watchfulness, one citizen was heard to exclaim, "Clear the way! Thar she comes." The streets were immediately cleared and 15 minutes later, 'midst the illuminated rays of the ceiling lights of his ark, Noah disembarked, at the request of the mayor of the fair city. Then questions were fired at him, but Noah stood his ground and in answer to them said merely, "Check."

At length all was quiet, yet a sort of tense nervousness could still be felt over the scene. But peace and quiet have a soothing effect on the mind, and Mr. Noah at last conquered his stage fright and eloquently addressed the mayor. "Say, what's the idea of stopping us? We're the famous Guilford College Choir, tranquilly traversing the highways, homeward bound, after a successful concert in Southern Pines. Please, may we pass, Mr. Mayor? We're in a terribly big hurry!"

SCHOOL OF MISSIONS OPENS NEXT SUNDAY

The School of Missions under the auspices of the Missionary Committee of New Garden Monthly Meeting and the students and faculty of Guilford College will open on Sunday evening, February 5, and extend through March 12.

Each evening the program will be divided into three parts: the opening period, 6:45 to 7:00, under the direction of David H. Parsons; the study period, from 7:00 to 7:45, and the closing period, 7:45 to 8:30, with Harry A. Welton presiding.

Seven study courses will be conducted by able leaders, and during the closing period many of the outstanding leaders of this section will speak.

A great deal of enthusiasm has been shown in the registration of the students and people of the community and it is hoped that this will continue throughout the entire six weeks.

CLASS ELECTIONS FOR 2ND SEMESTER

Elections Held in Separate Chapel Thursday, January Twenty-Sixth.

SOPHS ELECT ALL BOYS

Election of class officers for the second semester was held by the classes of Guilford College at the regular meeting of the classes separately during the chapel period Thursday, January 26.

For the seniors, David Parsons, of High Point, succeeding Fletcher Allen, president; Robert Mears, of St. Paul, Minn., vice-president; Mary Richardson, of Reidsville, secretary; Charles Milner, of Leesburg, Ohio, treasurer.

The juniors elected the following officers: John Hugh Williams, of Concord, president, succeeding Leroy Miller; Clara Belle Welch, of Mt. Airy, vice-president; Esther Lee Cox, Goldsboro, secretary and treasurer.

The sophomores elected an entirely masculine group: George Parker, president, succeeding Charles Biddle; Robert Gallagher, the Hollows, Va., vice-president; Charles Mackenzie, Camden, secretary; Leonard Matthews, Stoneville, treasurer.

The freshman class elected Helen Stilson, Providence, R. I., president, succeeding Daryl Kent; Paul Bowers, Sanford, vice-president; Edgar Meibohm, Greensboro, secretary; Richard Robinson, Greensboro, treasurer.

These officers will serve for the remainder of the school year.

TALKS BY DAVID PARSONS, JR. AND BY PROF. NEWLIN

Ninety-ninth Anniversary of Granting of Charter Is Celebrated.

OUR DUTY TO CO-OPERATE

Both Speakers Emphasize the Important Part Students Play in Growth of College.

As a celebration of the 99th anniversary of the granting of the charter for Guilford College, a chapel service was held on Friday morning, January 13.

The first speaker was Professor Newlin, who outlined the history of the college briefly. His speech follows in part:

"One hundred years ago today, less one year, the 'Founding Fathers' of this institution made an achievement which stands as one of the landmarks in the history of North Carolina. It was done at a time when the Southland was just waking up to the necessity of freeing the youth of the land from the clutches of ignorance. Davidson College, Duke University, Emory and Henry, Mercer, The University of Richmond, and Wake Forest College all trace their origin back to this third decade of the 19th century.

"Just 200 years ago, the second important trek of Quaker immigrants to the South was pushing its way across the Potomac and over and among the hills of Virginia toward the woods of Central North Carolina. It took these Quakers nearly 100 years to work out, in co-operation with the Quakers of Eastern Carolina, a plan for meeting the educational needs of their young people.

"With the passing of another half century the New Garden School was re-chartered, reorganized, and launched out toward the present, as Guilford College. Since that event another half century has rolled around and we find ourselves pausing, at this moment, to glance at the past, as we set ourselves toward the future with a new zeal and a new determination.

"The birthday of an individual or the anniversary of the founding of an institution may call forth various reactions and celebrations in commemoration of the event. It may be the occasion for a wild orgy of feasting and other dissipational pleasures, or it may

Centennial Committees Named From Faculty and Student Body

In order to begin definite work on the Centennial program, Dean Milner has appointed ten faculty committees to work on the plans already proposed by the administration. Members were elected from both the Junior and Senior classes to aid the faculty in suggesting objectives to be introduced to each class for its approval. In their preliminary statement these committees gave their desire for a select student body, larger and more beautiful buildings, carefully planned program, and an adequate endowment.

Several of the committees have already held meetings for further consideration of the objectives of the Centennial program.

The committee on the campus plan, composed of J. L. Fleming, A. I. Newlin, J. W. Pancost, Gail Wilbur, and student representatives, Harris Moore and Mildred Burton, have studied carefully the plans proposed by a leading landscape artist and have decided that several changes should be made with the approval of the college.

The committee on selecting students, with Mrs. Milner as chairman, have drawn plans which should bring only the most desirable students to Guilford.

The Alumni Committee, with Miss Ricks as chairman, held a meeting in which the need for an active Alumni Association was discussed. One of the most immediate needs of the college is an Alumni Secretary.
