cents per meal, and that this money covers the following expenditures: the actual food prepared; rent of the dining room; electricity and water; wages for 27 student workers and two cooks (waiters, dishwashers, janitors for the boarding department, dairy and storeroom workers, etc.); laundering of aprons, towels, table linen; all cleaning supplies; and maintenance, including repairs and replacement of equipment and dishes (as well as the purchase, from time to time, of new ones).

Three things in this connection: Student labor is necessarily costly. Far better it would be, and easier, to hire regular help; the advantages of this, in money and efficiency, need not be cited. Guilford College is glad to do all it can financially for its students, but a little courteous appreciation on the part of some would be welcomed.

Closely related is the second point: If all the students eating in the Founder's hall dining room were paying their full $425 in cash, conditions at Guilford would be remarkably different. Again, Guilford is eager to help, but before you criticize too severely, ask yourself, and answer truthfully as most of us would find we would have to, Marlette, Lawsonville; Roger Kiser, Star; Mrs. M. B. Smith, Burlington; Lois L. Beville, Brown Summit; Louise Ward, Fayetteville; Aliene Johnson, Asheboro; Gertrude Korner, Charlotte; Evan C. Brown, New York City; Harold A. Purnell, Denton; Louise Melville, North Wilkesboro; Bill Pittendreich, Spray; Mrs. Clara Marshall Kirby, Washington, D. C.; and Notre M. Johnson, Oak Ridge.

"Am I, accepting the favors of Guilford College that I am accepting, in a position to criticize an institution that is so freely doing so much for me?"

Lastly, food costs are rapidly rising. The boarding department's answer to your criticism may be a reference to pages 71 and 72 of the last Guilford College catalogue: "During the coming year, however, we are facing the possibility of a considerable increase in the cost of foods. We are reserving the right, therefore, to increase the charge $10 to $20 if we find it is necessary in order to provide satisfactory food." The students are now answering this question!

In conclusion, can the Indignant Newcomers and Diners see now why the upperclassmen are not only "contented," but gloriously happy and grateful in the realization of what a really good thing we are getting after all?

THOROUGHLY SATISFIED.
