Duke Professor Is Veteran Commencement Speaker At Guilford

Dr. Hornell Hart, professor of sociology and of Christian ethics at Duke university, will officiate for the third time at Guilford commencement exercises.

He will deliver the baccalaureate sermon here on May 31.

Dr. Hart gave the commencement addresses at Guilford in June of 1936 and 1938. He also lectured here from January 21 to 28 in 1939, as the main figure in a special Emphasis week sponsored by the campus Christian associations.

Dr. Hart graduated from Oberlin college in 1910, and received his Ph.D. from the State University of Iowa in 1921. He was professor of sociology at Hartford Theological seminary from 1933 to 1938. He was a professor at Bryn Mawr for a period of nine years prior to that.

Guilford Library Acquires 800 Volumes Among Gifts

The Guilford college library has been left the library of Clara I. Cox, of High Point, it was stated by Miss Katharine C. Ricks, Guilford librarian, after a meeting of the Library committee on March 7.

The Cox library, which has been left to the college library and for the use of North Carolina Yearly Meeting ministers, includes 800 books and numerous pamphlets and periodicals, of which the library will have first choice, the rest being catalogued in a special collection for the use of the ministers.

Mrs. Edward B. Benjamin, of Friendly road, has given the library a number of books by and about Jews, including a valuable Jewish encyclopedia.

Robert Straker, of Longman, Green and Company, has donated 36 gifts to the library.

The committee discussed the possibility of opening the library to those of the community who wished to use its periodicals. It was decided that Saturday and Sunday afternoons and evenings would be the best times for this. The plan will go into effect only if there is sufficient demand.

Monogram Club Schedules Dance Saturday, April 25

The Monogram club has scheduled its spring dance for April 25. In order to have an orchestra, it will be necessary for the club to charge an admission of 99 cents a couple, including tax. Men will be asked not to buy corsages for their dates.

The club is anxious to know if the students want the dance under these conditions, and will support it. If there is not a sufficient number of students in favor of the dance, it will not be given. Guilfordians are requested to express their opinions concerning this matter to members of the Monogram club.

Herbert Pearson, Herbert Schoellkopf, and Henry Ausband make up the committee in charge of the dance.

Council To Consider Plan For Bus Route In Hearing, March 17

Rufus Jones To Speak At AFSC Meeting Here

Group Will Meet At New Garden, Saturday, March 21

Rufus M. Jones, well-known friend and writer on Quaker subjects, will address the American Friends Service committee in a public meeting to be held at New Garden Meeting house at 7:30 p.m. on March 21.

The meeting, the second of its sort to be held here in recent years, is designed largely so that as many members as possible of the Society of Friends can attend; other meetings of the committee are usually held in Philadelphia.

Tentative agenda schedule the opening of the meeting at 10 a.m. Different sections, including Peace, Social Industrial, Civilian Public Service, and Foreign Service—all branches of the committee's work—will meet during the day, with recess for lunch and supper.

Most recent development in the work of the AFSC concerns the establishment of branch offices in California, to help those Japanese on the Pacific coast who are being moved inland by the United States government. Not only enemy aliens among the Japanese, but some who are loyal citizens are subject to this policy. The committee is impartially attempting to help them adjust to the new situation.

The Fellowship council will meet at New Garden on Friday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. A chief concern of this group

1942 Quaker Will Feature Staff, Layout Innovations

By BETTE BAILEY

Five-fifteen of a Saturday afternoon. Outside, the campus echoes with the laughter of fun-loving Guilfordians, while behind a swinging door supported by one loose screw, sits a silent group of four, whose long faces are marked with lines of deep concentration and much deliberation over a sheaf of smudged papers and glaring photographs—your yearbook in the raw!

This grim quartet is the backbone, the rewriting machine, the censor, and the day and night laborer who in the form of Robert Rohr (editor), Bette Bailey (managing editor), Corky Field and Nancy Graves (editorial staff) trails scandal-mongers, reporters, faculty, and friends (also students) to track down the "best to print" in the '42 Quaker.

Ever since last spring editor Rohr and photographer Ray Tannenbaum have been planning and "snapping" respectively—freshman-sophomore picnic, May day, graduation exercises, and this year—football, basketball, clubs, dancing—all a kaleidoscope of life at Guilford. No more scrambled arrangements of candid shots—rather, short stories told in pictures. And more than that—gone is the day of the visiting photographer who last year staggered around this campus under black hood and tripod in an attempt to photograph our clubs and other organizations whose members were never at the proper place at the scheduled time. No, our own photographers, Behre and Tannenbaum, are taking charge of club

Bicycling Sweeps Campus; Personnel Takes to Wheels

By TOBEY LAITIN

Steady cyclists, like Paul Rahenkamp and Morris King, must find traffic on Guilford walks and roads highly congested these days.

The jam was so great—or perhaps it was just a playful Piedmont breeze that played havoc with one of the most recent converts to the bicycling rage—that Aunt Melissa Powell abandoned her wheel in a most unceremonious fashion one day the week before last.

If we didn't have a subject for our senior thesis and we happened to be in any of William B. Edgerton's or E. Daryl Kent's classes, we would certainly submit to our major professor (rough draft due sometime in April or else). The effect of Bicyclists' Knees on the Pedagogic Powers of Professors or How to Become Mind, Mood and Muscle-Bound.

Religion professor Kent is an old hand at cycling. Tire rationing was just a good excuse for him to indulge in a secret weakness and now he commutes a la bicycle to and from the Dolly Madison well.

Modern language professor Edgerton has also indulged. The new fad emphasizes a facet of the Edgerton character—the Edgerton love of thoroughness. It's all or nothing, says William B. Consequently Mrs. Edgerton has joined Mrs. Powell in attempting to master her metal steed and Mr. Edgerton has rigged up a seat with stirrups on his wheel for Susan.

When the alarm sounds for a blown fuse, a leaky roof, or hot water at the
