

Guilford Nine To Meet High Point Saturday

Friendly Students, Campus Beauty Impress Visitor

By BARBARA McFARLAND

Mrs. Lillian Solomon, a very active member of the Society of Friends, visited Guilford from March 26 to April 4, to find how a small college gets along.

In order to become familiar with Guilford, Mrs. Solomon talked with both students and faculty, ate in the dining hall, and attended several classes during her stay here.

When asked what impressed her most about Guilford, Mrs. Solomon said the friendly atmosphere of the students made the biggest impression.

Mrs. Solomon, who is a graduate of Swarthmore College, has visited colleges and co-operative communities in Louisiana, Alabama, and Mississippi. She plans to visit at least two more colleges in North Carolina before returning to her home in New York.

When questioned about her work, Mrs. Solomon replied, "I am working in the interest of human relations. I want to try and understand people better. By visiting various colleges and communities, I am getting this opportunity." She is very interested in trying to find a way to have World Peace. She said that peace cannot be achieved until problems of racial intolerance, and greed among men are removed from society. One way of removing these problems is to work together in co-operative organizations.

"I have been listening to many educators speak of the advantages of life in the rural community and I wanted to see them for myself. I have found that the educators are right," said Mrs. Solomon. "I hope that many young people will work in rural areas upon graduation from college," she added.

Mrs. Solomon works in a Quaker Hostel in New York City when she is not touring the country.

Young Republican Club Organized

A group of political-minded students have made plans for the organization of a Young Republican Club here on the Guilford campus. The students, mostly males, held their first meeting Wednesday, April 5 in the hut.

Future plans call for the election of officers for the coming year, presentation of the national charter and election of representatives who will attend the annual Young Republican Conference to be held in the near future at Lenoir Rhyne College.

Ellis Love, who acted as chairman told those who attended the first meeting that the Guilford Republican Club was organized not only for the purpose of developing the party, but also to help students to learn more about our complex government. It will also help create individual participation in our democracy, he added.

Candidates for officers are Bob Garner, Abner Alexander, Ellis Love, Bud Hayworth, L. W. Sharp, Charles Rittenbury, and Charles Justin. The next meeting has not yet been announced.

May Day

The annual May Day celebration this year will be held on May 6th. Miss Ann Ralford and her court will reign over the proceedings which will be climaxed by a dance sponsored by the W. A. A.

Choir Trip a Success; Eleven Concerts Given

Thirty-six members of the Guilford A Cappella Choir during the spring vacation period, March 17-27, sang eleven concerts in Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York and Rhode Island during their annual tour.

The selected group, under the direction of Associate Professor of Music, Charles C. Underwood, and under the chaperonage of Miss Doris Hutchinson, left on Saturday morning, March 18 at 6 a. m. with Harrisburg, Wormleysburg, Pennsylvania as the destinations. That night in the Evangelical United Brethren Church of Rev. Ray Higgins a packed audience heard the choir's initial concert. Part of their program was repeated the following Sunday morning as part of the church's worship service.

A short hop to the Philadelphia area put the choir into ancient Friends Meeting House for Sunday night. Entering the metropolitan district of New York City on Monday, March 20, Guilford's musical ambassadors were sponsored in a night concert by the Brooklyn Friends Meeting and on the succeeding night the choir reached up-state New York to sing at Glen Falls. Through the snowy Berkshires of Massachusetts and through Connecticut to Westley, R. I. on March 22 and to Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Friends Meeting on March 23, the choir's itinerary brought it back to Riverdale Presbyterian Church in New York City after an early morning musical chapel program at Oakwood School (Friends) of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Sizeable audiences in Washington, D. C. and at Lynchburg, Virginia, heard the concerts on the final two days of the tour.

Essential to the success of such an undertaking were the many alumni who helped in booking dates, the friends of the college whose interest brought them into the audience was a critical tribute to the work of Guilford's major musical organization.

Students Attend IRC Meeting

Using the theme, "World Communism versus World Democracy," the South Atlantic Region of International Relations Clubs annual conference was held at Madison College, Harrisonburg, Virginia, on March 17 and 18.

Round tables were held in four topics: "The Expansion of Communism," "The New Far East," "The Problem of Western Europe and the Near East," and "Means of Insuring World Peace."

Howard Davis, president of the International Relations Clubs of North Carolina, presented a paper on the "European Recovery Program and Point Four," and Morton Salkind, vice-president of the Guilford I. R. C., presented a paper entitled "Strengthening the United Nations."

The feature speaker of the conference was Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of the American University, Washington, D. C. He is author of such books as God Among the Germans, The Yankee Tradition, and Men Conquer Guns, and he was recently decorated by the governments of Norway and Korea. Taking time from his writing of a series of articles on Korea and the Far East for The Saturday Evening Post, Dr. Douglass spoke on American foreign policy in general, and our policy in the Far East in particular.

Dewey Wolfe, Quaker Mound Ace, Set To Defend Perfect Record

By TOM EVAUL

Coach Emmett Cheek's Guilford College baseball team will play their first North State Conference game on their home diamond tomorrow afternoon when they battle their traditional rivals, the High Point "Panthers."

Library Addition Nearly Completed

The new addition to the Guilford College library is about as near to perfection as any college library unit.

This new addition contains an entry, vestibule, and foyer on each side. The foyer on the southeast side opens on a passage running east and west, from which you enter a spacious, well lighted reading room. Behind the reading room is another room that will be reserved strictly for information referring to Quakerism. At the north end of this Quaker Collection Room is a huge fireproof vault.

On the passage on the north side of the building are the librarian's office and the library secretary's office. At the end of this corridor is a large workroom.

Between the two corridors is an addition to the present reading room, the old stacks, and a new three-story portion for stacks. On the second floor is another reading room.

From the south passage on the second floor you enter into two large seminar rooms. Situated between these seminar rooms are two small study rooms. On the north passage on the second floor are a staff room, a store room, and a music, art collection, and visual aids room.

The work on the revamped library is not yet completed, and it won't be ready for use this school year. However, by next September it will be ready for full time use.

Student Receives Graduate Award

Marianne Victorius, Guilford College student from the Guilford Community, has been notified that she is recipient of the Augustus Argus Whitney fellowship for the scholastic year of 1950-51. The fellowship covers tuition costs for study at Rattcliffe College, co-ordinate educational institution with Harvard University.

Miss Victorius plans to study in her major field of International Economics, and to complete her credits toward a Masters degree in that field.

The Guilford senior has maintained a high scholastic rating during her four years, as well as widespread participation in extra-curricular activities. She is a former president of the honor society, a former president of the International Relations Club, and is editor of the college students yearbook.

She is the daughter of Dr. Curt Victorius, Associate Professor of Economics at Guilford.

Feagins Gives Piano Concert in Chapel

There was a surprise in store for those attending chapel Friday, March 31. Everyone was well entertained by an informal piano concert given by Mr. Carroll S. Feagins, assistant professor of philosophy.

Mr. Feagins began with a short, interesting explanation of the type of music he was going to play.

For his first number, Mr. Feagins chose Prelude and Fugue, No. 4, in C-sharp minor by Bach. His second selection was a Theme and Variations in F minor by Haydn. For his third selection, Mr. Feagins played Chopin's Nocturne in D-flat major.

To date the Quakers have played two Conference games, their record being one win and one loss. Those of you who were around last year will remember the terrific struggle staged on Hobbs field between these two nines. Down, but not out, the grey and red staged a three run rally in the seventh inning to tie the game at seven all. Wallace Maulsby laid into the first pitch in the ninth inning for a home run that won the game. In the only other meeting at High Point, the Quakers were leading at the end of three innings when the game was rained out.

The Panthers will prove a tough test for the Guilford nine bringing back several lettermen from last years squad. One of the big jobs for Quaker hurlers will be pitching the big Gray Cartwright. The first baseman handled the pitching chores for the purple and gold last year, but because of his power at the plate he has been switched to the initial sack. Against the McCrary Eagles last week he chipped in with three hits, one of which was a booming triple.

However, the Guilfordians will have a few surprises of their own in store for the Panthers. Big Wally Maulsby will be back in center field to try and repeat his performance of last year. Little Jase Ralls will also prove to be another thorn in the Panthers' side. Dewey Wolfe, who so ably handled the pitching chores in last year's contest, will once again be ready to take the mound. Jim Coward and Bill Ringler, two superb defensive infielders, will be prepared to rob the Panthers of many hits. Rudy Craven, Sam Venuto, and Bill McCormick will round out the batting order with plenty of power. Any one of these three can put one out of the park at any time. The only doubtful starter will be second baseman, Herman Enoch. Suffering an injured elbow as a result of being hit by a pitched ball in the Johns Hopkins game last week, the steady little keystone man may be replaced by Pee Wee Ingram, reserve infielder.

The probable starting nine that will take the field for High Point will be Ridge, third base, Taylor, shortstop, Boverner, second base, Collette, center field, Kimball, catcher, Meekins, left field, Smith, right field, Cartwright, first base, and either Swiggett or Draper pitching.

No "K. K. K."

Since the faculty and community recital and the monogram initiation (K. K. K.) dates conflict, the "K. K. K." will not be held this year.
