

Big Hallowe'en Carnival Is Set For Tuesday

Dramatic Council To Present 'Our Town' Soon

Play To Be Staged Before Christmas, Wall Announces

Bob Wall, president of the Guilford College Dramatic Council, has announced that the annual Fall production will be "Our Town." "Our Town" is a three-act play by Thornton Wilder that has been very successfully presented on various professional and amateur stages throughout the nation.

The Dramatic Council decided this year to forego the usual comedy and replace it with a warm, human interest drama that would get into the heart of the audience. "Our Town" is such a play. It has real emotional value and plenty of subtle humor.

Uniqueness

This play is unique in that it has no stage setting. The clever dialogue of the stage managers and characterization are the prime factors in making the play the success it has been for the past several years. In a play of this type there is a striking effect on the imagination of the audience. This is another instrumental factor for the nationwide success of the play.

Plot of Play

"Our Town" is portrayed as a typically picturesque little town in New Hampshire, inhabited by typically picturesque people, who live typically picturesque lives. However, the play and the people, and the lives they live are not so typical that they have to have their setting in Grover's Corners, New Hampshire. They are just typical enough to take place anywhere in the imagination of anyone in the audience.

The cast for "Our Town" consists of 26 characters. Tryouts are being held this week. Any interested in dramatics whether experienced or inexperienced is asked to try out.

Hayride!

The S. C. A. and Social Committee will hold a hayride Saturday night. All are welcome.

South American Tomboy Has Been to More Places than Mrs. R.

By Darrel Peeler

Bobbie Hunt has done more traveling in her nearly twenty years than most people can crowd into a lifetime.

This active young lady was born November 27, 1930, in the government hospital at Concepcion, Chile. She ran away three days later, and has been hopping around the western hemisphere like a flea on a hot stovetop ever since.

She comes of a family of globe-trotters. Her father, Charles Hunt, was born of well traveled missionary parents, within sight of Egypt's pyramids. He grew up in this country, and eventually wound up at Wooster College, Ohio, as an English major. There he found a kindred spirit in Evelyn Chaffee, who joined him and became Mrs. Hunt as soon as he was firmly established as the Chilean representative of Standard Oil.

Things were idyllic for the young Hunts, even as they skipped from one flea-bitten little Chilean oil town to another. Little did they realize the momentous changes that sunny November day would bring.

At first young Barbara was like any other little girl, and her parents fairly glowed with pride. However, she soon became the tomboy ringleader of whatever district her father was developing at the moment, and took great delight in the

Sadie Hawkins Day Dance To Be Held November 18

By Marjorie Jardine

Mark Saturday, November 18, on your calendar and set it aside for the Sadie Hawkins Barn Dance! This year it's going to be bigger and better than ever. The cabinet of Women's Athletic Association is making colossal plans for the second annual presentation of the unique girl-ask-boy dance.

Fellows, you better be on your good behavior, so your "best gal" will be sure to ask you. It's all going to happen in the Guilford Gymnasium at 8 p.m., Saturday.

Square Dance

Arrangements have been made for the veteran square dance caller, Jake Welker, of Greensboro, to guide and direct the festivities. Mr. Welker will bring with him Gurley

Wyrick and his string band who will insure a good time for all.

In the making are elaborate plans for the enhancing of the barn dance atmosphere, with the decorating of the gym in autumnal regalia.

National Hawkins Day

Incidentally, if you have kept up with "Li'l Abner," you are already aware of the fact that November 18 has been made "offhensively" Sadie Hawkins Day. That means that Daisy Mae will be around asking Li'l Abner while all you Guilford gals are asking your best beaux.

Tickets will be on sale in the near future, and hurry, girls, so you won't be in the last minute scramble for a partner.

Prizes will be awarded for the "best dressed" square dance couples and also there will be many surprises in store for you at the gym—including refreshments.

'Quaker' Staff Gets Underway Early

The staff of The Quaker, the Guilford College Annual, has already begun to get underway. Its biggest job is to get the pictures of each individual student. Photos have been taken and by the end of this week all retakes will have been completed.

Co-editors-in-chief Jean Kirkman and Dorothy Demos should be duly credited for the way they have gotten their staff together and working this early in the year and for the work that they themselves have done.

Other members of the Quaker staff are: Joyce Fulk, managing editor; James Dobbins, business manager; Henry Maclin, assistant business manager; and Dorothy Cheek, art editor.

The powers that be are not divulging any information concerning such things as color scheme, dedication, or general layout. These facts must remain secret until publication.

Library Dedication, Founders' Day Set

Tentative plans for the annual Guilford College Founders Day proceedings to be held on November 10 have been completed, according to college officials.

A large number of invitations to educators and alumni will be sent this week, Dr. Clyde A. Milner, college president, said.

The feature attraction of this year's program will be the dedication of the recently completed $100,000 library addition, and the first annual Jeremiah Montgomery Ward lecture on an important phase of Quaker thought.

Dr. Alexander C. Purdy, professor of New Testament literature at Hartford Theological Seminary, will give the Ward lecture at 8 p.m. He will speak on "An Able Leadership for Friends' Meetings."

The lecture is authorized in the Ward Permanent Trust Fund of $250,000. This fund also provides scholarships to Guilford for students from North Carolina, Ohio, and Tennessee, who display qualities of leadership for the Society of Friends, for research grants, and for Friends community service.

Help Other Nations, Says Robert Frazier

Robert Frazier, secretary of the Guilford College Board of Trustees and Greensboro attorney, told the student body on October 14 that "If we, as Americans, can have the understanding and courage to help other nations enjoy freedom while maintaining our freedom at home, we can extend indefinitely the reign of Western democracy in the world."

'Comedy of Errors' To Be Presented By Barter Troupe

Robert Porterfield's Barter Theatre of Virginia will present its gala costume production of "The Comedy of Errors" by William Shakespeare in the Guilford College auditorium on Monday, November 20, at 8:15 p.m.

This production features the most elaborate costuming to be used by the Barter Theatre thus far this season. The gay comedy is written with a light-hearted spirit of fun and the players make the most of its Elizabethan revelries, according to the critics.

Ample Music

The play will be under the direction of Margaret Perry and Woody Romoff will handle the musical arrangements. Although it is short in comparison with other Shakespearean production, "The Comedy of Errors" has forty music cues and five dances including a Maypole caper.

Based upon a merry confusion of shipwreck and mistaken identities, the comedy will be carried out in a Greek motif along lines similar to Barter's "Twelfth Night" and "Much Ado About Nothing" of past seasons. The Barter troupe is the only troupe that writes its script out in prose instead of verse so that the lines come evenly and clearly.

All of the properties, scenery and costumes for "The Comedy of Errors" are new. Fabrics in nylon and taffeta from Burlington Mills have gone into the costumes. A series of platforms which can be changed quickly and easily to give varied effects.
